Subject: RE: Dear John

Sally,
Anna Lee told me the message last night and I sat right down and sent out a card too. Called Janet Hall and she couldn't believe it, I had told her last week on email and she hadn't heard a thing about this. Called her last evening and told her what Anna Lee had told me. She probably called you.
I told John in my card that I had had him on MY INTENSE PRAYER LIST FOR NIGHTLY PRAYERS ever since I heard that he chest pains, be sure that you tell him again that we have been praying for him ever since we heard of the chest pains from you.
Tell him that Rod is doing well , the doctors can't believe that his first PET scan was so well with such a fast growing cancer, they weren't expecting that good of report. SO , we and about the whole of whole of southern IN church network has Rod on their prayer lists. Believe in prayer, tell him Larry Gulley is doing so good now. IF HE CAN DO IT , SO CAN JOHN. TELL HIM WE LOVE HIM AND WILL ALWAYS BE THINKING OF HIM AND HE WILL MOST DEFINITELY BE IN OUR PRAYERS.
Isn't email a wonderful way to keep everybody up on things. I am sure that you will find a way (Doris) to keep us up on John.

Love you, nancy

Hello to all,

I suppose that you know John has been having chest pain for a couple of months off and on. He had a second stress test last Thursday which gave cause for concern so today he had a cardiac catheterization in Indy at the St. Vincent's Heart Hospital. Marj and I went up to be with him and with Karen. We were all thinking it would be a simple thing with placement of stents but we were all wrong. This Thursday at noon he goes for four by-passes.

He is taking it as well as can be expected. The surgeon gave him a blow by blow account of what they will be doing and that is enough to make anyone to jump out of their skin, not a pleasant thing to look forward to !!

Marj and I are going back Thursday and will be prepared to stay depending on how things go. Since he is healthy otherwise, I expect him to do well. Your thoughts and prayers would be appreciated.

I will keep everyone informed as I can.

Take care

Love,

DESCRIPTION TRACT 2

A part of the Northwest quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section 4, Township 4 North, Range 4 East, Second Principal Meridian, Jackson County, Indiana and described as follows:

Commencing at the northwest corner of the Northwest quarter of the Southeast quarter of said section 4; thence South 03 degrees 44 minutes 16 seconds East, 173.97 feet to the northwest corner of that tract of land described and recorded in deed record 238 ,page 76; thence, along the westerly line of said tract, South 03 degrees 47 minutes 09 seconds East 37.66 feet to a set mag nail and the Point of Beginning; thence South 89 degrees 24 minutes 30 seconds East 355.41 feet to a set 5/8 inch by 30 inch rebar on the easterly line of said tract; thence, on said easterly line, South 00 degrees 29 minutes 18 seconds West 37.48 feet to an existing steel pipe at the southeast corner of said tract; thence, on the southerly line of said tract, North 89 degrees 25 minutes 10 seconds West 352.60 feet to an existing p.k. nail at the southwest corner of said tract; thence, on the westerly line of said tract, North 03 degrees 47 minutes 09 seconds West 37.66 feet to the Point of Beginning, containing 0.30 acres more or less and subject to all easements, reservations, restrictions and encumbrances of record and/or apparent.

SURVEYOR'S REPORT

The purpose of this survey is to survey monument plat and describe a split of that tract of land described in deed record 238, pg. 76. In accordance with Title 865, Article 1.1, Chapter 12, Sections 1 through 34 of the Indiana Administrative Code, the following observations and opinions are submitted regarding the various uncertainties in the locations of the lines and corners established this survey as a result of:

A. Variances in the reference monuments.
B. Discrepancies in record descriptions and plats.
C. Inconsistencies in lines of occupation.
D. Random errors in measurement (theoretical uncertainty).

All Bearings and Distances shown on the drawing are field measured unless otherwise noted.
The Bearing system for the subject tract is "Assumed"

OBSERVATIONS & CONCLUSIONS:

The following monuments were recovered.
Sandstone – representing the Northwest corner of the Southeast quarter of Section 4, Township 4 North and Range 4 East.
Iron Bolt – representing the Northwest corner of that tract of land described in deed record 238, pg. 76.
(2) Steel pipes – representing the Northeast and the Southeast corners of said tract.
P.K. nail – representing the Southwest corner of said tract.

THEORY OF LOCATION: Monuments as recovered were used to established the deed lines.

A. Variances in the reference monuments:
In many cases the original section corners were not perpetuated or have been obliterated with time and therefore existing topographical features and monuments of modern origin provide the only evidence of the corner's most PROBABLE and/or ACCEPTED POSITION. In the absence of CREDITABLE physical and/or record evidence then proportional measurement has been used to establish the points of division of the section. Section corners found or established by topographical features, monuments of modern origin or proportional measurement will be labeled "Title Corners" (TC) on the plat of survey are subject to undiscovered evidence regarding the true location of said corners. Note that the uncertainty which surrounds a "Title Corner" is inherently passed to any parcel corner dependent upon the position of the section corner.

B. Discrepancies in record descriptions and plats: Field measurements differs somewhat with record calls as shown on survey.

C. Occupation and possession line: Any apparent uncertainties relative to occupation or possession lines are shown on the plat.
In regard to "ACTIVE LINES OF OCCUPATION", item "C" above, Active refers to lines which are marked by visible, obvious, well defined and maintained, man made or placed objects, such as, but not limited to, fences, hedges, retaining walls, etc. The uncertainty cited for a line of occupation is general in nature and is NOT intended to be specific for every point along the line. Therefore, portions of the occupation line may vary from the surveyed line by a distance greater than the uncertainty cited in this report.

D.The theoretical uncertainty (due to random errors in measurements) of the corners of the subject tract established this survey is within the specifications for a Class "C" survey (plus or minus 0.5 feet) as defined in IAC 865.

In Loving Memory of

Sarah “Sally” Margaret Waldkoetter

I'm Free

Don't grieve for me for now I'm free.
I'm following the path God laid for me.
I took his hand when I heard him call.
I turned my back and left it all.

I could not stay another day,
To laugh, to love, to work, or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way,
I've found that peace at the close of day.

If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joy.
A friendship shared, a laugh, a kiss,
Ah yes, these things I too will miss.

Be not burdened with times of sorrow:
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.
My life's been full I've savored much,
Good times, good friends, a loved one's touch.

Perhaps my time seemed all to brief,
Don't lengthen it now with undue grief.
Lift up your heart and share with me,
God wanted me now, he set me free.

Sarah "Sally" Margaret Waldkoetter, 81, of Vallonia, died at 9:14 p.m. Friday, September 21, 2018 at the Hoosier Christian Village, Brownstown.

She was born on August 2, 1937 in Seymour to the late Harry John & Grace Mildred Carter Waldkoetter.

She was a 1955 graduate of Scottsburg High School, and a 1959 graduate of Evansville College with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. In 1965 she graduated from Indiana University with a Master of Science in Nursing and then went on to University of Cincinnati as a Doctoral Candidate. Sally worked at Babies Hospital, Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City from 1959-1964 and was a Professor of Nursing at Columbia University in New York City. From 1965-1968 she was a Professor of Nursing at University of Cincinnati and then from 1968-1993 she was Professor Emeritus at University of Cincinnati.

Sally is survived by many cousins and friends. She was an active member of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Vallonia and was Chairman of the Joe Jackson Hotel Restoration Committee.

Funeral services will be Tuesday, September 25, 2018 at 12:00 p.m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church with Pastor Jordan McKinley officiating.

Friends may visit at the church Tuesday from 10:00 a.m. until service time. Burial will take place at the Vallonia Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be given to the Trinity Lutheran Church. Johnson Funeral Home is handling all arrangements and online condolences may be expressed at www.johnsonfh.net.

The Invocation

🄿 In the name of the Father and of the ☩ Son and of the Holy Spirit.
🄲 Amen.

Remembrance of Baptism

🄿 In Holy Baptism Sarah was clothed with the robe of Christ's righteousness that covered all her sin. St. Paul says: "Do you not know that all of us who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death?

🄲 We were buried therefore with Him by baptism into death, in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might walk in newness of life. For if we have been united with Him in a death like His, we shall certainly be united with Him in a resurrection like His."

Psalm 23 [Read by Pastor]

Kyrie

🄿 Lord, have mercy upon us.
🄲 Christ, have mercy upon us. Lord, have mercy upon us.

Salutation and Collect of the Day

🄿 The Lord be with you.
🄲 And with thy spirit.
🄿 Let us pray.

O God of grace and mercy, we give thanks for Your loving kindness shown to Sarah and to all Your servants who, having finished their course in faith, now rest from their labors. Grant that we also may be faithful unto death and receive the crown of eternal life; through Jesus Christ, Your Son, our Lord, who lives and reigns with You and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and forever.

🄲 Amen.

The Readings

(After each reading: 🄿 This is the Word of the Lord. 🄲 Thanks be to God.)

Old Testament Reading: Psalm 37:5
Epistle Reading: Revelation 14:13

🄿 Alleluia, alleluia. Jesus Christ is the firstborn of the dead;
🄲 to Him be glory and power forever. Alleluia.

🄿 The Holy Gospel according to St. Matthew, the 11th chapter. (Matthew 11:-28-30) 🄲 Glory to You, O Lord.

After the reading:
🄿 This is the Gospel of the Lord.
🄲 Praise to You, O Christ.

The Apostles' Creed

🄿 God has made us His people through our baptism into Christ. Living together in trust and hope, we confess our faith.

🄲 I believe in God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth.
And in Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried. He descended into hell. The third day He rose again from the dead. He ascended into heaven and sits at the right hand of God the Father Almighty. From thence He will come to judge the living and the dead.
I believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy Christian Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and the life ☩ everlasting. Amen.

Hymn of the Day: #664 Fight the Good Fight

The Sermon

The Prayer of the Church

(After each petition: 🄿 Lord, in Your mercy… 🄲 hear our prayer.)

The Lord's Prayer

🄿 Taught by our Lord and trusting His promises, we are bold to pray:

🄲 Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Nunc Dimittis

🄿 "I am the resurrection and the life," says the Lord. "He who believes in Me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in Me will never die."

🄲 Lord, now You let Your servant go in peace; Your word has been fulfilled. My own eyes have seen the salvation which You have prepared in the sight of every people; a light to reveal You to the nations and the glory of Your people Israel. Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and will be forever. Amen.

🄿 "I am the resurrection and the life," says the Lord. "He who believes in Me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in Me will never die."

Concluding Collect

🄿 The Lord be with you.
🄲 And with thy spirit.
🄿 Let us pray.

Lord God, our Shepherd, You gather the lambs of Your flock into the arms of Your mercy and bring them home. Comfort us with the certain hope of the resurrection to everlasting life and a joyful reunion with those we love who have died in the faith; through Jesus Christ, Your Son, our Lord, who lives and reigns with You and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and forever.

🄲 Amen.

Notes for FRANCIS MARION ROUS:
Obituary as published in Vevay Newspaper

Obituary
Francis M. Rous

Francis M. Rous, the eldest son of Captain and Mrs. Mary P. Roous, was born in Vevay on Sept. 23, 1839 and died April 29, 1922. He lacked but a few days of rounding out 83 years of life. He boyhood was spent in this city and all his life within the confines of the county.

He bacame a Mason in 1862, joining the lodge at Bennington and remained a member until his death, being one of the county's oldest Masons in point of years of service.

In early manhood he joined the Methodist Church and loyally kept the faith thence-forward

On November 3, 1862 he married Amelia F. Stewart and she with two children, Louis P. Rous, of Vevay and Mrs. India V. Hizer of Aurora survive him. Another daughter Nannie E. died some years ago.

In the presence of death words are futile things if they are used only to extol the virtues of the departed or give expression of a grief which is at once natural and universal. But if we draw a lesson for the living from the records of the dead then, and then only, do we find justification for what may be uttered here.

What makes up the sum total of true manhood?

Is it place or power? Pomp or show?

Nay, none of these. Faith, Kindliness, Forbearance, Industry, Incorruptible honesty. Devotion to vamily and friends. A willingness to share uncomplainingly all the vicissitudes of life--from the cradle to the grave--these are the things that make a man. And measured by all these tests Francis M. Rous was a man. He lived close to nature and there he learned, as it is nowhere else to be learned, fixedness of purpose, serenity of soul, and a superb and supreme confidence in the beauty and righteousness of life altogether.

He did not rail at fate, nor question that his place in life was what he chose to make it. When he came to man's estate he gladly accepted a man's duties and a man's responsibilities, completely performed a man's work and was content with its rewards. How much more can be said of any human being. True, some mens lives are cast in places where responsibility to their fellow men give varying degrees of opportunity for public service, but within the boson of his family one man may be as truly a nobleman and gentleman as another. Cast in a mold of true gentility, trained to respect the right and opinions of others, our friend was none the less tenacious of his own. He believed and lived by the docrine of the square deal. It is doubtful if he had an enemy in all the world and when we can say this with truth of a man who has lived in the full light of day for more than four score years within a circumscribed locality, what greater tribute can we pay him? Here a man's weaknesses and a man's faults, if he has any will find him out. Not only do they find him out but it is a lamentable trait of humanity to magnify and multiply them. The record of human frailities is almost always unfair to the subject.

Therefore, it is worthy of remark that it is sometimes possible, as is the case here, for a man to live fully and leave naught of bitterness behind. And when the end shall come--as it must come to each and all--no greater boon can be vouchsafed to any man that that he shall lie down and die in the bosom of his family, that his eyes shall vision for their last conscious sight the old familiar scenes, the spots which in infancy, manhood and old age, he has known and loved. When a man goes to "Join the innumerable caravan" there is no port from which he can more safely sail than from under his own roof, sheltered by the branches of his own trees and with farwells nodded to him by his own flowers.

Death under these circumstances is sublime.

Beyond sublimity we may not go.

Notes for GENEVA AGNES AYERS:
Written by Geneva (Stewart) Ayers and read at her funeral by Rev. McCoy

When on these lines in future years, You cast your smiles, Perhaps your tears.
Let thoughts of me your mind engage and think of me who wrote this page.

Remember me when death shall close, My eyelids in their last repose.

From They Say and Do In The Country , by Charles E. Heberhart, Madison Courier, June 28, 1938.

Some time ago a paragraph in an historical note on Jefferson County piques the curosity of the writer. It was an invitation to his speculative imagination. It envisioned things so exotic that it seemed fantastic.

This paragraph simply stated that along about 100 years ago silk worms had been grown, thread spun from their cocoons, fabric woven for dress materials and quite an industry developed. Though short lived. In the village of Paris on the northwestern border of this county/ Also that a certain individual, one Dr.-----Foster, initials and address omitted , had a piece of this cloth.

Yesterday the writer went to Paris, Old Paris, if you please, to do a little verifying. The historical paragraph was written quite a few years back and the job promised to be difficult. The reward was greater than the writer had any right to expect.

In the first place he found still living the grandaughter and the grandson of the maker of the silk who had first hand knowledge of how it was done. In the second he got a picture of life in the early days of the last century that is both interesting and informative. In the third place he found the family tied in with the beginnings of river navigation by steamboat and brings to light a chapter in the history of one branch of the Roosevelt family that is vaguely known, if known at all.

The two central figures in this experience yeaterday are Mrs. Jennie Stewart (Grandmother Stewart) 86 years old and her brother, Leonidas Zenor Ayers, 78. Mrs. Stewart lived a few years of her life in West Madison, while Mr. Ayers has spent almost all his days in Paris.

Paris itself is quaint and intriguing. Its streets stand unchanged except to be improved since the early part of the 19th century. Down the main road of the town Gen John H. Morgan's flankers and part of his main army rode 75 years ago next month and only one house that is new since then has changed the view Morgans men must have had that day.

In a little brick house off the main road lives Mrs. Stewart. She was doing some canning when the writer dropped in on her yesterday. Despite her advanced years she is active, cheerful and as such in tune with today as any of those sixty years her junior.

Mrs. Stewart smilled kindly at the writer and invited him in. She gave a final check on proceedings in the kitchen and then with a cheerful smile and gesture, as much as to say "fire-away", sat down for a chat,

"Yes, it's true silk cloth was made here", she said. It was before my day but it was in the family and my aunts were among those who wore dresses out of our homemade product."

"The weaving of the silk cloth, also the spinning and the dyeing were done by my grandmother, Mrs. David Zenor. This was back in 1829. My grandfather, David Zener, planted a long line of Mulberry Trees, known as the Monte Carlo variety, along the property east of town now belonging to John Ray. Later he brought in silk worms. They had great difficulty getting them. They were fed on the leaves of the mulberry and the silk gathered in their cocoons later.

"They apparently quite prolific for the industry grew very rapidly. My grandmother made the row. the cloth coming about--here she spread her hands to indicate the size, which was about 14 inches--so wide."

"She made her own dyes to dye the material with. These dyes were generally good for woollen materials she also made. For one color of red she grew 'Madder' and for another red she used 'cochineal' those little red insects, you know, dissolving the bugs in muriatic acid and using a few drops of the drained off acid to set the dye. For blue, she used indigo, making a solution that she set with a kind of yeast. Yellow she made from the bark of a sweet apple tree. By putting the yellow and blue together she got her green.

"And let me say the dyes were permanent, as well as beautiful. I have seen much of the fabric that was existant when I was a girl and it was fresh and unfaded for years after it was made."

"My grandmother had seven daughters,--Lydia, Elizabeth, Sarah, Harriet(my mother), Malidna, Catherine and Betsy(Magdaline). She, among other things made a silk dress for each of the sisters. They were known as 'Changeable silk' and very pretty. When Elizabeth got married she made a special dress for her and for the skirt alone, it took six widths.

(This would be about 64 or so inches).

"My grandmother made the silk cloth for years on her looms for which special steel parts had to be imported. Then came the products of the large silk mills and ended that business. The silk was widely known and the materials were very beautiful."

From Mrs. Stewart's description the material was much like what is known as shantung, slightly coarse and heavy. She said the panels of Eliazbeths' wedding dress were later distributed among her sisters as keepsakes. Mrs. Stewart in turn, has given her section to her grand-children by whom it is very cherished.

"Probably one of the most difficult things Grandmother did" said Mrs. Stewart, "was the making of plaid silks and woolens, this called for great skill in setting up the frames. For the woolen goods, the fleece of the Marino sheep imported by Grandfather was used. All of the girls had beautiful woolen dresses, as well as silk and a certain type of flannel dress goods my Grandmother made."

Mrs. Stewarts' Grandmother enjoys probably a unique place in state history, as well as her Grandfather, for originating the idea, so far as it is known, they were the first and only ones in the west then to raise silkworms, spin the thread and weave it into cloth.

Notes for CHARLES STEWART:
Recollections on the Familys History

By Charles Stewart

(This information is a compilation gathered from several conversations by his grandson, John S. Willis, over a period spanning the last two years of his life. Despite being in his nineties at the time, he was very lucid and enjoyed excellent recall.)

1. My father's family:

My grandfather was JOHN STEWART. He and his wife, Maryette Munn, rode on horseback to Indiana from Westmoreland County Pennsylvania. He left Pennsylvania because he was being raised by an Uncle who mistreated him. They married and settled in Vevay, Switzerland County, Indiana, My dad's three brothers Louis (John), William, and Theofield (know as Tip) were born in Vevay, along with his three sisters, one was Magdaline Stewart who married Marcus Ricketts. One was married to Lewis J. Adams.
Uncle Louis Stewart was a surgeon in New Albany, IN. He was the oldest and in addition to being a physician, owned a drug store in New Albany. My father Simeon Stewart worked in Louis's drugstore as a young man. My grandfather John Stewart was, prior to getting married a flat boat man . He worked from Pittsburgh, PA to New Orleans, LA. They would would ride the "Flatboats" to New Orleans and return by steamboat.
Louis served as a surgeon in the Union Army during the Civil War. My father Simeon first married a Jewish lady by the last name of Abrams. They had three daughters Pearl, Jennie and Emma. Emma married Bill Maynard. They had two sons, Ken and Kermit and daughters Trixie, Bessie and Pearl. Ken and Kermit became movie actors, mostly Westerns (my grandson John remembers seeing several of their movies on TV in the 1950's.)

2. My Mothers Family:

Nicholas Baker, my Great Great Grandfather, was the engineer on the 1st steamboat to operate on the Ohio River. The boat was named the New Orleans and was owed by Nicholas Roosevelt, great grandfather of President Teddy Roosevelt. This steamboat started in Pittsburgh, PA and went down to the falls at Louisville, Ky. Indians on the riverbank were scared and ran back into the woods upon seeing the steamboat. The Bakers were related, or in someway connected with an Ash family who operated steam ferrys in Vevay, Indiana.
Baker's daughter Pheobe married my great grandfather, David Zener, after he came back from the Battle of New Orleans, in the War of 1812. He was raised in Cincinnati, OH area. He was a captain in the Army and may have served in an Ohio Unit. He walked back to Indiana, where he settled, but on the way he suffered frostbite and almost froze to death. He was saved by a tribe of Indians who took care of him. They made wooden rockers for him to walk with and saved his feet. He lived with the Indians for three years and taught them to garden and do many other things. The Indians wanted to adopt him into the tribe, but he told them he was a white man and needed to return home.
After returning to Indiana my great grandfather Zener built a wool carding machine and many other things. He was a miller and built machinery for milling. He also raised silk worms.
My mother, Geneva (Jennie) Ayers, was 1st married to Bernard Flood, a railroad builder, who was working on the old Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, which later became the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He and my grandmother moved into Kentucky where he built more railroads.
Mr. Flood was a Catholic and mother joined that church. They had a son who died at an early age and then a daughter, Josephine Flood. They then moved back east and lived in the Shenandoah Valley, where Mr. Flood built another railroad line. My mother spoke of how beautiful the scenery was there and how warm the climate was.
Mr. Flood had a drinking problem and mother was forced to leave him, returning to live with her parents. Her father Joseph Ayers, fought for the North in the Civil War. He was commanding officer at Camp Morton, which was located on "E" Street, Indianapolis, IN and never left Indiana during the war. He trained soldiers while at Camp Morton.

3. Episodes in a Long Life:

I recall when I was five years old that my dad Simeon Stewart, was in charge of the fairgrounds in Madison, Jefferson County, IN. We had a black porter, Walter Smith, who had been a servant for General U.S. Grant during the Civil War. He took care of me as a young boy and I loved him very much. We lived in a hotel at the fairgrounds. I recall sharing sandwiches with our pet cat. My brothers Ben and Frank and I used to slide down

We had a black porter, Walter Smith, who had been a servant for General U.S. Grant during the Civil War. He took care of me as a young boy and I loved him very much. We lived in a hotel at the fairgrounds. I recall sharing sandwiches with our pet cat. My brothers Ben and Frank and I used to slide down the beer chute in the basement of the hotel. I recall one day Ben pulled Frank and I in a little red wagon, down a hill towards the Ohio River, there was a sharp axe in the wagon and my mother was scared.

We moved on a farm, west of Paris Crossing, Jennings County, IN. I recall going out to a stack of straw and was frightened when a wolf jumped out. Some of the men chased it with dogs, but never caught it. The wolf had been shot in the leg before I saw it. I was five or six years old at the time. We moved to Hill Town about a half mile west of Paris Crossing, In, where we lived for a brief period of time, then moved to Old Paris, IN where I started school

In 1900, we moved a half mile east of Commiskey, IN, on the George Corya Farm, where we lived for about three years. My two brothers and I walked to Paris Crossing, IN where we saw out first movie. It was a distance of about 5 miles each way. I don't recall the name of the movie. It was shown on the second floor of a hardware store. I was about nine years old at the time. My brother Frank Stewart and I were attacked by a wild boar while walking in the woods near where we lived. Frank picked up a club and hit the boar on the nose and it ran off, saving us from harm. Our family took in timber cutters where we lived. They cut down a large oak tree and found the scalp of a man with red hair inside. They estimated the tree had about fifty years of growth around the scalp.

In 1902, we moved over Charles F. Lurton's Grocery on first or Main street, in Commiskey, In. Dad brought in a quail with a broken wing. Mother set the wing and we had a nice pet until it was well enough to fly. Dad took it out in the woods and let it loose.

In 1904, we moved to Paris Crossing, IN where we lived until 1906. Edgar Watson was the agent for the B & O Railroad. The station where he worked was the hangout for the local kids. He hired me to take care of the the switch lights for ten cents per day. I filled the lights with lard oil. He also started an orchestra that played in all the local events. I played the first mandolin. He wanted me to become a telegraph operator for the railroad but I didn't. He was a good man who kept a lot of young boys from getting into trouble. One rainy March day a gang of us boys hopped a freight train at Paris Crossing, IN. and rode nearly to Louisville, KY. Someone hollered we were going into Louisville and we all jumped off. Bob Craig landed in a water filled ditch and we had to wring him out. We then hopped a ride bace to Paris Crossing. We were about eleven or twelve years old at the time. One day we got lucky. A freight train came by and stopped near us. A "brakey' got off and broke into a car load of watermellons and got a big one out. When he tried to jump back on the caboose the wartermelon slipped out of his hands. Seven of us boys had all the watermelon we could eat.

My brother Ben Stewart and I rode the train to Mitchell, IN to visit the Squire family. Their mother was a sister of fathers first wife. We called them cousins but they wern't. One day while riding the cement train to the quarries, we walked over to the White River. We borrowed a skiff and crossed the river where there was a big watermelon patch. We got seven watermelons. We saw two men in a tent watching the watermelon parth. They both had shotguns.

In 1906, dad bought a house in Paris, Jennings Co., IN. It had been used as a parsonage for the Methodist Church. He paid $300.00 for this house. This is the house I painted a picture of. It was a fine old house built of brick and had 21/2 inch solid poplar doors and window frames. We were the third owners. It was built in the 1800's. I think the historical society has made a shrine of this house. The house is on the west side of 2nd street, across from a school. This was the first school I attended. Mother and I planted two hard maples in the front yard, which made beautiful shade threes. This is the house I left to live with my half sister Jose, in Rushville, IN. One night while walking home from Paris Crossing IN at about 9:00pm, I saw a meteor go by so close over my head that I could feel the heat. It landed about a quarter of a mile south and burned a place on the ground. It smelled like sulpher.

In May 1907, my brother Frank Stewart joined the Navy. In June 1907, my brother Ben and I joined the Navy in Seymour, IN. We were sent to Indianapolis, IN where I was turned down the beer chute in the basement of the hotel. I recall one day Ben pulled Frank and I in a little red wagon, down a hill towards the Ohio River, there was a sharp zag in the wagon and my mother was scared.

We moved on a farm, west of Paris Crossing, Jennings County, IN. I recall going out to a stack of straw and was frightened when a wolf [illegible] dogs, but never caught it. We moved to Hill Town about a half mile west of Paris Crossing, In, where we lived for a brief period of time, then moved to Old Paris, IN where I started school

In 1900, we moved a half mile east of Commiskey, IN, on the George Corya Farm, where we [illegible] and I walked to Paris Crossing, IN where we saw out first movie. It was a distance of about 5 miles each way. I don't recall the name of the movie. It was shown on the second floor of a [illegible] years old at the time. My brother Frank Stewart and I were attacked by a wild boar while walking in the woods near where we lived. Frank picked up a club and hit the boar on the nose and it ran off, saving us from harm. Our family took in timber cutters where we lived. They cut down a large oak tree and found the scalp of a man with red hair inside. They estimated the tree had about fifty years of growth around the scalp.

In 1902, we moved over Charles F. Lutton's Grocery on First or Main street, in Commiskey, IN. Dad brought in a quail with a broken wing. Mother set the wing and we had a nice pet until it was well enough to fly. Dad took it out in the woods and let it loose.

In 1904, we moved to Paris Crossing, IN where we lived until 1906. Edgar Watson was the [illegible] where he worked was the hangout for the local kids. He hired me to take care of the the switch lights for ten cents per day. I filled the lights with lard oil. He also started an orchestra that played in all the local events. I played the first mandolin. He wanted me to become a telegraph operator for the railroad but I didn't. He was a good man who kept a lot of young boys from getting into trouble. One rainy Sunday a gang of us boys hopped a freight train at Paris Crossing, IN. and rode nearly to Louisville, KY. Someone hollered we were going into Louisville and we all jumped off. Bob Craig [illegible] We then hopped a ride back to Paris Crossing. We were about eleven or twelve years old at the time. [illegible] A freight train came by and stopped near us. A "brakey' got off and broke into a car load of watermelons and got a big one out. When he tried to jump back on the caboose the watermelon slipped out of his hands. Seven of us boys had all the watermelon we could eat.

My brother Ben Stewart and I rode the train to Mitchell, IN to visit the Squire family. Their mother was a sister of fathers first wife. We called them cousins but they weren't. One day while riding the cement train to the quarries, we walked over to the White River. We borrowed a skiff and crossed the river where [illegible] seven watermelons. We saw two men in a tent watching the watermelon patch. They both had shotguns.

In 1906, dad bought a house in Paris, Jennings Co., IN. It had been used as a parsonage for the Methodist Church. He paid $300.00 for this house. This is the house I painted a picture of. It was a fine old house built of brick and had 21/2 inch solid poplar doors [illegible] was built in the 1800's. I think the historical society has made a shrine of this house. The house is on the west side of 2nd street, across from a school. [illegible] Mother and I planted two hard maples in the front yard, which made beautiful shade trees. This is the house I left to live with my half sister Jose, in Rushville, IN. One night while walking home from Paris Crossing IN at about 9:00pm, I saw a meteor go by so close over my head that I could feel the heat. It landed about a quarter of a mile south and burned a place on the ground. It smelled like sulpher.

In May 1907, my brother Frank Stewart joined the Navy. In June 1907, my brother Ben and I joined the Navy in Seymour, IN. We were sent to Indianapolis, IN where I was turned down because of the vision in my one eye. The recruiter said "you SOB you're bline: and sent me home. Frank was sent to the Atlantic fleet and served four years. He was on the "North Dakota" and the scout cruiser "Birmingham." He was a coal passer and later an engineer. Ben was sent to the Pacific Fleet and served on the "West Virginia" he jumped ship while in Colon, South America. He got a bad conduct discharge from the Navy in 1908. He was on a ship that called at the port of San Francisco, CA> shortly after the earthquake.

One day Bob Craig, one of my friends, and I were going out of the house. I was carrying a .22 rifle and it went off accidentally. I shot myself in the foot. I had to sit for six weeks with my foot higher than my head. Dr. Gaddy probed for two inches but couldn't find the bullet. I was fifteen at the time. I carried that bullet in foot until I was twenty. Then Dr. Will Smith cut it out. We had apet rooster. It would perch on the arm of my chair. When it wanted in the house it would knock on the door with its beak. Because it sounded like a person knocking on the door, mother would have to let it in.

In September, 1909, I went to live with my half-sister, Jose Arbuckle, who lived at 405 N. Sexton Street, Rushville, Rush Co. IN> She was my favorite. Her husband got me a job as a "cub" painter with the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. (I&CTC). I&CTC was an electric rail line. I served my apprenticeship as a coach painter. This line (the I&CTC) originally ran all the way to Cincinnati, OH, but stopped in Connersille, IN. Another spur of the I&CTC went to Greensburg, IN.

My brother Ben Stewart married Katherine Colvin in the fall of 1910. That same year I bought a fine violin from Ferdinand Schaeffer, conductor of the Indianapolis Philharmonic Orchestra. I paid $100.00 for it. I studied violin with Guy Rubush, who gave lessons to raise money while he was studying to be a doctor.

In 1911, I saw my first airplane it looked like a box kite. The pilot was out front in the open. It was flying from the direction of Wright Field, Dayton OH and headed in the direction of St. Louis, MO.

In 1912, I saw Jan Kubeelc, a concert violinist; play at the Murat Shrine in Indianapolis, IN. He was wonderful. Later the same year I saw another violinist, Eugene Ysaye play at the Murat Shrine. He was also good, but not as good as Kubeelc.

I left the I&CTC and visited my parents until March, 13th. My brother Frank Stewart and I started for Indianapolis and we got caught in the big flood of 1913. We got as far as Shelbyville, on the "Big Four" train and found that the bridge over the Blue River was washed out. We finally got across the river and got to indianapolis, where we stayed with Aunt "Mag" and Uncle Wilbur Malcomb. They were living at 5940 University Avenue, Irvington Section, Indianapolis, IN. My brother Ben Stewart and his wife Katherine had a son Colvin Stewart during this same flood. Their house was surrounded with water at the time and they called him their "flood baby".

My brother Frank Stewart married Della Theobald. They lived at 721 S. Audubon Street, Indianapolis, IN. I boarded with them until fall. I then returned to Rushville, IN and went back to work for the I&CIC. Frank was working for Uncle Wilber Malcomb in Indianaplis, IN. doing carpentry work. It was still 1913.

My brother Frank and I then opened a general painting shop at 400 S. Audubon Street, Indianapolis, IN. There we did sign and house painting. We shared a phone with Perry Wysong, a barber who was a drunk. One day I looked in his shop and he was sitting with a towel around his head. He had put a sign on the door saying "home sick." The phone was on the wall between us. We painted our Uncle and Aunt Malcomb's house. While I working on the dog house I heard Frank, who was up on the roof, yell. He had been stung by a wasp on the nose, which swelled to twice its normal size and did it hurt.

One Sunday my brother Frank and I walked out to the Indianapolis Speedway, which was about 8 miles. We saw "Wild Bob" Burman break the world speed record of 79.4 MPH. The Speedway had only been open for three years at the time. Although I've been to see the time trials several times over th years, this was the only time I went to see the actual because of the vision in my one eye. The recruiter said "you are you're 111ness and sent me home. Frank was sent to the Atlantic fleet and served four years. He was on the "North Dakota" and the battleship "Mississippi." He was first a coal passer and later an engineer. [illegible] "Virginia" he jumped ship while in Colon, South America. He got a bad conduct discharge from the Navy in 1908. He was on a ship that called at the port of San Francisco, CA> shortly after the earthquake.

Prior to my brother Frank getting married, he and I "batched" it for awhile. One week we lived on brick cheese and olive oil. One day we looked outside and saw an undertaker. Frank said "My God they're after us." Franks girl Della, had a sister in law, Shirley Corey, who worked for Mrs. Shipp, as a companion. Shirley and I started going together. One night we went to Riverside Park and did not get home until 2:00 AM. When I got home Frank and Della were locked out. They were on the back porch crying and were ready to shoot me. I worked with Frank until fall and then returned to work at the I&CTC

i. LARRY JACK[7] STEWART, b. March 05, 1942, Anderson, Madison County, Indiana; d. October 19, 1999, Blue Lagoon, Dade County, Florida.

Notes for LARRY JACK STEWART:
Larry was kept by my father Earl Colvin Stewart and I was adopted to Charles and Frances Smith when I was a few months old and Larry was 2 years old. Larry was raised more by grandparents Benjamin and Katherine Stewart. At around age 16 he hitch-hiked to Indiana and found our mother who he had been told was dead. Larry graduated from High School, and received a scolarship to UCLA, unfortunately he dropped out when the Hippy movement began and never dropped back in. When we met in 1978 I was 34 and he was 36, he lived in San Francisco CA. and drove a taxi for a living. He lived on Mission in the heart of Haight Ashbury. At some point prior to our meeting he had an electrical contractors liscense. He was very interested in Eastern Religion and had traveled to India to study, he got mixed up with a bogus Guru in Oregon and went there frequently to help with their communtiy. Larry smoked dope and drank beer but was never drunk when he was around me. He also obeyed my rule no dope around my children. I kept sporatically in touch with him untill my divorce in 1984. In the eighties he was beaten and mugged by robbers while driving his taxi and at some point after that he came back to Indiana, where he got in some trouble in Rushville and contacted Tom and Marybelle for help. Then after they refused to help he moved to Florida. After his move to Florida he again contacted them for help and received none. When Marybelle became sick she asked me to try and locate Larry my search started with the social security death index where I found he died in Florida in 1999. Further searching found he had been in the Guardianship program and was in an assisted living program in Hialeah located at 1760 E. 1st Ave. Hialeah. This program cares for the indigent with their SSI and puts back a certain amount for burial.

More About LARRY JACK STEWART:
Burial: Forestlawn Central Cemetery, Garden of Dreams Ft. Lauderdale, FL
Cause of Death: Asperation pneumonia, Respiratory Failure, Cardiopulmonary Arrest
Medical Information: Badly beaten while a taxi driver in San Francisco during a robbery, causing a skull fracture. Lived pretty much as a street person for some time. Died in the care of the Florida Guardianship Program.

Marriage: June 04, 1968, Norco, California
Marriage contract: July 30, 1967, T.J. Mexico

Marriage Notes for SHEILA STEWART and JOHN JOHNSON:
Three strikes your out. John was old for his years and very responisble. He took on Sheila and 2 children. He is a Logger by trade and we lived in the North Woods, ten miles back on a logging road from the nearest pavement. It was nearly 20 miles to the nearest store in the little mountain town of Oak Run, California. We moved to Northern Idaho and since work for him was sporatic at first, Sheila got a job in Electronics but the commute to work was 50 miles each way. We bought 5 acres of property and built a log cabin at the base of HooDoo Mountain outside of Blanchard, Idaho. He tried his hand at fur trapping, (which Sheila Hated) killing to eat is one thing, but I like animals too much for that to work out. The commute to work was horrible, we had no electricity, running water or plumbing. So getting up at 4;00 and getting ready for work was very difficult. Ever put on makeup by the light of a coal oil lamp? I felt since John was young he needed to do these things so he would not have to say later in life "I wish I had" plus I learned alot. I found I could not do without the trappings of modern life and I hated the commute in the Northern Idaho winter. So we agreed to split up. He stayed for awile then sold the property and moved back to California. I came to Indiana. We are still good friends.

DR. JOHN L. STEWART.

Passes Away Last Night After a Long Illness.

Dr. John L. Stewart, one of the best known and oldest physicians of the city died at 10:45 o'clock last night at his home, 521 Bank, after an illness of several months of stomach trouble. For the past ten days, he had been virtually starving to death, his only nourishment being an occasional sup of water. He was conscious throughout his illness, realized that death was near and retained his mental faculties almost to the last moment.

Dr. Stewart was born near Vevay, Switzerland county, October 28, 1831, and was in the sixty-fourth year of his age at his death. Shortly after the civil war broke out, he enlisted as a private in the Fiftieth Indiana Volunteers. At that time he had considerable knowledge of medicine and was detached from his regiment to enter the hospital service. He was first assigned to the hospital corps at Bardstown, Ky., and later was assigned to duty in the hospitals in this city. In 1864 and 1865 he studied medicine at the Kentucky School of Medicine, graduating in 1865. Shortly after, he and John Sigmon, formed a partnership and conducted a drug store in this city for several years. After retiring from the drug business, he engaged in the practice of medicine, continuing until his last illness.

Dr Stewart never married and always made his home with Mr and Mrs. John Sigmon. He leaves three brothers, viz., William Stewart, of Saltilloville, Simeon Stewart, of Paris Crossing, and Tip Stewart, of Alexandria, and two sisters, Mrs Marguerite Ricketts, of this city, and Mrs. Amelia Rouse, of Mt. Sterling, Ind.

He was a member of New Albany Lodge of Masons and was also one of the leading members of the Baptist Tabernacle. He was a sincere Christian gentleman, a successful practitioner, noted for his strict integrity and was highly respected by all who knew him.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Baptist Tabernacle, under the auspices of New Albany Lodge of Masons.

You will you not know how much

Mabel Ayers Youngman.

Mabel Ayers Youngman came as a little flower into the home of Leonidas and Martha Ayers, March 18, 1882. The flower graced the home until she left father and mother for the man she loved, William E. Youngman. Unto this union was born one son, Leonidas. She joined the Baptist church at the age of fourteen, and ever remained a faithful member. After long and patient suffering she fell asleep March 21, 1919. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, son, father, mother, sister and a host of relatives and friends.

Her sweet words and dying thought
Were all for those who knew not naught,
But now alas, she's waiting there
With beckoning hands to loved ones here.

FROM THE FAMILY.

Kept by Jennie Ayers from the funeral of Mabel, daughter of Leonidas Ayers and Martha J. (Lett) Ayers.

He was born July 29, 1849 in Switzerland Co., Indiana, and died February 24, 1925 in Paris, Jennings Co., Indiana.

Notes for GENEVA AGNES AYERS:
Written by Geneva (Stewart) Ayers and read at her funeral by Rev. McCoy

When on these lines in future years, You cast your smiles, Perhaps your tears.
Let thoughts of me your mind engage and think of me who wrote this page.

Remember me when death shall close, My eyelids in their last repose.

From They Say and Do In The Country , by Charles E. Heberhart, Madison Courier, June 28, 1938.

Some time ago a paragraph in an historical note on Jefferson County piques the curosity of the writer. It was an invitation to his speculative imagination. It envisioned things so exotic that it seemed fantastic.

This paragraph simply stated that along about 100 years ago silk worms had been grown, thread spun from their cocoons, fabric woven for dress materials and quite an industry developed. Though short lived. In the village of Paris on the northwestern border of this county/ Also that a certain individual, one Dr.-----Foster, initials and address omitted , had a piece of this cloth.

Yesterday the writer went to Paris, Old Paris, if you please, to do a little verifying. The historical paragraph was written quite a few years back and the job promised to be difficult. The reward was greater than the writer had any right to expect.

In the first place he found still living the granddaughter and the grandson of the maker of the silk who had first hand knowledge of how it was done. In the second he got a picture of life in the early days of the last century that is both interesting and informative. In the third place he found the family tied in with the beginnings of river navigation by steamboat and brings to light a chapter in the history of one branch of the Roosevelt family that is vaguely known, if known at all.

The two central figures in this experience yeaterday are Mrs. Jennie Stewart (Grandmother Stewart) 86 years old and her brother, Leonidas Zener Ayers, 78. Mrs. Stewart lived a few years of her life in West Madison, while Mr. Ayers has spent almost all his days in Paris.

Paris itself is quaint and intriguing. Its streets stand unchanged except to be improved since the early part of the 19th century. Down the main road of the town Gen John H. Morgan's flankers and part of his main army rode 75 years ago next month and only one house that is new since then has changed the view Morgans men must have had that day.

In a little brick house off the main road lives Mrs. Stewart. She was doing some canning when the writer dropped in on her yesterday. Despite her advanced years she is active, cheerful and as such in tune with today as any of those sixty years her junior.

Mrs. Stewart smilled kindly at the writer and invited him in. She gave a final check on proceedings in the kitchen and then with a cheerful smile and gesture, as much as to say "fire-away", sat down for a chat.

"Yes, it's true silk cloth was made here", she said. It was before my day but it was in the family and my aunts were among those who wore dresses out of our homemade product."

"The weaving of the silk cloth, also the spinning and the dyeing were done by my grandmother, Mrs. David Zener. This was back in 1829. My grandfather, David Zener, planted a long line of Mulberry Trees, known as the Monte Carlo variety, along the property east of town now belonging to John Ray. Later he brought in silk worms. They had great difficulty getting them. They were fed on the leaves of the mulberry and the silk gathered in their cocoons later.

"They apparently quite prolific for the industry grew very rapidly. My grandmother made the row. the cloth coming about--here she spread her hands to indicate the size, which was about 14 inches--so wide."

"She made her own dyes to dye the material with. These dyes were generally good for woollen materials she also made. For one color of red she grew 'Madder' and for another red she used 'cochineal' those little red insects, you know, dissolving the bugs in muriatic acid and using a few drops of the drained off acid to set the dye. For blue, she used indigo, making a solution that she set with a kind of yeast. Yellow she made from the bark of a sweet apple tree. By putting the yellow and blue together she got her green.

"And let me say the dyes were permanent, as well as beautiful. I have seen much of the fabric that was existant when I was a girl and it was fresh and unfaded for years after it was made."

"My grandmother had seven daughters,--Lydia, Elizabeth, Sarah, Harriet(my mother), Malidna, Catherine and Betsy(Magdaline). She, among other things made a silk dress for each of the sisters. They were known as 'Changeable silk' and very pretty. When Elizabeth got married she made a special dress for her and for the skirt alone, it took six widths. (This would be about 64 or so inches).

"My grandmother made the silk cloth for years on her looms for which special steel parts had to be imported. Then came the products of the large silk mills and ended that business. The silk was widely known and the materials were very beautiful."

From Mrs. Stewart's description the material was much like what is known as shantung, slightly coarse and heavy. She said the panels of Eliazbeths' wedding dress were later distributed among her sisters as keepsakes. Mrs. Stewart in turn, has given her section to her grand-children by whom it is very cherished.

"Probably one of the most difficult things Grandmother did" said Mrs. Stewart, "was the making of plaid silks and woolens, this called for great skill in setting up the frames. For the woolen goods, the fleece of the Marino sheep imported by Grandfather was used. All of the girls had beautiful woolen dresses, as well as silk and a certain type of flannel dress goods my Grandmother made."

Mrs. Stewarts' Grandmother enjoys probably a unique place in state history, as well as her Grandfather, for originating the idea, so far as it is known, they were the first and only ones in the west then to raise silkworms, spin the thread and weave it into cloth.

11. LEONIDAS^{10} AYERS (JOSEPH^{9}, JOHN^{8}, JEDEDIAH^{7}, JEDEDIAH^{6}, EDWARD^{5}, SAMUEL^{4}, JOHN^{3}, JOHN AYER^{2} EYER, THOMAS^{1}) was born February 08, 1860, and died June 18, 1940 in Paris , Jennings Co., Indiana. He married MARTHA J. LETT December 09, 1879, daughter of WHITFIELD LETT and SARAH HUNT. She was born January 1859, and died November 23, 1932 in Paris , Jennings Co., Indiana.

Notes for LEONIDAS AYERS:
From They Say and Do In The Country by Charles E. Heberhart, Madison Courier, June 28,1938.

Leonidas Zener Ayers, Mrs. Stewart's brother, had earlier told the writer much that was confirmed by his sister. He added some matters she overlooked. Among other things he called attention to the widespread scattering of mulberry trees though the district at one time, but that a blight of some kind was now rapidly destroying them.

He told something of his grandfather's life and recalled that he once maintained a large still near Paris from which he made Whiskey in such quantities that he hauled it from there to Madison where he built flatboats and shipped the Whiskey to the market in New Orleans.

He also told of an amusing incident in the life of his grandfather, at the time of Morgan's raid. It seems that his uncle, while riding a handsome horse, stumbled into the hands of Morgan's men. One of them ordered Mr. Zener to dismount and shifting saddles told Mr. Zener to beat it with his foundered horse. On this worn out animal, Mr. Zener arrived home. His father, in turn was furious with anger and mounting another fine animal rode after Morgan;s outfit to demand the return of his horse. A little later he, too, returned home on a broken down horse. They had covered him with guns and made him also mount one of their nags while they rode off with his good horse.

The Zeners and the Ayers have a long military record, members of their family having served in wars on the American Continent since the Seventeenth Century.

And the almost anonymous Mr. Foster, of the historical note that aroused the writer's curiousity, according to Mrs. Stewart, is the manElizabeth Zener married and the piece of silk cloth in his possession, part of her Wedding Gown.

Notes for CHARLES STEWART:
Recollections on the Familys History

By Charles Stewart

(This information is a compilation gathered from several conversations by his grandson, John S. Willis, over a period spanning the last two years of his life. Despite being in his nineties at the time, he was very lucid and enjoyed excellent recall.)

1. My father's family:

My grandfather was JOHN STEWART. He and his wife, Maryette Munn, rode on horseback to Indiana from Westmoreland County Pennsylvania. He left Pennsylvania because he was being raised by an Uncle who mistreated him. They married and settled in Vevay, Switzerland County, Indiana, My dad's three brothers Louis (John), William, and Theofield (know as Tip) were born in Vevay, along with his three sisters, one was Magdaline Stewart who married Marcus Ricketts. One was married to Lewis J. Adams.
Uncle Louis Stewart was a surgeon in New Albany, IN. He was the oldest and in addition to being a physician, owned a drug store in New Albany. My father Simeon Stewart worked in Louis's drugstore as a young man. My grandfather John Stewart was, prior to getting married a flat boat man . He worked from Pittsburgh, PA to New Orleans, LA. They would would ride the "flatboats" to New Orleans and return by steamboat.
Louis served as a surgeon in the Union Army during the Civil War. My father Simeon first married a Jewish lady by the last name of Abrams. They had three daughters Pearl, Jennie and Emma. Emma married Bill Maynard. They had two sons, Ken and Kermit and daughters Trixie, Bessie and Pearl. Ken and Kermit became movie actors, mostly Westerns (my grandson John remembers seeing several of their movies on TV in the 1950's.)

2. My Mothers Family:

Nicholas Baker, my Great Great Grandfather, was the engineer on the 1st steamboat to operate on the Ohio River. The boat was named the New Orleans and was owed by Nicholas Roosevelt, great grandfather of President Teddy Roosevelt. This steamboat started in Pittsburgh, PA and went down to the falls at Louisville, Ky. Indians on the riverbank were scared and ran back into the woods upon seeing the steamboat. The Bakers were related, or in someway connected with an Ash family who operated steam ferrys in Vevay, Indiana.
Baker's daughter Pheobe married my great grandfather, David Zener, after he came back from the Battle of New Orleans, in the War of 1812. He was raised in Cincinnati, OH area. He was a captain in the Army and may have served in an Ohio Unit. He walked back to Indiana, where he settled, but on the way he suffered frostbite and almost froze to death. He was saved by a tribe of Indians who took care of him. They made wooden rockers for him to walk with and saved his feet. He lived with the Indians for three years and taught them to garden and do many other things. The Indians wanted to adopt him into the tribe, but he told them he was a white man and needed to return home.

After returning to Indiana my great grandfather Zener built a wool carding machine and many other things. He was a miller and built machinery for milling. He also raised silk worms.
My mother, Geneva (Jennie) Ayers, was 1st married to Bernard Flood, a railroad builder, who was working on the old Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, which later became the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He and my grandmother moved into Kentucky where he built more railroads.
Mr. Flood was a Catholic and mother joined that church. They had a son who died at an early age and then a daughter, Josephine Flood. They then moved back east and lived in the Shenandoah Valley, where Mr. Flood built another railroad line. My mother spoke of how beautiful the scenery was there and how warm the climate was.
Mr. Flood had a drinking problem and mother was forced to leave him, returning to live with her parents. Her father Joseph Ayers, fought for the North in the Civil War. He was a commanding officer at Camp Morton, which was located on "E" Street, Indianapolis, IN and never left Indiana during the war. He trained soldiers while at Camp Morton.

3. Episodes in a Long Life:

I recall when I was five years old that my dad Simeon Stewart, was in charge of the fairgrounds in Madison, Jefferson County, IN. We had a black porter, Walter Smith, who had been a servant for General U.S. Grant during the Civil War. He took care of me as a young boy and I loved him very much. We lived in a hotel at the fairgrounds. I recall sharing sandwiches with our pet cat. My brothers Ben and Frank and I used to slide down the beer chute in the basement of the hotel. I recall one day Ben pulled Frank and I in a little red wagon, down a hill towards the Ohio River, there was a sharp axe in the wagon and my mother was scared.

We moved on a farm, west of Paris Crossing, Jennings County, IN. I recall going out to a stack of straw and was frightened when a wolf jumped out. Some of the men chased it with dogs, but never caught it. The wolf had been shot in the leg before I saw it. I was five or six years old at the time. We moved to Hill Town about a half mile west of Paris Crossing, In, where we lived for a brief period of time, then moved to Old Paris, IN where I started school

In 1900, we moved a half mile east of Commiskey, IN, on the George Corya Farm, where we lived for about three years. My two brothers and I walked to Paris Crossing, IN where we saw out first movie. It was a distance of about 5 miles each way. I don't recall the name of the movie. It was shown on the second floor of a hardware store. I was about nine years old at the time. My brother Frank Stewart and I were attacked by a wild boar while walking in the woods near where we lived. Frank picked up a club and hit the boar on the nose and it ran off, saving us from harm. Our family took in timber cutters where we lived. They cut down a large oak tree and found the scalp of a man with red hair inside. They estimated the tree had about fifty years of growth around the scalp.

In 1902, we moved over Charles F. Lurton's Grocery on first or Main street, in Commiskey, In. Dad brought in a quail with a broken wing. Mother set the wing and we had a nice pet until it was well enough to fly. Dad took it out in the woods and let it loose.

In 1904, we moved to Paris Crossing, IN where we lived until 1906. Edgar Watson was the agent for the B & O Railroad. The station where he worked was the hangout for the local kids. He hired me to take care of the the switch lights for ten cents per day. I filled the lights with lard oil. He also started an orchestra that played in all the local events. I played the first mandolin. He wanted me to become a telegraph operator for the railroad but I didn't. He was a good man who kept a lot of young boys from getting into trouble. One rainy March day a gang of us boys hopped a freight train at Paris Crossing, IN. and rode nearly to Louisville, KY. Someone hollered we were going into Louisville and we all jumped off. Bob Craig landed in a water filled ditch and we had to wring him out. We then hopped a ride bacc to Paris Crossing. We were about eleven or twelve years old at the time. One day we got lucky. A freight train came by and stopped near us. A "brakey' got off and broke into a car load of watermellons and got a big one out. When he tried to jump back on the caboose the wartermelon slipped out of his hands. Seven of us boys had all the watermelon we could eat.

My brother Ben Stewart and I rode the train to Mitchell, IN to visit the Squire family. Their mother was a sister of fathers first wife. We called them cousins but they wern't. One day while riding the cement train to the quarries, we walked over to the White River. We borrowed a skiff and crossed the river where there was a big watermelon patch. We got seven watermelons. We saw two men in a tent watching the watermelon parth. They both had shotguns.

In 1906, dad bought a house in Paris, Jennings Co., IN. It had been used as a parsonage for the Methodist Church. He paid $300.00 for this house. This is the house I painted a picture of. It was a fine old house built of brick and had 21/2 inch solid poplar doors and window frames. We were the third owners. It was built in the 1800's. I think the historical society has made a shrine of this house. The house is on the west side of 2nd street, across from a school. This was the first school I attended. Mother and I planted two hard maples in the front yard, which made beautiful shade threes. This is the house I left to live with my half sister Jose, in Rushville, IN. One night while walking home from Paris Crossing IN at about 9:00pm, I saw a meteor go by so close over my head that I could feel the heat. It landed about a quarter of a mile south and burned a place on the ground. It smelled like sulpher.

In May 1907, my brother Frank Stewart joined the Navy. In June 1907, my brother Ben and I joined the Navy in Seymour, IN. We were sent to Indianapolis, IN where I was turned down because of the vision in my one eye. The recruiter said "you SOB you're bline: and sent me home. Frank was sent to the Atlantic fleet and served four years. He was on the "North Dakota" and the scout cruiser "Birmingham." He was a coal passer and later an engineer. Ben was sent to the Pacific Fleet and served on the "West Virginia" he jumped ship while in Colon, South America. He got a bad conduct discharge from the Navy in 1908. He was on a ship that called at the port of San Francisco, CA> shortly after the earthquake.

One day Bob Craig, one of my friends, and I were going out of the house. I was carrying a .22 rifle and it went off accidentally. I shot myself in the foot. I had to sit for six weeks with my foot higher than my head. Dr. Gaddy probed for two inches but couldn't find the bullet. I was fifteen at the time. I carried that bullet in foor until I was twenty Then Dr. Will Smith cut it out. We had apct rooster. It would perch on the arm of my chair. Whe it wanted in the house it would knock on the door with its beak. Because it sounded like a person knocking on the door, mother would have to let it in.

In September, 1909, I went to live with my half-sister, Jose Arbuckle, who lived at 405 N. Sexton Street, Rushville, Rush Co. IN> She was my favorite. Her husband got me a job as a "cub" painter with the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. (I&CTC). I&CTC was an electric rail line. I served my apprenticeship as a coach painter. This line (the I&CTC) originally ran all the way to Cincinnati, OH, but stopped in Connersille, IN. Another spur of the I&CTC went to Greensburg, IN.

My brother Ben Stewart married Katherine Colvin in the fall of 1910. That same year I bought a fine violin from Ferdinand Schaeffer, conductor of the Indianapolis Philharmonic Orchestra. I paid $100.00 for it. I studied violin with Guy Rubush, who gave lessons to raise money while he was studying to be a doctor.

In 1911, I saw my first airplane it looked like a box kite. The pilot was out front in the open. It was flying from the direction of Wright Field, Dayton OH and headed in the direction of St. Louis, MO.

In 1912, I saw Jan Kubeelc, a concert violinist; play at the Murat Shrine in Indianapolis, IN. He was wonderful. Later the same year I saw another violinist, Eugene Ysaye play at the Murat Shrine. He was also good, but not as good as Kubeelc.

I left the I&CTC and visited my parents until March, 13th. My brother Frank Stewart and I started for Indianapolis and we got caught in the big flood of 1913. We got as far as Shelbyville, on the "Big Four" train and found that the bridge over the Blue River was washed out. We finally got across the river and got to Indianapolis, where we stayed with Aunt "Mag" and Uncle Wilbur Malcomb. They were living at 5940 University Avenue, Irvington Section, Indianapolis, IN. My brother Ben Stewart and his wife Katherine had a son Colvin Stewart during this same flood. Their house was surrounded with water at the time and they called him their "flood baby".

My brother Frank Stewart married Della Theobald. They lived at 721 S. Audubon Street, Indianapolis, IN. I boarded with them until fall. I then returned to Rushville, IN and went back to work for the I&CIC. Frank was working for Uncle Wilber Malcomb in Indianaplis, IN. doing carpentry work. It was still 1913.

My brother Frank and I then opened a general painting shop at 400 S. Audubon Street, Indianapolis, IN. There we did sign and house painting. We shared a phone with Perry Wysong, a barber who was a drunk. One day I looked in his shop and he was sitting with a towel around his head. He had put a sign on the door saying "home sick." The phone was on the wall between us. We painted our Uncle and Aunt Malcomb's house. While I working on the dog house I heard Frank, who was up on the roof, yell. He had been stung by a wasp on the nose, which swelled to twice its normal size and did it hurt.

One Sunday my brother Frank and I walked out to the Indianapolis Speedway, which was about 8 miles. We saw "Wild Bob" Burman break the world speed record of 79.4 MPH. The Speedway had only been open for three years at the time. Although I've been to see the time trials several times over th years, this was the only time I went to see the actual race.

Prior to my brother Frank getting married, he and I "batched" it for awhile. One week we lived on brick cheese and olive oil. One day we looked outside and saw an undertaker. Frank said "My God they're after us." Franks girl Della, had a sister in law, Shirley Corey, who worked for Mrs. Shipp, as a companion. Shirley and I started going together. One night we went to Riverside Park and did not get home until 2:00 AM. When I got home Frank and Della were locked out. They were on the back porch crying and were ready to shoot me. I worked with Frank until fall and then returned to work at the I&CTC

16. HARRYETT AURORA^{11} LAWRENCE (SARA CATHERINE^{10} AYERS, JOSEPH^{9}, JOHN^{8}, JEDEDIAH^{7}, JEDEDIAH^{6}, EDWARD^{5}, SAMUEL^{4}, JOHN^{3}, JOHN AYER^{2} EYER, THOMAS^{1}) was born June 09, 1874 in Paris, Jennings CO., Indiana, and died August 28, 1966 in Shelbyville, Shelby County, Indiana. She married CHESTER GRAHAM SHEPERD Abt. 1892, son of JOHN SHEPERD and MARY DEPUTY. He was born October 01, 1870 in Indiana, and died October 07, 1949 in Shelbyville, Shelby Co., Indiana.

More About HARRYETT AURORA LAWRENCE:
Burial: Shelbyville, Indiana

Notes for CHESTER GRAHAM SHEPERD:
From Maurice Holmes-March 12, 1992

According to a local newspaper article, Mr. Sheperd invented an item called a high speed delivery fork that facilitated the pick up of mail bags from a moving train. He commenced production of it in Shelbyville in a small plant in 1938. His operation was sold by his widow in 1963.

Mr. Sheperd died October 8, 1949 and in his short obituary no wife, children or parents were mentioned.

Mr. & Mrs. Sheperd lived at 203 W. Mechanic. Her obituary was more informative than that of Mr. Sheperd. It mentioned that they were married October 20, 1894 and that she was survived by a sister and two brothers of Nashville, Tenn., two grandchildren and three great grandchildren. A son George preceded her in death.

The place of burial was mentioned in neither obit.

They are buried in a family plot in Shelbyville.

Notes for JOHN FRANKLIN DRAUGHON:

About Us - History
In 1879, Professor John F. Draughon realized the need for business-trained people. With very little capital, a horse, a wagon and the teaching materials that were available at that time, he founded Draughon's Practical Business College on wheels. He made a monthly circuit of towns in Northern Middle Tennessee and Southern Kentucky for several years before opening his permanent school in Nashville.

From this humble beginning of his business college on wheels, he started one of the largest chains of business colleges in the nation. His business schools were located in practically every Southern and Western state, including the Oklahoma territory and the Indian territory. At the time of his death in 1921, 38 business schools bore his name. He also established the Draughon's Textbook Publishing Company in Nashville, which published all textbooks used in his schools, with the exception of shorthand.

After Professor Draughon's death in 1921, many of the business schools he established merged with other schools or went out of business. Draughon's Business College in Nashville survived the depression and World War II. After the war, under new management, Draughon's Business College again assumed its role in the community to train secretaries, accountants and other qualified business personnel.

In 1954, the School was accredited by the Accrediting Commission for Business Schools, which was recognized by the United States Office of Education as the accrediting agency for this type of school. In 1978, Draughons was accredited as a junior college of business by the Accrediting Council for Independent Colleges and Schools.

Draughons Junior College has grown to include campuses in Clarksville, Tennessee, which opened in 1987; Bowling Green, KY, which opened in 1988; and Murfreesboro, TN, which opened in 2003.

Notes for MEDFORD EDWARD," RED" DOWNING:
Things I Remember About--By John Lawrence Downing received by me 2/3/2005

Medford Downing. My father was the second child of John Downing. He married my mother sometime in the early nineteen-tens. They had three children. The first, Louise, died shortly after birth. Her name is in the family bible, but I don't have the bible right now. I was born 10 July 1916 in Seymour, Indiana in the hospital that was almost across the street from where they lived. Dad was a B&O Railroader too.The B&O railroad ran from Baltimore to St. Louis, and Seymour was a repair center. The railroad had a spur that went from North Vernon down to Louisville. Dad and mother lived in Louisville for some time before going to Seymour. When I was 3 or 4 years old I was intrigued by the fire station about 2 blocks away. When I disappeared, Dan would get a switch and go the fire station to get me. I would cry all the way home from the switching, but the next time I had a chance off I would go to the fire station

We had a lilac bush in the yard that had a turtle living in it. Where it came from heaven only knows. When I had nothing to do, I would get out my little shovel and dig the turtle out and play with him.

One day I got rushed out of the house and taken to Uncle Ralph and Aunt Maude's house. I couldn't understand what was going on, but the next day I was told that I had a new sister-Virginia.

One time Dad was on a double header near the small town of Medora when they ran into a double header head-on from St. Louis. The engineer and fireman on the other train and Dad's fireman were killed. Dad had about given up that he could not get out until a breath of fresh air hit him in the face. He followed the air and managed to get out although badly burned. He spent a month or so in the hospital, and it was six months before he could get back to work. He wasn't well when he returned to work, because when he perspired the sweat would be reddish in color. One night I was awakened by going-on in Dad's bedroom. On getting up someone told me to get back into bed. The next morning I was told that Dad had gone away and it wasn't known when he would return. Later we were told that he had died from ptomaine poisoning, but we never accepted that as a cause of his death.

i. LARRY JACK[13] STEWART, b. March 05, 1942, Anderson, Madison County, Indiana; d. October 19, 1999, Blue Lagoon, Dade County, Florida.

Notes for LARRY JACK STEWART:
Larry was kept by my father Earl Colvin Stewart and I was adopted to Charles and Frances Smith when I was a few months old and Larry was 2 years old. Larry was raised more by grandparents Benjamin and Katherine Stewart. At around age 16 he hitch-hiked to Indiana and found our mother who he had been told was dead. Larry graduated from High School, and received a scolarship to UCLA, unfortunately he dropped out when the Hippy movement began and never dropped back in. When we met in 1978 I was 34 and he was 36, he lived in San Francisco CA. and drove a taxi for a living. He lived on Mission in the heart of Haight Ashbury. At some point prior to our meeting he had an electrical contractors liscense. He was very interested in Eastern Religion and had traveled to India to study, he got mixed up with a bogus Guru in Oregon and went there frequently to help with their communtiy. Larry smoked dope and drank beer but was never drunk when he was around me. He also obeyed my rule no dope around my children. I kept sporatically in touch with him untill my divorce in 1984. In the eighties he was beaten and mugged by robbers while driving his taxi and at some point after that he came back to Indiana, where he got in some trouble in Rushville and contacted Tom and Marybelle for help. Then after they refused to help he moved to Florida. After his move to Florida he again contacted them for help and received none. When Marybelle became sick she asked me to try and locate Larry my search started with the social security death index where I found he died in Florida in 1999. Further searching found he had been in the Guardianship program and was in an assisted living program in Hialeah located at 1760 E. 1st Ave. Hialeah. This program cares for the indigent with their SSI and puts back a certain amount for burial.

Marriage Notes for SHEILA STEWART and JOHN JOHNSON:
Three strikes your out. John was old for his years and very responisble. He took on Sheila and 2 children. He is a Logger by trade and we lived in the North Woods, ten miles back on a logging road from the nearest pavement. It was nearly 20 miles to the nearest store in the little mountain town of Oak Run, California. We moved to Northern Idaho and since work for him was sporatic at first, Sheila got a job in Electronics but the commute to work was 50 miles each way. We bought 5 acres of property and built a log cabin at the base of HooDoo Mountain outside of Blanchard, Idaho. He tried his hand at fur trapping, (which Sheila Hated) killing to eat is one thing, but I like animals too much for that to work out. The commute to work was horrible, we had no electricity, running water or plumbing. So getting up at 4;00 and getting ready for work was very difficult. Ever put on makeup by the light of a coal oil lamp? I felt since John was young he needed to do these things so he would not have to say later in life "I wish I had" plus I learned alot. I found I could not do without the trappings of modern life and I hated the commute in the Northern Idaho winter. So we agreed to split up. He stayed for awile then sold the property and moved back to California. I came to Indiana. We are still good friends.

DESIGNATION OF HEALTH CARE CO-REPRESENTATIVES

I, Sarah M. Waldkoetter, do hereby appoint Ruzannah Martin and Karen Carter, to act as my co-representatives in matters affecting my health care whenever I am incapable of consenting to my own health care and, as my health care co-representatives, consent to my health care in accordance with the Indiana Health Care Consent Law as set forth in Indiana Code 16-36, et seq., and my health care co-representatives, whether the original or successor, shall have full power and authority to do any lawful act for me and in my name, to make all decisions relating to my personal health care, including, but not limited to, the following actions:

1. Employment. The power to employ servants, companions, nurses or doctors to care for me.

2. Admission. The power to admit or release me from any hospital or health care facility.

3. Consent. The power to consent on my behalf to any treatment, physical or psychiatric, or surgical procedure for any injury or disease from which I may be suffering.

4. Access Records. The power to have access to any medical records concerning my condition. This Designation of Health Care Representative specifically acknowledges the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, and my designated health care co-representatives are also my HIPAA representatives for purposes of release of my medical records. My health care co-representatives shall have full access to my medical records under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, and any amendments thereto.

5. Anatomical Gifts. The power to make anatomical gifts on my behalf.

6. Health Care Consent. The power as my health care co-representatives to act for me in matters of health care in accordance with IC 16-36 et seq, including the authorization to delegate all or part of this authority to any eligible individual who has not been disqualified as provided in IC 16-36 et seq.

7. Remove or Withhold Treatment. I authorize my health care co-representatives to make decisions in my best interest concerning withdrawal or withholding of health care. If at any time, based upon my previously expressed preferences and the physician's diagnosis and prognosis, my health care co-representatives are satisfied that certain health care is not or would not be beneficial or that such health care is or would be excessively burdensome, then my health care co-representatives may express my will that such health care be withheld or withdrawn and may consent on my behalf that any or all health care be discontinued or not instituted, even if death may result. This power includes, but is not limited to, requesting that the following be discontinued or not instituted: cardiopulmonary resuscitation, implantation of a cardiac pacemaker, renal dialysis, parenteral feeding, the use of respirators or ventilator, blood transfusion, nasogastric tube use, intravenous feeding, endotracheal tube use, antibiotics and organ transplants.

My health care co-representatives must try to discuss this decision with me. However, if I am unable to communicate, my health care co-representatives may make such a decision for me, after consultation with my physician or physicians and other relevant health care givers. To the extent appropriate, my health care co-representatives may also discuss this decision with my family and others, to the extent they are available.

If either health care representative named above predeceases me, resigns as my health care representative, or is certified by a licensed medical doctor to be physically or mentally incompetent, or unable to take care of my health care, then the remaining individual may serve as my sole health care representative.

The appointments under this Designation do not commence unless and until I become incapable of consenting or making decisions concerning my health care. The authority granted under this Designation is not effective if I then regain the capability of consenting and making decisions concerning my health care.

I ratify and confirm all that my health care co-representatives shall do by virtue hereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 18th day of October, 2016.

Tues. morn

Dear Karen,

If it's not one thing, it's another! Went to our family doctor Monday and I'm now wearing a heart monitor for 48 hours. For a week I've known something wasn't right, I have no energy and just don't feel right. My heart isn't beating fast enough. Tomorrow I have an ultrasound on my thyroid to rule out anything there. I had decided to have the other knee done but will have to see about the heart first; heart disease runs in my dads family - lucky me!

Jerry is getting ready to go to Sally's; yesterday he sawed up some brush and wants to finish it up this morning. Not sure that estate will ever end - ha!

Hope you had a nice Mothers Day, Troy grilled chicken - so good!

Will keep you informed when I know something.

Love ya,

Ruzannah

I have addresses except Betty Lou Carter Northcutt need their phones also Ronald Morris Carter
Harry Dee Carter

Karen,

This article was in yesterdays paper, thought you would enjoy it. It has began -- Doris called and wanted to know if I would be at Sally's Friday - I told her no and I would be gone next week. Her daughter Pam wants canning jars and she knew Sally had some. I have a feeling it was to get in the house and look around - hope I'm wrong! Ruzannah

Waldkoetter nursed historic landmark hotel back to health

AUBREY WOODS

WALDKOETTER

The 81-year-old Vallonia woman, who died Sept. 21, graduated from Scottsburg High School in 1955 and Evansville College in 1959 with a Bachelor of Science in nursing. She received her master's degree in nursing from Indiana University in 1965 and went on to attend the University of Cincinnati as a doctoral candidate.

Sally, whose given name was Sarah Margaret Waldkoetter, then worked at Babies Hospital at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York City from 1959 to 1964 and was a professor of nursing at Columbia University. From 1965 to 1968, she was a professor of nursing at University of Cincinnati, and then from 1968 to 1993, she was professor emeritus at the University of Cincinnati.

That's a pretty hefty résumé for anyone, and most might think it would be time to sit back and take it easy for a while, but not Sally.

In fact, she spent the past 20 years nursing a historic hotel on Main Street in Vallonia that was previously in shambles back to life.

In 1999, a group of Vallonia residents, including Sally, decided they wanted to tackle the restoration of the Joe Jackson Hotel, a Vallonia landmark, that was built in 1914.

At that time, the former hotel, which also housed a barbershop, was in such a sad state of disrepair that many thought it should be torn down. Others, including Sally, however, felt differently and believed the hotel could be made a pillar of the community one day.

Sally said at the time that the group was going to keep working until the restoration was finished. She would lead the charge to ensure that would happen.

Over the years, the restoration work has proceeded at a sometimes uneven pace, financed in part through monthly fish fries organized by Waldkoetter and others.

During the annual Jackson County United Way Day of Caring in recent years, work crews have come down and completed projects at the hotel. There also has been some grant monies over the years.

Through all of the ups and downs, Sally was undaunted and never doubted the hotel would be restored.

The only doubt Sally, who remained chairwoman of the Joe Jackson Hotel Restoration Committee until her death, ever voiced to me was that the project might not be completed before she passed away.

I always told Sally that she didn't need to worry about that because there was no doubt in my mind that it will be completed because she had put the pieces in place to make sure it did.

Upon hearing of Sally's death, Greg Sekula, director of the Southern Region of Indiana Landmarks, praised her untiring effort to see the project to the end.

"Her death is especially bittersweet as the county recently received a $225,000 Office of Community and Rural Affairs grant to complete part of the building's interior as a community center," he said. "Sally was one of those inspiring Hoosiers who returned to small-town Indiana and worked to make a difference in her community. After a career in nursing, she nursed an ailing building in her retirement and saved an important part of Jackson County history. She was a force. We need more people like her in this world."

We certainly could.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT
SARAH M. WALDKOETTER

I, SARAH M. WALDKOETTER, of Jackson County, Indiana, being of sound mind and disposing memory, do make and declare this to be my Last Will and Testament, hereby revoking any and all former wills by me heretofore made.

ITEM I.

It is my will that all of my expenses of last sickness and burial be first paid.

ITEM II.

If, at the time of my death, I am the joint owner, co-owner or owner of any real estate, of a bank account, of a government bond, or of any security or instrument of indebtedness, whether issued by a private corporation, by a government or governmental agency, or by an individual, which is registered or issued in my name and that of any other person or persons, as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with the right of survivorship, or which is shown in writing to be payable to either a co-owner or named survivor on my death, then in that event, I give, devise and bequeath all my right, title and interest in and to any such real estate, bank account, government bond, security, or instrument of indebtedness to the surviving joint owner or co-owner, or to the one apparently entitled to ownership upon my death. It is my understanding that my right, title or interest in and to any real estate, bank account, government bond, security or instrument or indebtedness will, by operation of law upon my death, vest in or pass to such surviving joint owner or co-owner. Nevertheless, I make these provisions in order to eliminate any doubt or question as to the right of any such surviving joint owner or co-owner or other person to succeed to the full possession and ownership of such real estate, bank account, government bond, security, or instrument of indebtedness upon my death and to provide for the possible contingency of an ineffective attempt to create a joint tenancy or estate by the entirety.

ITEM III.

I hereby make the following special bequests of personal property:

A. I will, devise and bequeath to my friend, RUZANNAH MARTIN, of Vallonia, Indiana, provided she survives me, my tangible personal property consisting of my jewelry, glassware, and dishes, but excluding any other tangible personal property. If RUZANNAH MARTIN does not survive me, then this bequest shall lapse and these items of personal property shall be included in and become a part of my residuary estate.

B. I will and bequeath to my cousin, HARRY DEE CARTER, of Austin, Indiana, all of my guns.

C. I will and bequeath to THE SCOTT COUNTY HERITAGE MUSEUM, my antique three-drawer oak chest and the antique pie safe from the Old Everitt home, and the two (2) matching three-drawer chests, one with mirror, which belonged to my great aunt who was an Everitt. However, if the Everitt family has established an Everitt Family Museum by the time of my death, then I will and bequeath these items to the Everitt Family Museum, instead.

D. I will and bequeath to ST. JOHN'S LUTHERAN CHURCH SAUERS, for display in the old school museum or church sanctuary, the Waldkoetter family baptism and marriage certificates, along with the two cylindrical lamps from the Church chandelier. I nominate and appoint Denise K. Connell to oversee the display of these items.

E. I will and bequeath to my friend, FRED E. MILDENBURGER, of Little York, Indiana, my train collection.

ITEM IV.

I will and bequeath One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) to each of the following persons; provided, however, that the following persons shall have the option of taking the One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) as cash or using the One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) as a credit toward the purchase of any item sold at the sale of any of the residue of my estate as directed by Item VI below:

A. My cousin, BARBARA JEAN CARTER PARSONS, of Concord, California;

B. My cousin, BETTY LOU CARTER NORTHCUTT, of Okeechobee, Florida;

C. My cousin, EDWIN LEE BRIDGEWATER, of Columbus, Indiana;

D. My cousin, DORIS JEAN BRIDGEWATER BURKETT, of Scottsburg, Indiana;

E. My cousin, MARJORIE ELLEN BRIDGEWATER ARBUCKLE, of Scottsburg, Indiana;

F. My cousin, JAMES ALLEN CARTER, of Maine;

G. My cousin, JOHN SCOTT CARTER, of Anderson, Indiana;

H. My cousin, RONALD MORRIS CARTER, of Kirlin, Indiana;

L. My cousin, HARRY DEE CARTER, of Austin, Indiana;

M. My cousin, THOMAS MICHAEL CARTER, of Scottsburg, Indiana;

N. My friend, MARCIA WALKER, of Seymour, Indiana.

ITEM V.

I give, devise and bequeath to the SCOTT COUNTY COMMUNITY FOUNDATION, of Scott County, Indiana, my real estate and residence located at 4559 South Co. Rd. 250 West, Vallonia, Indiana 47281, if I continue to own this real estate at my death. This devise is made subject to the following terms and conditions:

A. I grant to John Scott Carter and Karen Carter, or the survivor of them, a life estate in this real estate.

B. After the life estate for John Scott Carter and Karen Carter terminates, the Scott County Community Foundation shall sell this real estate and divide the net sale proceeds from this real estate as follows:

i. Fifty percent (50%) to the CARTER/WALDKOETTER NURSE SCHOLARSHIP FUND, which fund is to be administered by the SCOTT COUNTY COMMUNITY FOUNDATION to be administered pursuant to Item VII herein; and

ii. Fifty percent (50%) to the TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH ENDOWMENT established with the COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF JACKSON COUNTY, INDIANA.

ITEM VI.

I direct that the rest, residue and remainder of my estate be sold and reduced to cash. Thereafter, I give and bequeath the residue of my estate as follows:

A. Ten percent (10%) to the TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH ENDOWMENT established with the COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF JACKSON COUNTY, INDIANA.

B. Ten percent (10%) to the TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH ORGAN AND MUSIC FUND established with the COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF JACKSON COUNTY, INDIANA.

C. Thirty-five percent (35%) to SCOTT COUNTY COMMUNITY FOUNDATION to establish and maintain the Carter/Waldkoetter Nurse Scholarship Fund to be administered pursuant to Item VII herein.

D. Five percent (5%) to the JACKSON COUNTY HUMANE SOCIETY. However, in the event Brownstown, Indiana, has established its own animal shelter or rescue shelter at the time of my death, whether administered by the Jackson County Human Society, or another person or entity, then I direct that this bequest shall be used to benefit that Brownstown animal shelter or rescue shelter, instead.

E. Ten percent (10%) to TRINITY LUTHERAN HIGH SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP FUND.

F. Ten percent (10%) to the LUTHERAN EDUCATION INCORPORATED ENDOWMENT FUND, Brownstown, Indiana.

G. Ten percent (10%) to the CAMP LAKEVIEW FOUNDATION, INC. unrestricted fund.

H. One percent (1%) to my friend, TIMOTHY DANIEL HENDRIX, II, of Jeffersonville, Indiana.

I. One percent (1%) to be divided equally between my friends, OLIVIA MARTIN and ELI MARTIN, of Vallonia, Indiana, or to the survivor of them. This bequest is made subject to the provision that distributions to Olivia Martin and Eli Martin shall first be used to pay any outstanding student loan debt before any part of his or her distribution shall be made outright to either of them. Evidence of any outstanding student loan balance, or that such debt has been paid in full, must be provided to the personal representative within a reasonable amount of time following my death. In the event the student loan debt amount exceeds the amount of distribution, then the full amount of the distribution shall be applied to the student loan debt. In the event the student loan debt has been paid in full, as evidenced by written documentation, or in the event the student loan debt is less than the full amount of the distribution to be received, any excess distribution, or the full amount of the distribution, shall be made outright to these beneficiaries.

J. One percent (1%) to be divided equally among my friends, HOPE MARTIN, HALEY MARTIN AND HEIDI MARTIN, of Clearspring, Indiana, if they survive me and if all three (3) of them do not, then to be divided among or bequeathed to the one or more that does survive me. This bequest is made subject to the provision that distributions to Hope Martin, Haley Martin and Heidi Martin shall first be used to pay any outstanding student loan debt before any part of his or her distribution shall be made outright to either of them. Evidence of any outstanding student loan balance, or that such debt has been paid in full, must be provided to the personal representative within a reasonable amount of time following my death. In the event the student loan debt amount exceeds the amount of distribution, then the full amount of the distribution shall be applied to the student loan debt. In the event the student loan debt has been paid in full, as evidenced by written documentation, or in the event the student loan debt is less than the full amount of the distribution to be received, any excess distribution, or the full amount of the distribution, shall be made outright to these beneficiaries.

K. One percent (1%) to be paid to the person in charge for the care of any pet I own at the time of my death. If my friend, RUZANNAH MARTIN is alive at the time of my death, then I request that she care for any pet that I have at the time of my death. If RUZANNAH MARTIN is unable or unwilling to care for my pet(s), then I ask that my friend, MARCIA WALKER, care for my pet(s).

If neither RUZANNAH MARTIN nor MARCIA WALKER are able or willing to care for my pets, then my personal representative shall locate a person willing and capable of caring for them.

L. Six percent (6%) to the SARAH M. WALDKOETTER COMMUNITY FUND established with the COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF JACKSON COUNTY, INDIANA.

ITEM VII.

The Carter/Waldkoetter Nurse Scholarship Fund is established in the memory of Ida Bell Everitt Carter, James Levi Carter and their descendants who have graduated from Scottsburg High School. It is also given in memory of Grace Carter Waldkoetter, and Harry John Waldkoetter and in grateful appreciation by Sarah M. Waldkoetter (Class of 1955) for the education and guidance of the faculty of Scottsburg High School. The objective of this scholarship fund is to provide assistance to graduates of Scottsburg High School who: (1) have evidenced a sincere desire to enter and complete a baccalaureate program in nursing; (2) have a true need for financial assistance; (3) have worked during high school to help with college costs; (4) have demonstrated academic success in the high school curriculum; (5) who have been accepted to an Indiana college or university in a baccalaureate program of nursing; and (6) have demonstrated a desire to help others.

The selection of the recipient of the scholarship will be made by the grants committee of the Scott County Community Foundation. The student must be a graduate of Scottsburg High School with at least a "B" grade point average and has met the criteria established for the scholarship including a personal interview by the committee.

A recipient may apply for the scholarship each of the four years of the baccalaureate program. The student will submit his/her college/university grade point average to the Scott County Foundation each grading period and must maintain a "B" average in order to have the scholarship funded for the next grading period.

The scholarship amount each year will be based upon and not exceed five percent (5%) of the total principal amount of the fund plus anticipated dividends and interest. If the amount exceeds the tuition and book costs for the college/university attended by the student, a second award may be made by the grants committee.

ITEM VIII.

I nominate and appoint RUZANNAH MARTIN and KAREN CARTER to be the Co-Personal Representatives of this my Last Will and Testament and of my estate. I direct that said Co-Personal Representatives be allowed to serve without bond. I authorize the Co-Personal Representatives of my estate to administer this estate without court supervision. I grant to the co-personal representatives the power to sell any of my property, real or personal, without notice or Court order, at public or private sale, on such terms and conditions as the co-personal representatives in their sole discretion deem to be in the best interest of my estate.

If either of these named persons is unable or unwilling to serve as Co-Personal Representatives or does not serve until the completion of the administration of my estate, the remaining person may serve as sole Personal Representative of my estate. Any person serving as my personal representative shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for services in administering and distributing the estate and to reimbursement of expense.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and seal to this my Last Will and Testament, consisting of fourteen (14) typewritten pages, including the Testatrix and witness acknowledgment and verification, signing this signature page this 6th day of August, 2018.

Dear Karen,

Our snow is about gone, now slush and water everywhere but this too will pass!

I'm having my left knee replaced February 26; saw the bone doctor this week and after X rays he said, "You don't have any cartilage left in either knee, I'll bet you have been in pain." I answered, "Oh, you think!" Hope to have the other one done in 2-3 months later.

Had my physical last week also, and passed with flying colors. Seeing the eye doctor soon - things I kept putting off.

I'm going to be in touch with the attorney and tell her I'd like to get the house turned over and the Whistle Stop sold, if possible, before all the surgery. Had someone

3:00 Thursday

Good Afternoon,

Been meaning to write - haven't taken the time and yet don't Know where my days go! I'm slow!

Olivia and Ethan got their first foster child last Friday - a 4 yr. old biracial girl cute as can be - they usually are I think. She adjusted right off and has stolen all our hearts. I have her today along with my 13 + 9 yr. old nieces who said they wanted to play with Denora; I'm not used to a little one who talks alot, I'll sleep good tonight. She's as good as can be - goes to bed around 8-8:30 as they leave home 6:30 in the morning. She'll go to day care soon.

Sally's house is coming along - new floors, cabinets, atrium door in her bedroom to the deck, part of the wall down between dining room and living room, smaller pantry but larger closet where washer was and then they'll start in the basement, not sure what all is happening down there! Julie is a worker!

Jerry's eye is worse. We saw a urologist this week for cysts on each Kidney but he says it's nothing unusual and they never turn into cancer so not to worry. Still doesn't walk good but won't see the bone doctor - he's a quiet stubborn and I'm a vocal stubborn, don't Know how we ever were a match!! He put out a small garden so I'll can green beans and tomatoes later on.

Alot of my week is mowing grass and yard work plus the laundry, cooking, cleaning and etc. Some days I want to scream but it passes - takes too much of my precious energy - ha!

Don't Know anyone personally that got the flu. Tracy is done with chemo and is planning to return to work the first of July. She did wonderful.

Hope you are well.

weeks off. She isn't happy but will do it; she has always worked and loves what she does.

Olivia has two kids that she works with test positive so we'll keep our fingers crossed for her and them.

I should be cleaning closets and drawers since we're in anyway but I'm not in the mood - as usual!

Jerry is still having pain in his leg and has an appointment with the doctor Friday which I'm sure they will cancel. He's had some tests but no answers - not a good patient and having eye trouble doesn't help his mood - - or mine - ha!

Hope you are okay and glad John got the ticket booth!

Karen,

Thought the card would give you a laugh - Lord Knows we all need one! I'm so tired of hearing about the Coronavirus! If people don't know how to wash their hands by now, they deserve to get it. Maybe I'm not taking it serious enough but I'm taking the precautions, but I'm not being stupid and buying up tons of toilet paper. Jerry said we have enough leaves around here if needed.

Tracy is having her third chemo today so hopefully is half done. She's never been sick, had some tingle in her arm and hand but it may not even be from the chemo. She's worked every day but Monday they advised her to take two

Hi Sally,

Sorry I'm so slow! One of mother's recipes is:

Date Cake

1c. brown sugar
2½c. boiling water
2T. oleo.

Pour over this mixture that you have put in a 9 x 13 pan.

1c. sugar
1½c. flour
2 t. Baking powder
¾c. milk
1 c. chopped dates
½c. nuts

Bake at 350° 40 min or until brown

one of my recipes is:

Potatoe Casserole for a Bunch
32 oz. bag frozen hash brown potatoes (thawed)
1 can potatoe soup
1 can cream of mushroom
1-12 oz. container sour cream
1-med. onion (chopped)
1-green pepper (chopped fine)
Mix all together & put in greased 9 x 13 pan. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese & chopped parsley.
Bake at 325° for 1½ hr.
Salt & pepper to taste

We are uncertain now if we will be coming or not. May be in Wyo. with ~~some~~ some of our kids, but if not Dale & I will be down! Ida Jean Another easy recipe of mine you may want to use is.

Self-Filled Cupcakes

1 box choc. cake mix
1-8 oz. pkg cream cheese
1/3 c. sugar
1 egg
1-6 oz pkg. choc chips

Mix cake per instructions on box. Fill muffin pans 2/3 full Cream cheese & sugar. Beat in egg until smooth. Stir in chips. Drop one teaspoonful into each cup-cake. Bake as directed.

Freeze well if desired

Karen,

Here I sit wasting another day thinking of all I should be doing but am not. Cloudy, cool and dreary - there's always an excuse! This virus talk puts me on edge and yet I continue to watch it. We don't know anyone who has it but know many who are ready to have it disappear!

Tracy has two more chemo treatments to go and dreads them because the last two haven't been as easy as the first two - joint pain and nausea. She's been a trooper.

We haven't done any gardn yet - wet and the soil is too cold. I'm not sure we'll do much because Jerry isn't in any shape. He's loosing protein in his urine so sees a specialist in May.

He walks with a cane all the time. Xrays show arthritis but I think it's more than that - you know my medical trainning - ha!

Olivia has been lucky to work every day, in fact, all five have not been laid off. Haley and Heidi work from home some, Eli and Hope are there every day. Tom went to N. Carolina for a few days after their storms just to organize crews. Troy went back last Monday.

How are you doing with school being out? This has been a strain on everyone. I hope families have become closer but I heard domestic violence rates have risen - well duh!

Hope you are all well! Love ya,

Monday

Good Morning,

Thought I'd bring you up to date! We're waiting on Sally's refund from the IRS and then can close the estate out - dispurse funds! The Julie that is buying the house is the daughter of our good friends (who aren't happy about the purchase). They ask me to meet her and the realtor there on Tues. and ask me to enlighten her on things that needed done - electric and plumbing for sure I said. It was her first time being inside and when she walked in she started crying and said, "This is my home." She's mid 50's, been divorced a few years and has a beautiful home in Fishers. I think she made a full price offer - CASH, must have gotten one hell of a divorce settlement! She's excited and it will be beautiful when she is done.

Hope is doing fine, her sisters are having a shower on Sunday. She and Johnny celebrated their 1st anniversary this weekend. Her mother keeps texting her and wants to be a part of her life now that she's pregnant!

We thought Eli was going to buy Paul Carr's house but didn't get the loan as he had only owned his farm ground for 2yrs. and with the spring rains - no profit this year! Guess it wasn't meant to be. Paul is having an auction in October and then go to the Masonic home in Franklin; he's really gone down hill the past few months - sad.

Knees still ache some but I walk and I'm thankful for that! Just don't work as fast and that is aggervating - the surgeon says I have to be patient and I told him at my age I don't have time for patience!

Jerry's eye is worse and the eye dr. said if there was anything he wanted to see or do, he'd better do it in the next few yrs.

Hope things are well with all of you!

Love ya,

Thursday afternoon

Dear Karen,

Your text this morning got me on the ball to get a note to you. Things have been crazy here; so far in 2020 I've been to the dentist, my surgeon for my 6 mo. post operation appoint. and to my family doctor for my physical and there's not a darn thing wrong with me!

In November Tracy had a D+C, then on Thanksgiving eve learned she had cancer in her uterus and had a hysterectomy and the surgeon said it was contained, he thought. At 4:30 on Christmas eve she got a call saying they found more on her pelvic floor and needed to have it removed. She decided to get a second opinion at I.U. and the said, "No more surgery but start chemo right away". She gets her port put in Monday and begins chemo on Tuesday. She will get 6 treatments 3 weeks apart and also a new drug that will help her immune system - experimental. She will have to go to Indianapolis because of the new drug. Her attitude is wonderful. She says she has cried all she can and turned it over to God.

Liv found out in Dec. that she passed her state boards so that lifted our spirits!

We saw a neurologist Monday for Jerry's legs (he uses a cane all the time now) but no answers. He thinks he wore his muscles out all those years surveying and up and down hills. His eyes aren't any better and does not drive at night so that means I'm the taxi! We're in good shape for the shape we're in -- our new motto - ha!

Miss Lucy is 10+ lbs. now and cheeks like a squirrel eating nuts. She's such a good baby. Hope went back to work after the new year and she said leaving her hurt as bad as labor. I'm thinking Liv and Marty will begin their family pretty soon.

Hope you are all well and that the flu leaves you alone. A 36 yr. old died in Seymour from it this week. Will try to keep in touch better. Ruzannah

Book Title: H. C. Chandler & Co.'s Business Directory For Indiana

GREENSBURG.
The county seat of Decatur county, on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati & Lafayette railroad, sixty-nine miles from Cincinnati and thirty-one from Indianapolis. The country surrounding Greensburg is rich and productive, and well settled with thrifty and enterprising farmers, thus giving a good support to the place. The town is laid out with much taste and has some buildings as fine as any in the State, among which are the Court House erected at a cost of about $150,000, a fine graded school, good churches, &c. A large hotel has been erected within the last year, that will compare for convenience and comfort with any in the State. It has a population of about 5,000.

With nearly 700 surnames referenced, this volume contains land records for Decatur County for the years 1820-1835. Compiled from Deed Record Books A, B, C, and D housed at the Decatur County Court, each entry contains owner's name, county of residence, book number, and page number. A photocopy of the indenture for these land transactions may be obtained at the Recorder's Office at Greensburg once the book and page number is know.

Along with land records, several genealogy items have been included in this publication which may be of help to Decatur researchers.

JOSEPH HARRELL, 92, DEAD HERE

A Well Known Man Dies In Hospital

(From Daily of Saturday, May 28)

Joseph L. Harrell, 92, well known retired Shelby county farmer and a resident of Smithland, died at 9:15 p.m. Friday at the Major Hospital. He was taken to the hospital last Saturday, following a heart attack and death came from a complication of diseases.

Mr. Harrell, born June 25, 1856, in Shelby township, was the son of James Ellison and Edith (McCarty) Harrell. In August, 1880, he was married to Henrietta Cox, of Bartholomew county, and nine children were born to this union. He was the last living member of a family of 10 children.

Mr. Harrell's wife, who died in May 1925, and three children preceded him in death. He was a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church at Lewis Creek.

The six children who survive him are: Marion, Charles and Virgil Harrell of Washington township; Stephen Harrell of Shelbyville; Mrs. Clara Clayton of Smithland of Smithland, and Mrs. Vernie Johnson of Muskegon, Michigan. Twenty-eight grandchildren, 39 great grandchildren and six great-great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the Mt. Gilead Baptist church at Smithland Monday at 2:00 p.m. with Rev. James Pickett and Rev. Robert Caveness officiating. Burial in charge of the Murphy Mortuary will be in the Miller cemetery in Hendricks township.

Friends may call at the funeral home at any time.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. HARRELL, 90, NATIVE OF CITY

Death came late Wednesday to a woman who had lived in Shelbyville throughout her 90 years of life and who was born in a residence standing on ground which is now part of Shelbyville's bustling Public Square.

Mrs. Mariah Harrell, 90, widow of William Harrell and one of the city's oldest residents, died at her home at 130 West Hendricks Street. Born just five years after Shelbyville was first incorporated as a town, Mrs. Harrell was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McLaughlin and was born in a residence which stood on the site of the present King's Pantry on the west side of the square. Her birth date was November 27, 1855.

She was united in marriage to Mr. Harrell July 1, 1875, and his death occurred on July 22, 1903.

Mrs. Harrell is the last of her immediate family, although several nieces and nephews survive.

Mrs. Harrell was a member of the St. Joseph Catholic Church and funeral services will be held at the church at 10:00 a.m. today with burial in Brandywine cemetery, in charge of the Sleeth Funeral Home. Friends may call at any time at the Harrell residence on West Hendricks Street.

HARRELL RITES TO BE SATURDAY

Services for Mrs. Kate Florence Harrell to Be At Son's Home

Funeral services for Mrs. Kate Florence Harrell, age 78, who died at her home 159 west Washington street Wednesday night at 11:45 o'clock, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the home of her son Spencer Harrell, on the south Riley highway. Dr. J. W. McFall, pastor of the First Methodist church, will officiate and burial will be made in Forest Hill cemetery in charge of Edwards & Kohlmeyer. Friends may call at the son's home at any time.

Mrs. Harrell had been bedfast for the past five weeks. Death was due to a complication of diseases incidental to her advanced age.

She was born in Johnson county, February 18, 1863, the daughter of Omer and Ruth Spencer. On October 20, 1886, she was married to John B. Harrell, who preceded her in death. Mrs. Harrell was a member of the First Methodist church and was widely known throughput the county.

James Henry Harrell

James Henry Harrell, a native of this county, died in this city at 10:30 o'clock last night at the home of his brother-in-law, Sheriff John H. Butler. Death resulted from blood poisoning, which developed from a cancer on his leg from which he had been suffering for more than a year. Mr. Harrell was for may years a resident of Shelby township, and still owned a small farm there at the time of his death. About three years ago he sold a part of his land holding in this county and moved to Oklahoma, whre he was developing a fine farm of one hundred and sixty acres. The cancer trouble, which finally resulted in his death, arose about a year ago and early this summer he came here and spent several months with relatives over the county while taking treatment for the cancer. Late in the fall he returned to his home in Oklahoma, but returned here only a few weeks ago to continue the cancer treatment. He was here for only a few days, however, being called back to Oklahoma by the serious illness fo his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edward Harrell, whose death is expected at any time. While in Oklahoma his own condition became critical and he sent for Sheriff Butler to come and bring him back here to die in the county of his birth. He reached this city just twenty-four hours before his death.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the Lewis Creek church, Rev. S. D. Hawkins officiating. Interment in the Lewis Creek cemetry in charge o Stewart & Fix. The funeral cortage will leave the Butler home at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The casket will be open at the home from 4:30 until 9:00 o'clock this evening and from nine until one o'clock tomorrow.

DEATHS - FUNERALS

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Harrell, widow of the late Granville Harrell, occurred at Fairland Sunday evening at six o'clock, deceased lacking about one month of being eighty years of age.

Mrs. Harrell was one of the best known residents of Brandywine township. When her husband died last November, Mrs. Harrell was in very poor health and she had continued growing weaker until her death. For the past several weeks she has suffered greatly from cancer.

At the age of two years her parents moved to Shelby county from Virginia, the home of her birth. Seventy-eight years of an active, religious life in Shelby county have not been without their effect. Brandywine township, for years the home of the Harrell's, recognizes in her death the removal of one of the community's pioneers and a peerless woman and mother. Her home life was ideal, her community experiences the models of excellence. For many decades Mrs. Harrell was closely associated with the religious movements in her home community and in her death Christ loses a zealous laborer on earth but gains a pure soul in his home on high.

The surviving children are Mrs. Elizabeth Lacock, Mrs. Isabelle Johnston and J. B. Harrell, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Clara Sedgwick, of Shelbyville, and Mrs. W. G. Storm, of Centralia, Kansas. Many other relatives and friends survive.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Fairland M.E. church Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be made in Fairland cemetery.

THE LATE MRS. HARRELL
(From the Boonsboro (MD.) Times)

Mrs. Maggie Harrell, wife of Harry Harrell, (of Shelby County, Indiana) departed this life, Thursday July 15th, at 7:30 a.m., at the home of her sister, in this place, at the age of 29 years and 13 days. Mrs. Harrell suffered with that insidious disease, consumption, for more than a year. She was a lady who had many warm personal friends in our community, who learned with regret six months ago that her health was rapidly falling and who mourned with them that mourned when her death was announced. She bore her sufferings through her long illness with Christian fortitude, never murmuring, and during the last few weeks of her illness she anxiously looked for the time when her suffering would cease and she would be permitted to pass from the scene of this life into the life beyond. She was a consistent member of the Reformed church, at which church her funeral took place on Sunday morning, Rev. Miller, her pastor officiating, assisted by Rev. Hott, of the U. B. church. At the close of the discourse the pastor made some very appropriate and touching remarks about the many good graces of the deceased. She leaves a husband who spared nothing to alleviate her condition, he putting forth every human power in her behalf. In her death a devoted and kind husband loses an affectionate wife, and in this sad hour of affliction he has the sympathy of the people of this community. Deceased leaves a child nearly one year old and two brothers and a sister who share the sympathy of the community in this hour of trouble. The death of the deceased is peculiarly sad that she had been married only about two years. Her funeral was largely attended on Saturday and the remains laid to rest in our beautiful, silent city of the dead.

IN MEMORIAM

Hattie Harrell, wife of John B. Harrell, departed this life November 27th, 1884. Her disease was typhoid fever, complicated with erysipelas, with which she suffered two weeks, when the Father that does no wrong called her to her heavenly home, "not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens." Hattie bore her sufferings, which were great, with resignation, never murmuring, and seemed only to be concerned about her husband and children's welfare. Hattie joined the M. E. Church at Fairland three years ago and was received into full membership, and led a worthy and consistent Christian life until her death. She leaves a husband and three little children to mourn her loss, besides father, mother, sisters, brothers and many friends. But we do not mourn as those that have hope.

Final resting place for town's first residents

Any appreciation of Shelbyville's history must start with the City Cemetery. It was created in 1824, a full generation before Shelbyville was incorporated as a town. It is located on West Pennsylvania Street and is the final resting place for many of the town's first residents.

Soldiers who fought in every war from the American Revolution through World War II are buried there. Some were born before we had a nation. From attorneys, doctors and journalists, to teachers, preachers and merchants, each has a story.

If you stroll through the grounds on a quiet day, you can close your eyes and almost imagine the ornate, black funeral processions that once wound their way slowly through the graveyard. The cemetery once echoed with the clip-clop of horse hooves, the creaking of wagon springs and the mournful wails and cries of friends and family members as they said their final goodbyes.

Today, the cemetery looks much different than it did 150 years ago. Grave Street once ran east and west through the center of the grounds. Funeral orations were often given from a gazebo centrally located about three-fourths of the way into the cemetery from the west drive.

Before the restrained customs of today, Shelbyville once honored its dead with grand funerals. Marching bands and lodge members were often part of flamboyant processions. In the early days, some of the graves were unmarked due to poverty. But as the town and its people prospered, many were supplied with costly monuments of pure marble and Scotch granite. As late as 40 years ago, the cemetery had an attractive iron fence with a brick wall gate. But both the fence and the gate have long since disappeared.

There is some confusion about the cemetery's origin. In 1820, John Walker, Major John Hendricks and James Davison donated land to be used as the location for a county seat. In 1824 Arthur Major bought four acres of the Davison donation and wanted it set aside as a burying ground. "He paid the price, but did not call for a deed." The county kept jurisdiction of the land until 1864, when it was deeded to Shelbyville for $1.

The city's rapid growth dictated a need for more burial space. As early as the 1850s, public officials complained of crowded conditions at the cemetery, and in 1884 Forest Hill Cemetery was created. Many bodies were relocated from the old cemetery to Forest Hill from 1885 through 1900. As time went on, burials at the City Cemetery became less common and stopped completely by the late 20th century.

Limited space prevents listing all the interesting stories found at the cemetery. Visitors can find the stone of James McGuire, who after years of fighting in the Civil War, came home to become a four-time mayor of Shelbyville.

It is the final resting place for Alex Cory, an early businessman and civic leader. During his short lifetime, he operated a dry goods store, bought a grain and saw mill, built a business building on Public Square and was active in many community affairs.

The Reverend Eliphalet Kent is buried in the city's oldest cemetery. He was the founder of the Boggstown Presbyterian Church and later was a pastor in Shelbyville. And there's Reuben Spicer, the feisty editor of Volunteer, a local newspaper during the Civil War. His impartial journalism was much respected around the state and had a calming influence on the community.

The cemetery is also the final home to perhaps the county's most famous Civil War soldier, Captain Jack Flinn. He became well-known in 1863 when he was captured and sent to Libby Prison in Richmond. While there, he was selected by lot to be hanged in retaliation for alleged Union atrocities. His situation received national attention, and his case was brought before President Lincoln, who finally arranged to have him exchanged. He returned home a hero and was duly honored by local citizens. He died in 1872 at the young age of 38.

Another intriguing grave is that of Rebel soldier Edward Fisher. Fisher was from Virginia and fought for the Confederacy in Stonewall Jackson's Brigade. He was in some of the war's bloodiest battles, was captured near Washington, D.C. in July 1864 and spent the last year of the war wasting away at Elmira Prison Camp in New York. He arrived in Shelbyville a few years after the war to make his home among the very people he once called his enemy. But prison life had destroyed his health, and he died 10 years later.

Ron Hamilton is a lifelong Shelby County resident. He is currently teaching American History at the University of St. Francis in Indianapolis. He is interested in genealogy and history.

Murder afloat!

Thursday, February 9 6:30-8pm

Due to the popularity of the annual October Mystery @ the Library event, APL will host a second mystery to help beat those winter doldrums. "Mystery @ the Library: Murder Afloat!" will celebrate Valentine's Day with a "Love Boat" style theme. Many familiar acting faces from previous Mysteries once again will ham it up as guests try to figure out whodunit while enjoying light snacks. Set sail with us for romance, plot twists and more than a few laughs with the latest cast of zany characters. Prizes will be awarded throughout the evening, including a special treat for the super sleuth who solves the mystery. Captain Nottingham ("Nott") C. Worthy, crew and passengers await you! Tickets are $7.00 each and are available at the Community Relations office M-F, 9am-5pm, or by calling 641-2451. Chief Anderson Room (third floor)

Leonard wants prosecutor to publicly admit he was wrong

BY KEN de la BASTIDE
Senior Reporter

Anderson Police Chief Ed Leonard wants Madison County Prosecutor Rodney Cummings to publicly admit that he was wrong when he wrote that no charges will be filed against anyone arrested by Officer Jake Brown.

Cummings sent a letter to Leonard and Sheriff Terry Richwine on May 20 stating his office would not file charges in cases where Brown would be called as a potential witness.

Cummings' action came after Brown was charged with false informing and assisting a criminal, both misdemeanors, in connection with a February property damage accident.

Brown invoked his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination when he was subpoenaed to testify during an Anderson Police Department investigation.

Linda Chapin

February 17, 1943 - July 7, 2022

ANDERSON — Linda Chapin, 79, of Anderson, passed away on July 7, 2022, peacefully at her residence.

She was born on Feb. 17, 1943, in Indianapolis, to the late Chester and Kathryn (Collins) Skinner.

She was married to her late and loving husband, Ronald Chapin Sr.

In Linda's life she was a homemaker, but she did more than just that. She loved to attend her church at Main Street Church of God. She loved to use her time and donate to multiple charities.

In Linda's time she loved to work on puzzles, collect dolls, read books, sing gospel, make clothing for her family, and especially watch western TV shows with John Wayne in them. Most importantly, she loved her family and spending time with them.

Linda is survived by her sons, Ronald Chapin Jr., Tracy (Vicky) Chapin, and Rusty (Kristy) Chapin; her daughter, Angela (Tim) Bowers; her brothers, Billy (Ruth) Moto and Paul Moto; her sisters, Eva Hinton and Alice Snider; her many wonderful grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Ronald Chapin Sr.; her daughter, Cindy Hixson; and her brother, Jack Moto.

Visitation will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday, July 14, 2022, at Brown-Butz-Diedring Funeral Service & Crematory, 515 E. 53rd St., Anderson, IN 46013. The funeral ceremony will begin at 1 p.m. at the funeral home. Burial will be at Anderson Memorial Park Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made out to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

A committee of the Anderson City Council recommended the department receive accreditation in 2020.

"We believe all of these earlier efforts will aid us in acquiring our certification," Lee said.

The process is expected to take a minimum of 12 months and will involve a review of numerous policies and practices in addition to on-site inspections by ILEAC.

Upon completion, Anderson will be the only agency in Madison County with this specialized accreditation.

GEORGE RINKER FUNERAL SUNDAY

Native of Perkinsville Had Never Married.

Special to The Herald

PERKINSVILLE, Ind., June 27.—Funeral services for George Rinker will be conducted at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday at 11 a. m. by Rev. Ralph Richardson of Alexandria and Rev. Claude Pyles of Perkinsville. Burial in Perkinsville cemetery.

Mr. Rinker, of a family of seven children of John and Eliza Rinker, was born in Perkinsville 74 years ago, and a year later his parents moved to the farm, now owned by a brother, A. P. Rinker, and later in 1861 moving to the farm where he lived until his death. The death of the father and two younger children occurred years ago. Since the death of the mother twenty-eight years ago, George and sister Emma have continued to live near here. Mr. Rinker had not been able to do general farming for a few years, but has been active in a small way about the farm, and at the hospital, after an operation and much suffering was concerned for news of the farm.

Drove Venerable Mare

Mr. Rinker was among the few surviving older residents, who every Saturday when able made the trip to Perkinsville, driving his faithful mare that is 38 or 39 years old.

A sister, Mrs. A. E. Sarah of Anderson, died November 9, 1924. Surviving are two brothers, James of Indianapolis, A. P. Rinker and sister Miss Emma Rinker, Perkinsville. Miss Mabel Sarah and George Sarah of Anderson are niece and nephew as are also, Lee, John and Fred Rinker. Mrs. Lee Parker, Mrs. Fern Johnson and Mrs. Marie Wise of near here. George and Raymond Rinker of Indianapolis.

Suffered Two Years

About two years ago, Mr. Rinker suffered an attack of bladder trouble, and at short intervals since has had these attacks to recurr. He was taken to St. John's Hospital at Anderson, and underwent a local operation that evening and another on Monday morning, to prepare for a major one, but to no avail as he gradually grew weaker and died on Wednesday.

The body was taken to the home about noon Thursday from the McCarty mortuary at Lapel.

Footprints

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand; one belonged to him, and the other to the Lord.

When the last scene of his life flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints in the sand. He noticed that many times along the path of his life there was only one set of footprints. He also noticed that it happened at the very lowest and saddest times in his life.

This really bothered him and he questioned the Lord about it. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you'd walk with me all the way. But I have noticed that during the most troublesome times in my life, there was only one set of footprints. I don't understand why when I needed you most you would leave me."

The Lord replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and I would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then that I carried you."

Mina: Thanks a lot. The book was published ca 2003 by Nelson County Genealogical Society at Bardstown. It is by Robert Moore and I believe it will be titled "Bloomfield, Chaplin and Fairfax: A History and Genealogy of Northeastern Nelson County, Kentucky". All this is as per post #576 on this forum in 2003. If you can find a copy I will be most appreciative. We are leaving 7/19 to return 9/2 so will probably miss your return.
Glad you are having fun. You will enjoy Bardstown if you go there. That's where all the Ky. whiskey is made. Have one on me. Dan by Error! Bookmark not defined.

© Sept. 2002

This cemetery is located on the Manville-Brooksburg road, just north of the main section of Brooksburg. This cemetery belongs to the Brooksburg Methodist Church, which was founded in 1891. It was probably a Bondurant family cemetery originally because there were 15 marked graves of Bondurants, all preceding the church's founding. There are no other burials for other families before the church's founding. The DAR shows Josephine Keel as dying in 1871, but I have not found this stone and the date may be an error. The same applies to Anna Gale, also listed by the DAR as dying in 1871. Before 1891, many Brooksburg area residents were buried at the Joyce Cemetery, just over two miles up-stream on the Indian Kentuck, or in the cemetery of the Morris Chapel M.E. Church, just upstream near the Ohio River. This transcription includes all transcriptions done by the John Paul Chapter DAR. The most recent death date in the DAR record is 1931.

Bayless Cemetery

Madison Township, Jefferson County, Indiana.

Francisco lot, July 2001.

Copyright August, 2001.

The Bayless Cemetery began as a family cemetery on the farm of Nathaniel & Mary Bayless, on Paper Mill Road, near Wirt, in Section 4, Town 4N, Range 10E. According to tombstone death dates, Nathaniel was the first to be buried here in 1851. There were at least five more burials before Mary also passed away in March, 1879. A year later, on Feb. 27, 1880, their son James W. Bayless sold the cemetery which included 2 3/4 acres for $110, to the Trustees of the Union Burying Ground (James W. Bayless, Elisha Golay & Benjamin Mayfield).

In 1941, the United States Gpverment established the Jefferson Proving Ground for war efforts. As the Bayless Cemetery was on part of the land needed by the War Department, it was removed to a site immediately south of the Fairmount Cemetery, on Michigan Road, in North Madison (Section 26, Town 4 North, Range 10 East). The Jefferson County Reinterment Association, Inc. surveyed and studied the cemetery maps before moving the graves. The new tract was laid out by survey and a map prepared, on which all lots were provided for with identical dimensions being used. At the time of the relocation, a Madison Courier article stated "It was found that the occupants of some graves were unknown and in many instances the graves were unmarked excepting for the identification tag as to location which was enclosed in a glass container. Many of these unmarked graves will remain so only until the proper stones are placed. Others have no permanent marker but of course are known to the families." The Bayless Cemetery is currently well-maintained by the Union Burial Ground Bayless Cemetery Association.

The Lund Cemetery, which was orginally located on the south side of S.R. 56, near the Ohio River, Section 33, T4N, R10E, was moved to the Bayless Cemetery ca 1952-3, when the Indiana Kentucky Electric Company began. These five stones (8 burials) are now located next to the old Bayless lot. The burials range from 1837 to 1910.

There are thirty-six known veterans buried here. Ten veterans were in the Civil War, nine in the WWI, and sixteen in WWII, and one in the Korean War. Included in the Civil War count, are two which were moved here from the Lund Cemetery.

The DAR surveyd the Bayless Cemetery ca 1939, before it was moved to its present location. I compared their survey to the tombstone inscriptions. I have made additions and corrections where they were obvious. If I was not certain of an inscription, I fell back on the DAR's transcription and noted it as such. Bold face type indicate stones that are on the DAR's list, but were not found by me. To denote single stones, I have used [ss]; to identify burials in the fenced in area, I have used [F].

Brushy Fork Cemetery Survey

This cemetery is located in Shelby Township, Jefferson County, Indiana
(also partly in Switzerland County, Pleasant Township, Indiana).
It is on Hwy. 250 on the Switzerland/Jefferson County line, about 1 mile west of Pleasant, Indiana.
I surveyed this cemetery in November 2000.
Jackie Owen © Error! Bookmark not defined.
Names followed by initials with parenthesis around them, were not found by me when I surveyed the cemetery.
WM=Info found in Wanda Morford's book of cemeteries, which she did in 1980.
BS=Info from Bob Scott who transcribed info from the DAR list of 1940, plus some personal visits that he made to the cemetery.
DAR=Info from the DAR list of 1940.
W=Wife S=Son D=Daughter SS=Same Stone
The Rogers/ Rodgers in this cemetery used 2 different spellings.
The info in my list here is how the name was spelled on the stone.
There were at least 18 stones that were not readable when I visited the cemetery in 2000. So there are about 11 stones that are no longer there or that I missed.

cabin, daubed inside and out with mud. The ceiling was secured against the cold by laying split puncheons on the upper joists, and covering them a foot thick with earth.

About 1838, this schoolhouse was converted into a blacksmith-shop by Mr. Z. Rogers, who started therein the first shop of the kind in the township.

At this time, there are nine comfortable, well-seated schoolhouses in the township, in all of which the schools are well attended, under the management of their Trustee, Benjamin Wise, Esq.

CHURCHES.

Methodist Episcopal.—The Fishersburg Methodist Episcopal Church had its beginning so far back in the dim past, and with such an humble birth, as to make it very difficult to arrive at the exact facts in relation to its first organization. Suffice it to say, however, that some time previous to the year 1838, a small class was organized, that soon afterward became one of the out-preaching stations of the Noblesville Circuit.

For several years, their meetings were held either in private houses, or in the Fishersburg schoolhouse.

About 1843, their congregation having become larger, they built a small log house of worship in Fishersburg. This they occupied about thirteen years, when again their old quarters becoming too straitened, the church arose and built a neat and comfortable frame house, 40x50 feet, at a cost of $1,500, which was dedicated, free from debt, in June, 1856.

In September, 1853, the Clarksville Circuit was formed of a part of the Noblesville Circuit, and three years later, the name was changed to Fisherrburg Circuit.

Amongst the early preachers we find the name of M. Miller in 1838, Lucian Berry in 1840, William Smith in 1842, James Scott in 1846.

The church now numbers over two hundred members. T. H. C. Beall, preacher in charge; J. R. Woodward, Recording Steward.

In connection with the church is a flourishing Sunday school, with about one hundred scholars. Albert Gibbs, Superintendent.

Baptist.—About 1843, a small band of Baptists met and organized a church, and about one year thereafter they built a small house in Fishersburg. For a season, they enjoyed the labors of Rev. Nathaniel Richmond.

This church never became very strong in numbers, and for fifteen years or more, have held no meetings, having become extinct.

Christian.—The Forrest Chapel Christian Church was organized June 10, 1860, with sixteen members, and for some time enjoyed the labors of Rev. B. F. Gregory.

In 1861, they built a neat and comfortable meeting-house, 24x40 feet, on Section 32. At this time they are without a Pastor.

FISHERSBURG.

Fishersburg, the principal village of the township is situated on Section 28, on the west bank of Stony Creek, adjourning the Hamilton County line.

The town was laid out May 10, 1837, by Rev. Fletcher Tivis; Lot 10 was donated for church purposes, and is occupied by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A short time after the town was laid out, Mr. Z. Rogers built the old log house that stands opposite the toll gate; that was the first house in the village.

About 1844, William and Benjamin Sylvester bought a small stock of goods and stored them in a small unfinished building, but did not open them. Mr. Charles Fisher bought out the stock, finished up the building, and, after adding to the stock, opened out a general store, where he continued the trade for about ten years.

Fishersburg had been laid out about sixteen years before they had a post-office, but during the first year (1853) of President Franklin Pierce's administration, a post-office was established, and Charles Fisher appointed he was succeeded by W. A. Fisher, and he in turn by J. W. Taylo George Dunham, in 1867, who still holds it.

Up to this time, they had but a weekly mail, and that carried from Clarksville. Upon Mr. Dunham's accession to the office a and since the completion of the A., L. & St. L. R. R. in 1876, t daily mail each way.

The leading business and professional men of Fishersburg, are George Dunham, general merchant and Postmaster.

J. L. Elston, dealer in groceries and provisions.

Drs. D. Cook, J. M. Fisher, J. A. Aldred and L. P. Ballenger.

Lapell, a station on the Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis situated about three-fourths of a mile southeast of Fishersburg, near of the Pendleton and Fishersburg pike.

Lapell was laid out April 27, 1876, by David Conrad and Samue

The following firms are doing business here: G. N. Hillig merchant; Woodward Bros. & Co., flouring-mill; Conrad & Wri in grain, stock and implements; S. E. Busby, railroad agent.

March 6, 1878, a post office was established at Grabers Station, c and Marion Graber appointed Postmaster, and within a week of the another office was started one mile east of above and called Johnson and J. J. Johnson, appointed Postmaster.

SOCIETIES—F. & A. M.

In September, 1875, a Masonic lodge was instituted under disp Fishersburg, numbering twelve members.

This lodge was never chartered, but in May, 1877, the re surrendered to the grand lodge, and it became extinct.

The officers at the beginning were George Dunham, W. M.; J. S. W.; C. C. Welch, J. W.; J. S. Simmerman, S. D.; Thomas H D.; David Conrad, Sec.; J. M. Fisher, Treas., and C. Lawson, Tiler

I. O. O. F.

Fishersburg Lodge, No. 483, was instituted April 8, 1875, with ei members. First officers, A. J. Fisher, N. G.; H. G. Fisher, V. G Dunham, Sec.

Their present officers are G. W. Miller, N. G.; A. J. Guis Mahlon Milburn, Sec. Present membership, thirteen.

The Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis Railroad was completed a township from east to west, in 1876. Lapell is the principal station.

TURNPIKE.

In 1865, the citizens of Stony Creek and Fall Creek Townsh weary of dragging their produce to market over the mud roads, and det build a pike or gravel road, from Pendleton to Fishersburg. A stock was formed, with the following officers: J. A. Taylor, David Conra Craven and D. Bodenhorn, Directors; and J. O. Hardy, Treasurer.

The length of the road is about eight miles. The first four mile Pendleton cost about $3,000 per mile, and the remainder about $ mile.

When the organization was completed, assessments were made lands along the route that were supposed to be benefited, and the m raised was applied to the building of the road.

This is one of the best pikes in the county, and has added larg value of farmers along the line of the road.

The officers of the pike are G. W. Sears, President; J. V. Kerr, S and they together with D. Conrad, C. Bodenhorn and J. A. Taylor, the Board of Directors.

Flower and Decorating

Live Flowers Cut flowers and potted plants are welcome at all times. Potted plants should be limited to containers that will not damage the memorial. Metal cans will cause rust rings. Clay containers will scratch the memorial surface. No glass containers are allowed. No planting or digging is permitted at any time. Funeral flowers are removed on the 3rd day after the service, weather permitting.

Artificial Flowers Artificial flowers are permitted year around in the installed vases or on upright memorials. Such as: saddles on memorials.

Holiday Exceptions Weather permitting decorations may be placed 3 days prior to Easter and Memorial Day. These decorations will not be disturbed for the week following the holiday.

Winter Decorations Winter decorations such as evergreen blankets, artificial wreaths may be placed on the graves beginning November 1st and may remain until the following March 1st. Weather permitting. After such date all seasonal decorations will be removed. We place a notice in the local newspaper for this clean-up.

These regulations are established to promote a uniform appearance, safe for our personnel and easy to maintain so that the cemetery's natural beauty can be appreciated by all who visit.

Thanks for your help!

Flower and Decorating

Live Flowers Cut flowers and potted plants are welcome at all times. Potted plants should be limited to containers that will not damage the memorial. Metal cans will cause rust rings. Clay containers will scratch the memorial surface. No glass containers are allowed. No planting or digging is permitted at any time. Funeral flowers are removed on the 3rd day after the service, weather permitting.

Artificial Flowers Artificial flowers are permitted year around in the installed vases or on upright memorials. Such as: saddles on memorials.

Holiday Exceptions Weather permitting decorations may be placed 3 days prior to Easter and Memorial Day. These decorations will not be disturbed for the week following the holiday.

Winter Decorations Winter decorations such as evergreen blankets, artificial wreaths may be placed on the graves beginning November 1st and may remain until the following March 1st. Weather permitting. After such date all seasonal decorations will be removed. We place a notice in the local newspaper for this clean-up.

These regulations are established to promote a uniform appearance, safe for our personnel and easy to maintain so that the cemetery's natural beauty can be appreciated by all who visit.

Thanks for your help!

New York, N.Y.—No cure has yet been discovered for arthritis. And doctors constantly warn against fake remedies which claim to have 'the answer.'

But sufferers have found a way to get hours of the most comforting relief from arthritis' and rheumatism's chronic minor pains. It's a combined action (both analgesic and anti-inflammatory) that relieves even pains arising from deep in joints and bones. Thus sufferers find they can move with greater freedom again. And this movement helps avoid 'locked' joints.

The product that's giving such fast and effective relief is Anacin®. Anacin contains a stronger yet safer combination and may be taken as directed as

Hoosier Soldiers Who Lost Right Arms in Civil War Wrote Well with Left Hands

Submitted by Douglas E. Clanin

The Indiana State Archives collections contain, among other things, military records and papers for Hoosier soldiers, including a treasure trove of Civil War material. While researching these materials, Doug Clanin discovered a small gem for interested genealogists and Civil War buffs in the Civil War Miscellany Box, L 513, folder 106–52. A transcript of the document, titled “List of Indiana Troops Who Lost Right Arms and Learned to Write with Their Left Arms,” appears below:

Fountain County death record: He died 8 July 1911 at age 69.

W. H. Beckwith, History of Fountain County (Chicago: H. H. Hill and N. Iddings, 1881), pp. 121–122, 125: Martin H. Clark was the son of Watson N. Clark and his first wife, Elizabeth Briggs. They had one daughter and five sons all of whom were in the 63rd Ind. These were James R., Isaac C., Martin H., Eli H. (who died at Shepherdsville, Ky. while in the army), and Charles W. who died after the close of the war from a disease contracted while in the military. Martin H. was a lumber dealer in Covington. He was born in Troy Township and his early life was spent on his father's farm. He began the lumber trade in 1879, buying an interest in the business already established by his brother Charles. They had been partners but a few months when Charles died. In 1867 Martin married Miss A. Clark. They had three sons and one daughter.

Fountain County marriage records: Martin H. Clark married Mary A. Clark on 21 Apr. 1867. He married Emma Frankeberger on 13 Sept. 1899.

G. Clark Harrison

August 14, 1942 - March 6, 2019

SARASOTA, Fla. — G. Clark Harrison passed away peacefully in his sleep in a Sarasota hospital after battling many years of health issues.

He was born in Anderson, Indiana, to George and Marylou (Clark) Harrison. He graduated from Anderson High School and Indiana University School of Business.

Those who knew Clark know that he was a character whose personality was larger than life. He hugged too tightly, spoke too loudly, and always thought he was welcome in a restaurant kitchen, where he would wander in "to give his compliments to the chef." He fell in love with Italy after being stationed with the U.S. Army in Vicenza, where his two children with first wife, Joan (Ely) Wood Burton, Lori Harrison Vorhees and Clark Andrew (Rosalie) Harrison were born. Upon returning to the States, he would try to converse in his broken Italian with the wait staff at Italian restaurants, only to be disappointed upon discovering they were, in fact, American college students with no Italian skills to speak of.

After returning to the United States, Clark worked alongside his father and uncle at his grandfather O.C. Clark's real estate and insurance company. Because of his contributions, the company successfully built numerous developments throughout the Anderson area and dozens of Social Security buildings throughout Indiana.

Clark loved to travel, spend endless days on the boat pulling all the kids waterskiing at Lake Wawasee, play bridge, fish with his buddies in Canada, eat good food, and spend time with his grandchildren. He was "Grandpa Clark" to Audrey Georgia Vorhees, who is a law student at American University Washington College of Law in D.C., Ava Marguerite Vorhees, who is a student at College of Charleston in Charleston, South Carolina, Abby Clark Vorhees, who is a student at University of South Carolina, Alexander Kent Harrison, who studies at Brown University in Rhode Island, and Carly Rochelle Harrison, who will begin college this coming fall at NYU.

His ex-wife, Vicky Harrison and her children, Andy (Becky) Hinkle and Alissa Hinkle were important people in his life for a very long time. His assistant, Laurie Cleek, managed his life and business, along side with his lifelong employees, Lisa Greene and Matt Goodpaster.

He is also survived by his sisters, Jeanne Ann Harrison and Barbara (Randy) Gordon, all of Cleveland, Ohio, and brother, Bob (Karen) Harrison of Sarasota, Florida, as well as several beloved nieces.

A Celebration of Life will be announced at a later date.

another bill.

The issue arose after Eric Miller, founder of the conservative Advance America, spoke to 350 people on Tuesday at Hope Missionary Church in Bluffton. He asked them to notify their legislators that they were opposed to Senate Bill 266, a 40-plus-page piece of legislation that currently sets up mental health evaluations of youth from birth to age 22.

"We passed a compromise on this very issue that I think had nearly unanimous support, Republican, Democrat," House Speaker Brian Bosma, R-Indianapolis, said Thursday.

Miller said the bill would give the state unprecedented control over all children in Indiana, beginning at birth.

Currently, the bill charges the Commission on Improving the Status of Children with developing plans for a child's social, emotional and behavioral health and coming up with services for a child and the child's family.

"The result would be to label potentially tens of thousands of children, beginning at birth, as not being normal and in need of social, emotional and mental health services and treatment," Miller told the gathering.

Authored in the Senate, the bill addresses the growing concern about mental health treatment for students, brought about in light of recent school violence. In part, the bill establishes a grant program for schools to develop mental health and substance use disorder plans.

"The only way they're going to be able to do that is go right into a hospital or mandate the hospitals to give them the data they need to enter that child into a government database," he said.

preparation for any profession. Values can best be taught by the process of questioning and analysis, he added.

Ehrlich was graduated magna cum laude from both Harvard College and Harvard Law School.

He cited several IU graduates from Anderson, former Lt. Gov. Robert L. Rock, Sen. William McCarty, and Larry Contos, who have had a major impact on society.

"I cannot underscore the importance of these role models for our students today," Ehrlich said, "Students who will be our leaders tomorrow.

"This will be a far poorer place if we do not maintain the values that lead such individuals to undertake the public responsibilities that mark their lives," he said. "It will be an impoverished place if social and ethical values are no longer seen as essential to leadership in business and in other professions."

He disagrees with those who say college cannot make a difference if family, church and prior schooling have not shaped the moral character of a young man or woman.

An important part of undergraduate learning should involve learning how to handle complex issues with ethical judgment, he said.

"Teachers cannot force students to learn. We cannot command their wisdom, their creativity, or their ethical and moral reflection, but we can nurture the atmosphere and the environment that allow those qualities to develop," Ehrlich said.

He believes values should be taught beginning in elementary school.

"Ethics should be taught at lower educational levels. I think it is a mistake not to teach values," he said.

Ehrlich said the goal most important to students in 1970 was "to develop a meaningful philosophy of life." By 1989, that goal had dropped off the scale and the majority of freshman listed as their primary goal "to be well off financially."

College years are a time of transition from adolescence to adulthood, he said.

"The college experience should offer tough challenges to the ideas, attitudes and preconceptions we bring with us," he said. "These encounters are a creative part of the undergraduate education. They help us to assess, affirm or reaffirm the moral and religious traditions we grew up with."

He said Indiana University has 34 religious denominations on campus.

"If a student can identify with a church, that is one small group they can relate with at IU. We recommend and encourage the churches to get students involved," Ehrlich said.

Since coming to Indiana in 1987, Ehrlich said he has been struck by the strength of partnerships among colleges and universities throughout the state, and especially in Anderson.

"We are seeking new ways to strengthen the partnerships of private and public colleges and universities in Indiana, and to enhance the opportunities for all Indiana citizens," he said.

Ehrlich addressed another major challenge facing higher education, the "new majority" students. These are students who are older, working and have families.

He said these students are now becoming the majority of undergraduates in the nation's colleges.

He said he was impressed with the creative initiatives Anderson University has launched in recent years to support these students.

"In whatever careers our students choose, they will face dilemmas that force them to make difficult choices," he said. "I am con-

IU president addresses Rotary Club

By SCOTT VERMILLION
H-B staff writer

Teaching values and ethical issues in higher education are major issues facing colleges and universities.

That was the main topic addressed by Indiana University President Thomas Ehrlich Tuesday at the Rotary Club meeting.

"Our values are rooted in Western traditions — the Bible on one hand and Greek philosophy on the other," Ehrlich said. "Our students must be educated in those values."

Ehrlich believes an education in the arts and sciences is the best preparation for any profession. Values can best be taught by the process of questioning and analysis, he added.

Ehrlich was graduated magna cum laude from both Harvard College and Harvard Law School.

He cited several IU graduates from Anderson, former Lt. Gov. Robert L. Rock, Sen. William McCarty, and Larry Contos, who have had a major impact on society.

"I cannot underscore the importance of these role models for our students today," Ehrlich said, "Students who will be our leaders tomorrow.

"This will be a far poorer place if we do not maintain the values that lead such individuals to undertake the public responsibilities that mark their lives," he said. "It will be an impoverished place if social and ethical values are no longer seen as essential to leadership in business and in other professions."

He disagrees with those who say college cannot make a difference if family, church and prior schooling have not shaped the moral character of a young man or woman.

An important part of undergraduate learning should involve learning how to handle complex issues with ethical judgment, he said.

"Teachers cannot force students to learn. We cannot command their wisdom, their creativity, or their ethical and moral reflection, but we can nurture the atmosphere and the environment that allow those qualities to develop," Ehrlich said.

He believes values should be taught beginning in elementary school.

"Ethics should be taught at lower educational levels. I think it is a mistake not to teach values," he said.

Ehrlich said the goal most important to students in 1970 was "to develop a meaningful philosophy of life." By 1989, that goal had dropped off the scale and the majority of freshman listed as their primary goal "to be well off financially."

College years are a time of transition from adolescence to adulthood, he said.

"The college experience should offer tough challenges to the ideas, attitudes and preconceptions we bring with us," he said. "These encounters are a creative part of the undergraduate education. They help us to assess, affirm or reaffirm the moral and religious traditions we grew up with."

He said Indiana University has 34 religious denominations on campus.

"If a student can identify with a church, that is one small group they can relate with at IU. We recommend and encourage the churches to get students involved," Ehrlich said.

Since coming to Indiana in 1987, Ehrlich said he has been struck by the strength of partnerships among colleges and universities throughout the state, and especially in Anderson.

"We are seeking new ways to strengthen the partnerships of private and public colleges and universities in Indiana, and to enhance the opportunities for all Indiana citizens," he said.

Ehrlich addressed another major challenge facing higher education, the "new majority" students. These are students who are older, working and have families.

He said these students are now becoming the majority of undergraduates in the nation's colleges.

He said he was impressed with the creative initiatives Anderson University has launched in recent years to support these students.

"In whatever careers our students choose, they will face dilemmas that force them to make difficult choices," he said. "I am convinced colleges and universities have a vital role in helping students learn to deal with the complex moral situations they will encounter in life."

IU president addresses Rotary Club

By SCOTT VERMILLION
H-B staff writer

Teaching values and ethical issues in higher education are major issues facing colleges and universities.

That was the main topic addressed by Indiana University President Thomas Ehrlich Tuesday at the Rotary Club meeting.

"Our values are rooted in Western traditions — the Bible on one hand and Greek philosophy on the other," Ehrlich said. "Our students must be educated in those values."

Ehrlich believes an education in the arts and sciences is the best

A Fort Wayne teen-ager entered a pr guilty Tuesday after he was formally cha cocaine, a Class A felony. He is being held on $10 bo

Ferdinand McGraw, 17, Fort Wayne, was booked into the Madison County Detention Center Friday after Madison Superior Court 2 Judge Jack Brinkman signed an order waiving charges against him to adult court.

McGraw was one of three men arrested April 3 after Anderson police set up surveillance on an apartment and vehicle at Pinetree Village Apartments.

The other two men, both over 18, were scheduled for appearance in Superior Court 3 and McGraw was held at the Juvenile Detention Center pending the May 11 waiver hearing.

Tuesday, criminal magistrate Charles Braddock approved a request for warrant for McGraw on the adult charges after Anderson police officer Gilbert Hall testified about events leading to the arrest.

Hall said McGraw was in a vehicle followed by police shortly after 3 a.m. When officers attempted to stop the auto, Hall testified, someone began throwing things out of a window.

Later, police found a small plastic bag believed to have been thrown from the car. It reportedly had three separate bags in it — one containing 35 individually wrapped white cubes and a small amount of white powder, another with 65 white cubes and one with a small amount of a moist white substance, Hall said.

Hall said the substance later tested positive for cocaine.

Plea agreement withdrawn

Madison Superior Court 3 Judge Thomas Newman Jr. approved the prosecutor's request Monday to withdraw a plea agreement for a man pleading guilty to child molest.

Collins, Shelbyville, pleaded guilty in April to child molest, a Class C felony, in exchange for a plea agreement tendered by Prosecutor William F. Lawler Jr. The bargain called for Collins to get a five-year suspended sentence and counseling during his probation.

However, Lawler filed a petition to set aside the plea agreement after consultation with the victim, Newman said Monday.

Collins' attorney, Sharon Carroll Clark, argued that Lawler had actually offered her client two different propositions and he opted for the suspended sentence with counseling.

The other option, she noted, called for Collins to get two years executed time and two years on probation.

Clark said her client accepted the plea agreement in good faith and opposed withdrawal of his guilty plea.

Newman overruled Clark's objection, denied her request for change of venue from the judge and said the case would be set for trial.

Bond reduction denied

Madison Superior Court 1 Judge Dennis Carroll denied bond reduction Monday for a city man facing confinement and drug charges.

Ricky Gosha, 26, 2306 Madison Ave., was jailed on charges of criminal confinement, a Class B felony, and dealing in cocaine, a Class B felony. His bond was set at $50,000 for the confinement case and $100,000 on drug charges.

Monday, Carroll denied Gosha's request to lower bond, but consolidated bond at $150,000 for the two cases.

The confinement charge came as a a result of an incident involving Gosha's former girlfriend May 17, 1989. The drug charge was the result of an alleged sale of cocaine Jan. 13.

ssembly coup
ed in babe's death

LESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A ton County couple who are mbers of the Faith Assembly religious sect were free on bond Tuesday after being charged with reckless homicide in the death of their infant son.

Robin and Roberta Woodrum of Fishers were released on $5,000 bond each Monday. They were indicted last week by a Hamilton County grand jury in the April 15 death of their 6-month-old son, Sean.

The infant died of untreated brochial pneumonia and doctors believe medical care could have saved the child's life, Hamilton County Prosecutor Stephen Nation said.

The Faith Assembly religion shuns medical treatment for illness, relying instead on prayer. However, Nation said the Woodrums did not use their religion as a legal defense for not seeking medical care for their son.

The couple could face a maximum sentence of eight years in prison and a $10,000 fine each. They will probably appear for an initial hearing next week, said Sonia Leerkemp, Hamilton County deputy prosecutor.

Parole hearing rescheduled

A hearing before the Indiana Parole Board for Dennis "Digger" Lewis has been rescheduled for May 23.

Lewis was scheduled to appear before the panel at the Indiana State Prison in Michigan City May 11; however, the hearing was delayed because Lewis was transferred to the Correctional Industrial Complex at Pendleton, according to a spokeswoman at the Parole Board's Indianapolis office.

Lewis was sentenced in 1981 to 20 years in prison for the rape of a 34-year-old Anderson woman.

Earlier this month, board members heard testimony from the victim and other persons speaking for and against Lewis' request for clemency.

Ward-Stils
'definitely

By REBECCA SNELLING
Bulletin Staff Writer

Anderson Fire investigators have a suspect in the "definitely set" Ward-Stilson fire which gutted the westside building early Friday morning.

Terry King, chief fire investigator, said the blaze at the vacant garment plant, 301 Sycamore St., was "definitely incendiary, definitely set." He was unable to comment further as the investigation is continuing.

King estimated replacement value of the building to be in the multi-million dollar range. The approximate market value for the present building would have been between $100,000 and $200,000, he added.

Other than some minor office supplies such as cabinetry, the building was empty, King said.

The structure was built in the 1800s by Hayes Wheeling, a wagon wheel manufacturer, King said. Later Ward-Stilson occupied the building, manufacturing clothing and, during wartime, tents for the U.S. Army, he added. The building was vacated within the last 10

The structure was built in the 1800s by Hayes Wheeling, a wagon wheel manufacturer, King said. Later Ward-Stilson occupied the building, manufacturing clothing and, during wartime, tents for the U.S. Army, he added. The building was vacated within the last 10 years, he said.

Most recently, the building was owned by Ralph Reed. In January, Madison County gained ownership due to delinquent property tax payments.

Called to the fire scene at 3:25 a.m. Friday, King said he continued his investigation for 13 hours. Five other fire investigators assisted him.

Anderson firefighters originally were dispatched to the scene at 3:06 a.m. Friday and remained there most of the day. According to King, flames were shooting 80 to 100 feet in the air when the firefighters arrived. Shortly thereafter, the back wall fell outward.

AFD Shift Commander Marvin Taylor said most of the fire was in the rear center of the building, leading authorities to believe that is the point of origin.

Firefighters returned to the site around 9 a.m. today to extinguish hot spots where buried trash had re-ignited, Taylor said this morning. They remained there an hour.

Friday, 27 firefighters — employing five fire trucks, a snorkel truck, rescue truck and an ambulance — brought the blaze under control about 5 a.m.

23 graduate from leadership academy

Twenty-three local residents will be graduated tonight in a special Anderson Leadership Academy ceremony.

The event at the Anderson Country Club marks the completion of the fifth academy class.

Co-sponsored by Anderson College and the Anderson Area Chamber of Commerce, the academy's goal is to develop informed and capable leaders who will assume active roles in promotion of Anderson's future growth.

Ray McCaslin, chairman of the academy's board of directors, complimented the class, noting, "These individuals have had an opportunity to hear a wide range of community directors and professionals and are now ready to take their places in leadership roles for our community.

According to Vicky Harrison, academy executive director, graduates were responsible for attending class sessions and preparing a paper or project on some aspect of Anderson community life.

Tom Bruce, program coordinator, praised this year's class members for their research projects. Bruce noted the project studies will be of benefit to the community. Project titles included "Services for the Elderly in Anderson, Indiana," "A Study of the Real Estate Market for Anderson and the Surrounding Areas," "Moving the Kids on the Block," "Prepared for Today," "Starting A Small Business," "Anderson Research Center: A Concept" and "Energy-Today's Overview International and National."

Dr. Joseph Rawlings, dean of the School of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, will be keynote speaker.

Mayor Thomas McMahan will be master of ceremonies, and McCaslin will present an update on the academy. Bringing greetings to the graduates will be Dr. Robert A. Nicholson, president of Anderson College, and Meredith Church, president of the Anderson Area Chamber of Commerce. Organist George Smith of George Smith's Music Center will present dinner music.

Bruce invites interested community individuals to apply for the 1986-87 fall leadership academy. Applications are available through the Office of College Relations at Anderson College.

Remember when?

It was almost an all-male act for the Anderson Board of Realtors in 1949, as this photo shows. A large number of women are now involved in the real estate business here and across the nation. This photo was loaned to the Bulletin by Michael A. Schrenker of Anderson. If you have any photos of Anderson or Madison County persons, places or things, bring them to the Bulletin newsroom. They may be suitable for "Remember when?" We are not accepting any group photos at this time.

23 graduate from leadership academy

Twenty-three local residents will be graduated tonight in a special Anderson Leadership Academy ceremony.

The event at the Anderson Country Club marks the completion of the fifth academy class.

Co-sponsored by Anderson College and the Anderson Area Chamber of Commerce, the academy's goal is to develop informed and capable leaders who will assume active roles in promotion of Anderson's future growth.

Ray McCaslin, chairman of the academy's board of directors, complimented the class, noting, "These individuals have had an opportunity to hear a wide range of community directors and professionals and are now ready to take their places in leadership roles for our community.

According to Vicky Harrison, academy executive director, graduates were responsible for attending class sessions and preparing a paper or project on some aspect of Anderson community life.

Tom Bruce, program coordinator, praised this year's class members for their research projects. Bruce noted the project studies will be of benefit to the community. Project titles included "Services for the Elderly in Anderson, Indiana," "A Study of the Real Estate Market for Anderson and the Surrounding Areas," "Moving the Kids on the Block," "Prepared for Today," "Starting A Small Business," "Anderson Research Center: A Concept" and "Energy-Today's Overview International and National."

Dr. Joseph Rawlings, dean of the School of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, will be keynote speaker.

Mayor Thomas McMahan will be master of ceremonies, and McCaslin will present an update on the academy. Bringing greetings to the graduates will be Dr. Robert A. Nicholson, president of Anderson College, and Meredith Church, president of the Anderson Area Chamber of Commerce. Organist George Smith of George Smith's Music Center will present dinner music.

Bruce invites interested community individuals to apply for the 1986-87 fall leadership academy. Applications are available through the Office of College Relations at Anderson College.

My first dog was a little mutt named Sparky. He had a curly tail and liked chasing rats. His mother was a neighbor's dog, and his father was a wandering stranger who got lucky.

When Sparky died of old age, we dug a hole in a corner of the yard, put him in a crate from the vegetable store, and used a brick with his name painted on it as a gravestone.

That and a faded old snapshot in one of the family albums were his only memorials.

But if Sparky had been born at a later time, such as now, we could have done so much more.

We might have placed him in something called "The Animal Hall of Fame Almanac," which is sort of a Who's Who of the beloved pet world

Yes, a company in California — where else? — is now publishing fancy leather-bound "heirloom" books that will contain the pictures and biographies of 500 beloved pets. Dogs, cats, birds, horses, maybe even gerbils.

As the company says in their sales literature:

"Turner-Bradshaw proudly announces the opening of enrollments fo the 1986 Animal Hall of Fame Almanac.

"This almanac is a limited edition masterpiece featuring pets from around the world with photos and stories submitted by their owners.

"Entrance into the almanac is limited to only 500 pets per edition. Each edition is printed once a year. Every pet is featured in his or her own full page.

"Think of it. . .Now you can immortalize your loved one. Enshrine him or her forever in a stunning volume that will be passed on for generations.

"What a masterpiece.

"One glance tells it. . . .The Almanac is much larger than your

For example, the military documents both state that Clark mustered into service on 11 August 1862 in the 63rd Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, but the enrollment book states Clark entered military service in 1861. The physical descriptions of Clark in the official papers vary slightly, too (e.g., blue or grey eyes?) However, enough similarities exist to consider reasonably that the military papers and the GAR entry concern the same man, born in Clinton (per discharge), Vermillion County (per AGO), Indiana (per all three sources), who was 21 when he entered service in August 1862 (AGO), 24 when he was discharged in June 1865 (discharge), and 45 when he [presumably] joined the GAR in November 1885.

Wind power sweeps across Hoosier state

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana still ranks near the top of states with new large-scale wind power developments.

A report from the American Wind Energy Association (AWEA) shows Indiana installed 905 megawatts of wind power in 2009, second only to Texas. The AWEA says in 2008 Indiana had the fastest wind power growth in the U.S.

Life sciences firm gets new partner

INDIANAPOLIS — Biotechnology firm ImmuneWorks has reached a joint agreement with a California company that will fund research and development efforts for the next three years.

Lung Rx, a unit of United Therapeutics Corp., is investing an undisclosed amount of capital to fund ImmuneWorks' research and development activities with the option of acquiring the company. ImmuneWorks' drugs focus on niche lung diseases.

Biopharma providers reporting growth

INDIANAPOLIS — A new report from BioCrossroads shows Indiana's contract pharmaceutical research and manufacturing companies continued to expand in 2009 despite the sluggish economy and proposed health care reform.

Last year, new service providers were established, facility expansions were announced and service line extensions were added by companies including AIT Laboratories, BioConvergence, BioStorage Technologies and Covance.

Study: Minimum wage hike cost jobs

MUNCIE — A new study from Ball State University's Center for Business and Economic Research (CBER) suggests increasing the minimum wage may have prompted the elimination of 550,000 jobs.

CBER Director Michael Hicks says raising the minimum wage to the current $7.25 during the recession caused some businesses to scale back.

Life pumped into landmark building

CLARKSVILLE — A southern Indiana landmark that had been empty has landed a new tenant.

Atlanta-based Global Information Systems LLC says it is leasing space in the former Colgate-Palmolive Co. plant in Clarksville.

The company will move its Atlanta office and operations in Sellersburg and Jeffersonville into the new space. Company officials are not revealing the number of jobs involved in the project.

Notre Dame tuition approaches $40,000

SOUTH BEND — The University of Notre Dame says it is increasing tuition 3.8 percent for the 2010-11 academic year to $39,919.

The room and board rate will average $10,866. The university says it's the smallest increase since 1960. Meanwhile, Notre Dame will increase scholarship assistance for the next academic year by 18 percent to $98 million.

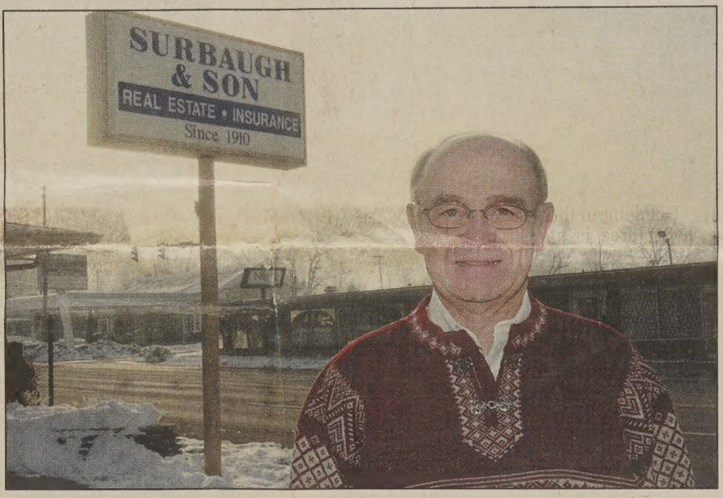
Surbaugh & Son turns 100

Real estate company has changed over a century

By Aleasha Sandley
The Herald Bulletin



Don Knight / The Herald Bulletin

Bill Surbaugh's company, Surbaugh & Sons, is 100 years old this year.

ANDERSON — When Surbaugh & Son real estate company first started operating in Anderson, buying a house involved going door-to-door to real estate offices looking at what they had to offer.

Today, 100 years later, house hunting can be as simple as the click of a mouse.

Surbaugh & Son will celebrate its 100-year anniversary April 1. The company was started by Will Surbaugh in 1910, and his son, George, joined the business in 1948. Since then, both have deceased, and George's son Bill has taken over the family business that he joined in 1972.

The business has remained small throughout its 100 years, just the way Bill Surbaugh likes it.

"I never aspired to be the big guy," he said. "I like to have direct customer contact. The larger you are, when economic conditions change, it's harder to make adjustments."

During their time in Anderson, the Surbaughs have committed themselves to their community. Although he isn't an Anderson native, Bill Surbaugh has served boards such as Maplewood Cemetery, Anderson Public Library, Madison County Community Foundation, Center for Mental Health and Indiana Public Radio. He has been a part of real estate professional associations, school-related committees, religious organizations and Rotary Club.

The elder Surbaughs also were community-oriented, and Will Surbaugh served as president of the state real estate association in the 1920s.

"If you live and work in a community, I think you have a social responsibility to be involved and give back to your community," Bill Surbaugh said. "You should give back to your community where you earn your living. It's just good business to be involved."

Although Surbaugh & Son has changed over the years, Bill Surbaugh now is focused on commercial, residential, industrial and agricultural real estate, and the company has a firm that manages market-rate rentals, as well. More than three years ago, Bill Surbaugh sold the portion of the business that sold property and casualty insurance.

Some of Bill Surbaugh's most notable sales include the property on South Scatterfield Road where Lowe's sits, buildings at the Flagship Enterprise Center park, a Remy building and the former Guide Plant 6, he said.

The sell of large industrial buildings is a far cry from the single-family homes Will and George Surbaugh built during their careers. Real estate also has changed in the way home buyers finance their homes, Bill Surbaugh said.

Back when Will Surbaugh started Surbaugh & Son in what is now the Union Building in downtown Anderson, most properties were sold on contract with the real estate agency. Bank financing wasn't popularized until the 1960s or '70s, Bill Surbaugh said.

"The Realtors were acting as bankers," he said.

Also today, the cooperation between real estate agencies has resulted in multiple listing services, which came about in the early 1970s, where buyers can shop for houses represented by multiple agencies. Educational requirements for real estate agents have changes as well, resulting in more training and certifications.

Today's is the toughest sales market Bill Surbaugh has ever experienced, he said, even comparing it to the market in the early 1980s when unemployment and interest rates were higher.

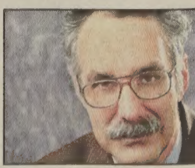
'China First' policy reflects different perspective



Robert Samuelson

WASHINGTON — It's become apparent from recent events that America's political, business and scholarly elites have fundamentally misjudged China.

Conflicts with China have multiplied. Consider: the undervalued renminbi and its effect on trade; the breakdown of global warming negotiations in Copenhagen; China's weak support of efforts to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons; its similarly poor record in pushing North Korea to relinquish its tiny atomic arsenal; the sale of U.S. weapons to Taiwan; and Google's threat to leave China rather than condone continued censorship.

The United States and China view the world in starkly different terms.

The lesson of the Great Depression and World War II for Americans was that isolationism was self-defeating. Tried after World War I, it failed. The United States had to engage abroad to protect its economy and physical security. These core ideas remain the bedrock justifications for overseas military commitments and the promotion of an open world economy. The quest is for stability, not empire.

China, too, covets stability. But its history and perspective are different, as Martin Jacques shows in his masterful "When China Rules the World." Starting with the first Opium War (1839-42) — when England insisted on importing opium from India — China suffered a string of military defeats and humiliating treaties that gave England, France and other nations trading and political privileges.

In the 20th century, China was balkanized by civil war and Japanese invasion. Not until the communists' 1949 triumph in the civil war was there again a unified national government. These experiences left legacies: fear of disorder and memory of foreign exploitation.

Since 1978, China's economy has increased roughly 10-fold. The prevailing American assumption was that as China became richer, its interests and values would converge with those of the United States. China would depend increasingly on a thriving global economy. Freer domestic markets would loosen the stranglehold of the Communist Party. The United States and China would not always agree, but disputes would be manageable.

It isn't turning out that way. A wealthier China has become more assertive, notes Jacques. American prestige has further suffered from the financial crisis originating in the United States.

But the fissure goes deeper: China does not accept the legitimacy and desirability of the post-World War II global order, which involves collective responsibility among great powers (led by the United States) for world economic stability and peace.

China's policies reflect a different notion: China First.

Unlike the isolationist America First movement of the 1930s, China First does not mean global disengagement. It does mean engagement on China's terms. China accepts and supports the existing order when that serves its needs, as when it joined the World Trade Organization in 2001. Otherwise, it plays by its own rules and norms.

Trade policy is explicitly discriminatory to address two crucial problems: surplus labor and scarce commodities. The undervalued renminbi aims to help create 20 million or more jobs that Jacques cites as needed annually. China is scouring the globe to make investments in secure raw materials, particularly fuel. The object of "economic reform," Jacques writes, was "never Westernization" but "a desire to restore the (Communist) Party's legitimacy."

Robert J. Samuelson is a business columnist with The Washington Post. His column appears Sundays in The Herald Bulletin.

Karen,

I would really love to see you. My husband is having a colonoscopy done Tues, Aug 27 but if nothing is seriously wrong, we should be home while you are here. I will give you my phone number and you can call before you try to hunt me up.

Are you coming to Oklahoma anyway, or just to see me? There's a chance my husband will be in the hospital by the time you get here, but hopefully not. He's been ill since Jul 4th and they are gonna have to find out something. I'd sure hate for you to waste the trip, but if you're coming to do some research, etc., anyway, it wouldn't be so bad.

Do you plan to go to the Okla. Historical Society? It is just South of the State Capital bldg on Lincoln Blvd., near NE 23rd st.

If everthing goes okay with my husband, I'll be able to take you to see the old homestead where James Henry Harrell, brother of Nancy Harrell Swinford lived when he came to Okla. My brother & I still own the property.

I will try to make copies of some of the pictures I think you'll be most interested in. That way you can take them back with you. Also, if your mom or uncle has any old pictures, I'd love to see them. That might help me identify some of mine, if I have one of the same person.

By the way, if you reserve a motel room in Oklahoma City, don't try to get close to the historical society. It's not a very good section of town.
The northwest and southwest sections of town are the best (and safest).
There are also motels in the Midwest City area, along I-40 that are okay and convenient to the Historical Society. I live about 10 miles East of Midwest City and a few miles North at Choctaw.

My phone number is 405-390-2606. To find my house, you would go East on I-40 to exit 166 (Choctaw Road Exit). Go North on Choctaw Road a little over 9 miles to NE 50th St. Turn West and go almost 1/2 mile. Our house

Kroger, Shell make discount deal

By Dan Sewell
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — The Kroger Co. and Shell Oil are combining forces to offer gas discounts for grocery shoppers at Shell stations.

The deal provides a major expansion of the largest U.S. traditional grocer's ability to offer gas incentives, an increasingly popular industry tool for building loyalty among recession-squeezed households.

Beginning Monday, regular Kroger shoppers in five markets in Ohio, Tennessee and California can get at least 10 cents off a gallon at about 200 Shell stations after buying $100 in groceries. Adding Shell to Kroger's own gas stations will triple the number of places shoppers can get discounts in those markets — and will give Kroger shoppers 75 Shell stations to get gas breaks in the San Diego area, an intensely competitive grocery market where Kroger's Ralphs stores don't sell gas.

The companies could eventually spread their deal to all 31 states Kroger operates in.

"We don't have any definite plans, but it's safe to say both companies are looking to expand this," said Jeff Fike, Kroger's director of fuel marketing.

Neither side would disclose terms of the deal, but both expect it to draw new customers. Shell has about 14,000 stations in the U.S., Kroger nearly 2,500 grocery stores.

Regional chains such as Giant Eagle and Meijer are among Kroger competitors that also offer fuel breaks. Supervalu's Bigg's stores in the Cincinnati area have offered gas discounts through local Sunoco stations.

The recession has most shoppers looking to cut pennies off their bills, and gas bargains are particularly pleasing to consumers.

"To Americans, saving money on gasoline is like finding dollar bills on the street," said Tom Kloza of Oil Price Information Service, who tracks loyalty programs. "It has incredible allure."

"It's huge," said Pat Gilligan, who owns a string of Shell stations in the Cincinnati-Dayton area, where Kroger dominates the market. "Everybody's household is on budget these days, and they're all looking for ways to save money."

"The psychology of the buyer today ... has caused people to lose confidence, and we are in the process of rebuilding consumer confidence," he said. "You have to know how to operate in the downtimes. It's not impossible. The professionals are really those that know how to do it in good and bad times."

Bill Surbaugh said he didn't know yet what the business would do for its 100th anniversary celebration in April, but he credited the company's customers with its success.

"Maybe it hasn't hit me as much as it should, but I have been doing what I'm supposed to do to help buyers, sellers and customers," he said. "The community has been very nice with us and we have appreciated their confidence and loyalty in helping them to achieve their goals."

Bill Surbaugh said he didn't always know he would take over the family business. He spent two years in the Peace Corps in Turkey — which he said is the best training for any type of customer service job — before earning his MBA from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., and working as a certified public accountant. He came back to his hometown of Anderson in 1972 after he and his wife, Cheryl, decided the travel required by his career was not a good way to raise a family.

"We came back to Anderson for lifestyle," he said. "We've not looked back."

Bill and Cheryl Surbaugh have two children, a daughter in Brooklyn, N.Y., and a son in Tofte, Minn., who runs a real estate business there. Bill Surbaugh doesn't anticipate continuing Surbaugh & Son as a family business after his time there and said he doesn't know what he will do with the business when he is ready to retire and move to Wisconsin with his wife.

"I'll think about that when the time comes," he said. "It just depends on what I choose to do at that time. I've always said that as long as I was having fun, challenged and that it was economically viable, I would stay here."

One of Bill Surbaugh's customers, Leon Filburn, has worked with Surbaugh & Son for a long time and received help buying and selling farm properties.

"I feel like Bill is a very good individual to work with for both buyer and seller," Filburn said. "I think he's very fair, very honest, very thorough and very hardworking. Surbaugh carries a very good name."

Gene Roop bought a house with Bill Surbaugh's assistance in January, when he moved to Anderson from Richmond. The Realtor told him not to look through houses until he was in a position to buy one, otherwise he would find the right house at the wrong time.

"The kind of way he guided us through and some of the helpful advice he gave us was remarkable," Roop said. "His decades of experience really showed I think. I can imagine that almost everybody feels like Bill thinks they're the most important person in the world. We certainly did."

Individual insurance rates soar in 3 states

TRENTON, N.J. — Consumers in at least three states who buy their own health insurance are getting hit with premium increases of 15 percent or more.

Anthem Blue Cross plans in California and Maine are planning rate increases of up to 39 percent and 24 percent, respectively. The increases affect some customers who purchase individual health insurance, rather than getting it through their employer.

In Oregon, multiple insurers were granted rate hikes of 15 percent or more this year after increases of around 25 percent last year.

The sticker shock has infuriated many consumers. Groups in Maine are planning big rallies this month.

Politicians and even some health insurers are urging a revival of the stalled effort in Congress to overhaul the health care system.

What Is This Thing Called The Motley Fool?

Remember Shakespeare?
Remember "As You Like It"?
In Elizabethan days, Fools were the only people who could get away with telling the truth to the King or Queen.

Q Is it too late for me to refinance my mortgage? — S.H., Modesto, Calif.

A Rates have inched up recently, but they're still very low, historically speaking. Depending on your current mortgage's interest rate and some other factors, refinancing may still be very beneficial for you. Learn more at www.fool.com/homecenter and www.bankrate.com.

Q How does investing with margin work? — J.M., Victoria, Texas

A Buying stocks "on margin" involves investing with money borrowed from your brokerage, on which you pay interest.

The upside is that it can amplify your performance. As an extreme example, imagine that you hold $100,000 of stocks and you borrow $100,000 on margin to invest in additional stock. If your $200,000 portfolio doubles in value to $400,000, you'll have earned an extra $100,000 (less interest expense), thanks to margin. But if your holdings drop by 50 percent, they'll be worth $100,000, and you'll still owe $100,000 (plus interest). That will leave you with … nothing. Your holdings dropped by 50 percent, but margin amplified that to a total (100 percent) loss. Margin cuts both ways.

If you're borrowing on margin and paying 10 percent interest, you should be pretty confident your borrowed stocks will appreciate more than 10 percent. If your margined securities fall below a certain level, you'll receive a "margin call." If you can't add the required additional dollars, the brokerage will sell some of your holdings to generate the cash. This can sting, possibly resulting in short-term capital gains taxed at high rates.

Only experienced investors should use margin, and many do well avoiding it altogether. It's smart to limit yourself to borrowing no more than 20 percent of what your actual holdings are worth.

Frightening Findings

The folks at the CCH Group, which provides tax services, surveyed more than 1,000 adults nationwide — and had some frightening findings.

For starters, some 66 percent of taxpayers are afraid they may be overlooking some tax breaks or making mistakes that could cost them in fines or penalties. Considering that our tax code fills some 70,000 pages and contains nearly 4 million words, who could really be expected to master it? Even the IRS itself has trouble. In 2005, a quality check found that the 3.5 million people asking questions at the IRS's Taxpayer Assistance Centers got correct information only 66 percent of the time.

Meanwhile, only 22 percent of taxpayers knew whether a tax deduction or tax credit is more valuable. The answer: Tax credits are more valuable. A deduction permits you to reduce your taxable income so that you pay less in taxes. If you're in a 25 percent tax bracket and you reduce your taxable income by $1,000, you save $250. A credit, meanwhile, reduces your tax bill dollar-for-dollar. A $1,000 credit lops a full $1,000 off your tax bill.

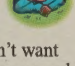
It seems that only about half of taxpayers are planning to contribute to tax-advantaged retirement plans in 2009. Not good! Remember that the dollars you contribute today can do much more for you than the dollars you contribute in 10 years. These dollars will have 10 extra years in which to grow. (You can still contribute to an IRA for 2009, until April 15, 2010.)

Finally, most taxpayers think getting a tax refund is better than owing taxes on April 15. Well, yes, it's always nicer to receive money than to pay it. But if you get a refund, it's only because you paid more than you needed to during the year, while Uncle Sam enjoyed the benefit of your money. It could have been serving you instead, perhaps at least earning some interest in a bank account.

Become a savvier taxpayer by spending a little time in our Tax Center at www.taxes.fool.com.

My Dumbest Investment

Too-Small Profits



My most recent dumbest investment move has been selling anything after March 2009. Several times I've sold when stocks had come down 10 percent off a high only to see them go back up above their previous highs. I figured the market had already risen nicely, and I'd already made a good profit on them, and I didn't want to lose my earnings. I'm supposed to be in it for the long haul, but when things go up 50 or 100 percent, it's hard not get twitchy on the sell trigger. But I'm learning to ride it out. — Josh Turner, Jakarta, Indonesia

The Fool Responds: When to sell can be a tricky decision. Some people like to get out after making a little money, but then they can lose out on making a LOT of money. Your best strategy is to not focus on how much you've made or lost, but on how much you expect to make in the future on a given stock. If it still seems undervalued, hang on. If it seems overvalued, sell. If you're really torn, compromise and sell some of your shares.

Do you have an embarrassing lesson learned the hard way? Boil it down to 100 words (or less) and send it to The Motley Fool c/o My Dumbest Investment. Got one that worked? Submit to My Smartest Investment. If we print yours, you'll win a Fool's cap!

The Motley Fool Take

IBM Gets in Shape

Most of the coverage of IBM's (NYSE: IBM) recent fourth-quarter earnings report relates to whether its expectations-busting quarter is further evidence of a tech rally already under way.

The reports largely ignored these important numbers: Total debt fell 23 percent, to $26.1 billion, and debt unrelated to financing customer purchases fell 61 percent, to $3.7 billion. Because of these aggressive debt payoffs, interest expense fell $111 million, or 57 percent. That's why IBM earned 10 percent more in per-share net income in the fourth quarter, even in the face of 1 percent revenue growth. Debt reduction accounted for almost 29 percent of IBM's earnings gain.

Numbers like these have absolutely nothing to do with a forthcoming tech rally, but they are indicators of competent management looking to position the business for the long term.

Revenue growth could return soon. The company's services contract signings have improved by 9 percent to $18.8 billion and included 22 deals worth at least $100 million.

And Big Blue's software division saw a slight bump over last year, mostly thanks to its WebSphere middleware for connecting business systems. WebSphere revenue rose 13 percent.

In the race to recover from a down economy, IBM is like a marathon runner — a slimmed-down beast that keeps getting in better shape.

FOOLISH TRIVIA

Name That Company

Born in Charlotte, N.C., in 1959, today I operate more than 6,600 stores in 44 states. I'm a Fortune 500 company, and serve mainly low- to middle-income customers, offering them everything from cat litter to hair clips and soda. My name is a variation of Kinfolk Bill or Clan Pelf. I rake in more than $7 billion annually, and I've been paying a dividend since 1976 and increasing it each year. 2008 was a miserable year for the stock market, but my stock was the best performer in the S&P 500 that year, rising a whopping 38 percent. Who am I?

Know the answer? Send it to us with Foolish Trivia on the top and you'll be entered into a drawing for a nifty prize!

LAST WEEK'S TRIVIA ANSWER

I'm the world's leading producer of primary aluminum, fabricated aluminum and alumina, serving, among others, the aerospace, automotive, packaging, building and construction, commercial transportation, and industrial markets. (I'm sustainable, too: Almost 70 percent of all the aluminum ever produced is still in use.) I was also America's second-largest real estate developer, at one time. Today I produce all kinds of things, such as wheels, fastening systems, precision castings, and many parts of planes, buses, trucks and cars. I employ more than 60,000 people, and in recent years I've raked in between about $20 billion and $30 billion annually. Who am I? (Answer: Alcoa)

Subject: Re: Trip

Karen,

I would really love to see you. My husband is having a colonoscopy done Tues, Aug 27 but if nothing is seriously wrong, we should be home while you are here. I will give you my phone number and you can call before you try to hunt me up.

Are you coming to Oklahoma anyway, or just to see me? There's a chance my husband will be in the hospital by the time you get here, but hopefully not. He's been ill since Jul 4th and they are gonna have to find out something. I'd sure hate for you to waste the trip, but if you're coming to do some research, etc., anyway, it wouldn't be so bad.

Do you plan to go to the Okla. Historical Society? It is just South of the State Capital bldg on Lincoln Blvd., near NE 23rd st.

If everthing goes okay with my husband, I'll be able to take you to see the old homestead where James Henry Harrell, brother of Nancy Harrell Swinford lived when he came to Okla. My brother & I still own the property.

I will try to make copies of some of the pictures I think you'll be most interested in. That way you can take them back with you. Also, if your mom or uncle has any old pictures, I'd love to see them. That might help me identify some of mine, if I have one of the same person.

By the way, if you reserve a motel room in Oklahoma City, don't try to get close to the historical society. It's not a very good section of town.
The northwest and southwest sections of town are the best (and safest). There are also motels in the Midwest City area, along I-40 that are okay and convenient to the Historical Society. I live about 10 miles East of Midwest City and a few miles North at Choctaw.

My phone number is 405-390-2606. To find my house, you would go East on I-40 to exit 166 (Choctaw Road Exit). Go North on Choctaw Road a little over 9 miles to NE 50th St. Turn West and go almost 1/2 mile. Our house is a pink brick with two big trees right in front of it. It has a carport on the front and there is usually a full-size conversion Van sitting under the carport. The name Dale Lee is on the mailbox.

I look forward to seeing you.

Justices reject claim of innocence in slaying

By Larry O'Dell
The Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — The Virginia Supreme Court unanimously refused Friday to exonerate a former Navy SEAL trainee in the abduction and murder of a woman he met at a Virginia Beach nightclub in 1995, ruling that another man's confession that he alone strangled the victim was insufficient to prove Dustin Turner was innocent.

Turner, 36, of Bloomington, Ind., is serving an 82-year prison sentence for the slaying of 21-year-old Emory University student Jennifer Evans. Another former SEAL trainee, Billy Joe Brown of Dayton, Ohio, was convicted in a separate trial and is serving 72 years.

Brown originally blamed Turner for the killing, but changed his story in 2003. Saying he had become a Christian and wanted to set the record straight, Brown claimed in sworn affidavits that he alone strangled Evans and all Turner did was help him dispose of her body at a Newport News park.

Turner filed for a "writ of actual innocence." A circuit court judge found Brown's confession credible, and a Virginia Court of Appeals panel ruled 2-1 that Brown should be exonerated because no rational jury or judge would have convicted him had they had access to the new information. The full appeals court reversed that decision, however, and Turner appealed to the Supreme Court.

The justices agreed with the full appeals court that a jury could have concluded that Turner abducted Evans through deception with the intent of sexually assaulting her, which would make him as responsible as Brown for the subsequent murder.

"The fact that Brown now confesses that he acted alone in restraining and choking Evans does not absolve Turner of his guilt," Justice Donald Lemons wrote.

Murder charges dropped in case

FORT WAYNE — A man who was charged with fatally shooting a pizza deliveryman in Fort Wayne has pleaded guilty to robbery.

Prosecutors dropped the more serious charges in exchange for the guilty plea on Thursday from 20-year-old Andre Washington of Fort Wayne in connection with the 2009 death of Ian Crace, who was robbed and shot twice after making a pizza delivery.

Defense attorney Michelle Kraus said the plea agreement was in Washington's best interest following allegations that he threatened a prosecution witness while both were jailed.

Kokomo police chase ends with man's shooting

TIPTON — A Kokomo police officer shot and wounded a 25-year-old man after police say he led local law enforcement on a two-county car chase into southern Tipton County late Wednesday.

Indiana State Police Detective Tony Frawley said the officer, who has not been identified, shot Reed M. Turner once in the chest after Turner refused demands to show his hands.

The officer told investigators that he saw a chrome or silver object in Turner's right hand, Frawley said. Fearing the object was a handgun, the officer fired one shot from his .40 caliber Glock handgun.

The investigation revealed that the object was a cologne bottle and not a gun.

Turner survived the shooting and is recovering in Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. His injuries are not believed to be life-threatening, Frawley said.

At the request of the Kokomo Police Department, the Indiana State Police's Peru Post is investigating the shooting.

Frawley said his preliminary investigation showed that shortly after 11 p.m., the unnamed officer stopped a 1991 Chevrolet Geo driven by Turner for speeding and driving left of center near Wheeler and Bell streets in Kokomo.

As the officer was speaking to Turner, he reportedly sped away, leading officers from the Kokomo Police Department and the Howard County Sheriff Department on a 12-minute pursuit.

Turner allegedly exited his vehicle and approached several officers positioned behind his car. Investigators said Turner then reached his right hand behind his back.

Turner ignored repeated commands to stop and show his hands, Frawley said. Officers released a police dog to take down Turner. Turner ran to his left to avoid the dog and brought his right hand from behind his back while still facing several officers, Frawley said. That's when Frawley said the KPD officer fired one shot, hitting Turner in the chest.

Marsh cards can benefit AHS band

ANDERSON — People who shop at Marsh Supermarkets and use their Fresh Idea cards can help earn the Anderson High School band money.

If cards are registered with the Anderson band, points accumulate every time they are used. The band can then use the points to purchase supplies or instruments.

For more information, contact Marsh's customer service department or call Anne at (317) 498-6031 or Jen at 228-9569.

Hospital foundation to honor six at event

ANDERSON — The Community Hospital Anderson Foundation will sponsor a recognition dinner on Thursday, Sept. 22, at 6 p.m. at the Anderson Country Club.

Two employees will be honored with the Community Hospital Anderson S.E.R.V.E. Award for their excellent customer service: Bobbi Eads, registered nurse with Community's Center for Advanced Wound Healing, and Kim Hill, financial counselor with Patient Accounts.

Four physicians will also be honored with the William J. Tierney Physician Award of Excellence: Drs. William Anderson, Ronald Beahm, Gerald Irwin and Stephen Wright.

The public is invited to attend the dinner at $35 per person. RSVP by Sept. 16 to 298-5133.

Breakfast Exchange Club meets Tuesday

ANDERSON — The Breakfast Exchange Club will hold its meeting on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria area of Saint John's Medical Center.

Guest speaker will be Jama Donovan, director of Children's Bureau/Exchange Club Family Resource Center. She is one of the candidates for CASA's Child Advocate Award winners.

For more information, contact Betty Land at 621-5247 or Donna Powers at 642-1661.

Ivy Tech location to be near airport

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Airport Authority and Ivy Tech Community College have announced a lease agreement under which Ivy Tech will launch its newest location, Ivy Tech at IND Aerotropolis, on IAA property near the Indianapolis International Airport.

Ivy Tech will lease space in one of the buildings formerly occupied by ATA, with options to lease additional space as buildings become available.

The new building contains 19,615 square feet. Some renovations will be required to make the space more appropriate for classrooms and labs.

Ivy Tech will begin offering classes in spring 2012, starting with general education courses and followed by logistical and business courses in the summer and fall of 2012.

Witnesses: Plane spiraled into Noblesville golf course

Two Purdue students killed in accident

NOBLESVILLE — A small plane that crashed into a suburban Indianapolis golf course was flying normally on a clear day just before witnesses say it suddenly spiraled into the ground, killing two Purdue University students onboard.

The single-engine plane crashed into the Harbour Trees Golf Club, which winds through a neighborhood along Morse Reservoir in Noblesville, early Thursday evening. The plane smashed to a halt in a sand trap next to a putting green, leaving scorch marks on the nearby fairway.

Federal aviation investigators were returning to the golf course Friday to try to determine the cause of the crash, Noblesville police Lt. Bruce Barnes said.

The crash killed pilot Joshua Deboer, 21, of Chicago Heights, Ill., and passenger Joseph Neuzerling, 21, of Noblesville, according to police.

Both were mechanical engineering students at Purdue, school spokeswoman Jeanne Norberg said. The privately owned plane took off from the university's airport near West Lafayette about a half hour before the crash, she said.

"This is a tragic loss for not only their family and friends, but for everyone in the Purdue community," Norberg said. "Both these young men had bright futures."

Rob Goebel / The Associated Press

Noblesville police come to the aid of a spectator overcome by grief at the sight of a small plane crash in Noblesville on Thursday. The single-engine plane crashed into a golf course that winds through a neighborhood along Morse Reservoir in Noblesville.

Nearby resident Eric Smith said that he was the first person to reach the plane after it circled above the golf course near his home and then "corkscrewed" into the ground.

He said the crash sounded "like a gunshot — one thump, then done."

Smith said he pulled away a wing that was lying on top of one of the occupants, but that the man had no pulse. Only when emergency personnel arrived did he realize there was a second man in the plane.

Another witness said nothing appeared wrong until just before the crash.

Bridge closing hurts nearby Indiana casino

Tyler Bissmeyer / The Associated Press

Traffic from southern Indiana backs up on the George Rogers Clark Memorial Bridge in downtown Louisville, Ky., during the morning rush hour Monday. The bridge was converted to three southbound lanes in the morning to accommodate more traffic caused by the closing of the Sherman Minton Bridge.

ELIZABETH — A southern Indiana casino says it is bouncing back from smaller crowds it saw in the days after the closest bridge over the Ohio River was closed last week.

Horseshoe Southern Indiana Casino saw its business drop by more than 10 percent last weekend right after state officials closed the Sherman Minton Bridge, which carries Interstate 64 between Indiana and Louisville, Ky., said Jonathan Jones, the casino's vice president of operations.

Attendance began improving in the middle of this week with the casino promoting alternative routes that add at least 10 minutes for trips from Louisville to the casino along the Ohio River near Elizabeth, Jones said.

"We are all very optimistic the business will come back and it will do so quickly," he said.

Drivers have faced long delays in the Louisville area since officials abruptly closed the 50-year-old bridge on Sept. 9 after inspectors found cracks in the span's steel.

The bridge closure trouble follows flooding from the Ohio River this spring that forced the casino to be shut down for about 15 days. The casino reported a 15 percent decline in customers and an 8.3 percent decrease in revenues for the first six months of the year, compared with the same period in 2010.

Jones said he doesn't expect the bridge closure will force the casino to lay off any of its 1,700 employees.

Jerry Sanders of Louisville wasn't happy about his trip to the casino because he got confused trying to follow a casino-suggested route through New Albany.

"It took forever," Sanders said.

Horseshoe staffers are working with New Albany officials and a sign vendor about guiding drivers on a more direct path to the casino, Jones said.

He said the casino also expects to start gasoline card giveaways and other promotions to attract gamblers in October.

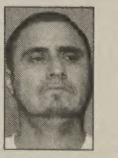
Man found guilty of domestic battery

ANDERSON — A man accused of beating his eight-month pregnant wife is to be sentenced Oct. 3 after being found guilty of numerous charges by a jury.

Alejandro Prado, 37, of Fort Wayne, was found guilty Thursday in Madison Circuit Court 3. Jurors had been selected Tuesday with the presentation of evidence on Thursday.



Prado

Witnesses said Prado beat his wife in a Wal-Mart parking lot by choking the woman and hitting her head on asphalt.

The jury found Prado guilty of criminal confinement, domestic battery, strangulation, disorderly conduct and battery resulting in bodily injury of a pregnant woman. It was unknown if the baby had been harmed. The victim had not cooperated with police prior to the trial, officials said.

Sentencing was set for 1 p.m. on Oct. 3.

EDC: Wind turbine project for Jay, Randolph counties may still be alive

PORTLAND — A major wind turbine project in southern Jay and northern Randolph counties that once appeared dead is very much alive, local officials said Tuesday.

Bill Bradley, executive director of Jay County Development Corp., told his board that the project is likely to move forward.

The project, which had been in the planning stages for several years by American Electric Power, hit a snag when AEP elected to purchase power from the developer of a proposed wind farm in central Indiana.

But a new company has stepped up to replace AEP, and Bradley said that meetings are being scheduled to reach lease agreements with property owners to locate the turbines.

Bradley said the project, which could be a total investment of $250 million, would include a total of 95 turbines — 70 of them in the southern townships of Jay County.

The handoff from AEP to the new company he declined to name has been "seamless," said Bradley.

Jim Riggle, a representative from AEP who sits on the JCDC board, told fellow board members, "You have an experienced company (now) working on this project."

Tentative plans call for construction to begin in the spring of 2013, with completion by late summer/fall — a timetable Bradley described as "aggressive."

Despite the good news on the wind project, Bradley admitted that overall business activity in terms of projects and expansions have "slowed down a little bit."

Peter Van Buskirk's Journey

Peter and family moved to Chillicothe, Ohio in 1799, ater settled along Deer Creek, Pickaway co. Ohio. Peter built the first grist mill in the vicinity of Deer Creek and operated the mill and also a distillery.

Biographical sketch - "History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties, Ohio", page 306-309 "PETER VAN BUSKIRK who married RUTH RHODES in Allengheny co. Md. before 1795, was a Maryland farmer in early days. In the year 1799 removed to Ohio, coming over the mountains with pack horses.
Theyt stopped a year in Chillicothe (Ross county), Ohio, then but a few straggling log cabins occupied the site of that, now populous city and the red man held almost undisputed possession of the soil.

After one year in Ross County, MR. VAN BUSHIRK, penetrated into the wilderness to what is now Pickaway co., Ohio, locating opn the bank of Deer Creek, near Williamsport in this county where he located on a tract of 900 acres of land that he bought of the government. By some he is regarded as the pioneer settler in Monroe twp. He erected a log cabin and with his family began the primitive life necessitated by their wild surroundings"

Memories of Mary Stover Pelfrey
January 14,1993

I had been thinking of trying to write some of my memories like my Mother did. She said that one night she couldn't sleep so she got up and wrote her family memories. The day I decided to, I looked and the date happened to be January 14, just 8 years to the day.

Frank Stover and Minnie Lee Stanley were married June 19,1911. My grandmother, Lydia VanBuskirk Stover gave her son Frank Stover 11 1/3 acres of ground when he was a young man. He teamed hauled gravel on the roads. To pay his taxes he worked with his Dad fixing wells and windmills.

Dad built a house on this 11 1/3 acres of ground, two rooms up and two down, when he was 18 years old. He slept upstairs and batched. He farmed the ground with horses. He put the corn in the downstairs rooms. He built the barn sometime later. He was putting his horse up one night and his feet go tangled up in what he thought was a cornstalk but later found out it had been a black snake.

When he was a young man, he had a terrible pain in his side. His mother said he had better go to the doctor. He went out and hitched up the horse. They went to Dr. Wilson and he gave him some medicine and told him to go right home and go to bed. Dad had pneumonia and the doctor would be out in the morning. He and Mom started back home, Mom told him later, he got the whip out and went around everything on the street and they just flew down Madison Ave. When they got home he unhitched the buggy and put the horse away. When she told him about it he never remembered anything, and when the doctor came the next morning, Dad was unconscious, was throwing up blood and was bad for several days. They never thought he would live. They said prayer was what saved him.

Dad, Margaret and Willard went to school at the old Sugar Grove School, northwest of Anderson due west of where they lived. Sometimes called the Whitinger School because it stood on their farm, donated by Whitinger on the ground, which is now part of Oak Park Addition. The old brick structure was torn down a number of years ago. James Mohan was the teacher. It was a

The clipping on the back of picture was well known by my dad. He attended all 8 grades and 2 years of high school at the Lincoln Building. He attended Indianapolis College and Butler University. He was born in Delaware County, Muncie, Indiana on 11/12/1886 and died on 7/16/1963.

Margaret went through the 8th grade. She went as far as she could go on the piano and voice, took lessons from Professor Nealey. She had arrangements to go to Chicago to sing in churches. Mom got sick. She spent her life working on the farm and caring for her mother and father, Lydia and Alex Stover and one brother who never married Willard Orville Stover. Margaret (Maggie) never married.

Alexander Stover	born 01/06/1851 departed this life 3/22/1931-age 79 yrs. 2 months and 16 days.

Alexander Stover was the son of Joseph and Susan Stover. He was married to Lydia Ann VanBuskirk on 11/10/1881. He was a member of the Knight Golden Eagles for 45 years. The minister in charge was Mr. Ross of Park Place Church. They are buried in Delaware County Indiana in the Jones Cemetery on Jackson Street Pike. The Church across the road from the cemetery was where Lydia Stover's funeral was held.

When she was a little girl she carried bricks to help build the church. I have 2 pictures my dad and I took of the house and barn where she was raised. A two story brick house and a barn. At that time there was a brickyard that made the brick for the house behind the barn. Took brick and built churches and schoolhouses around there from this brickyard. Granddaddy James VanBuskirk built the house and barn. He had 200 acres.

Lydia Stover had a sister Caldra who lived across the road from the brick house and down the road a short way from the first house. It was a log house, but a frame house now. They had several children, Caldra died here. After the funeral Lydia brought Jess Brannon one of her children, then a small child and raised him. Jess married Margaret Thomas

Alexander Stover had three farms at one time. One of the joined the back of Jones Cemetery. Another had a log house he said was so glad to get rid of. He said they had to tie the buggy to a tree to keep it from going down a deep gully. It was southwest of the cemetery.

Aunt Margaret, Alexander Stover's sister lived east of the cemetery at the curve in the road across the ditch through the field. It was a white house with red barn. She had 40 ducks at one time.

Alex Stover bought a barrel of sewing machine oil and sold it in small bottles.

At the time James and Mary Jane VanBuskirk lived in Delaware County. There were Indians everywhere. Alex, Pa said, Indians built a little fire and sat close around, white man come build a big fire and sat way back.

Mary Jane Crum VanBuskirk daughter of John Crum was born on 5/11/1831 and died 7/9/1919 at age 88. She remembered seeing the falling stars, she was 10 or 12 years old around 1841. This happens only once in 33 years, the earth enters it completely enough to cause brilliant display. This happened in the year 1799,1833 and 1866. It is called the Leonids. Mary Jane Crum VanBuskirk came from Holland. She was a little Dutch woman.

John Crum, father of Mary Jane was a preacher at Campbellite Church. He as born in 1810. He had a brother who was stolen by the Indians when he was 5 years old. His parents found him when he was 12 years old. His mother was washing clothes at the creek. He went up stream and was climbing a grapevine to get grapes, when the Indians stole him. He said the Indians were good to him. The Indians would make maple sugar candy and put it away. The Indian children would get in it. He would bite it off with his lower teeth, then the Indians would think the Indian children got into it because they had narrow teeth above and below and he had wide teeth above and narrow above. He was gone 7 years. The Indians would hang bear grease high. He said the squaw told him to get her some. He got up to get it and it slipped and fell on her face. He also had two sons killed in the Civil War.

John Cram, father of Mary Jane was an immigrant to this country from the east and settled at St. Joseph Michigan. He was a farmer by trade. This country was very dense forest. From there he came to Delaware County Indiana. He and his family started out west for a claim with three wagons and horses, two cows that they shod like a horse. The cows' hoofs are split and they put two shoes on a foot, one on each toe, oval shaped. The cows walked all the way, crossed the Mississippi by foot. There were sink places like quick sand where other horses had stepped. The bottom was loose under foot.

They took their eight children. They found the soil forsaken and poor you could not raise anything such as crops. You could never buy a cow out there that is why they took one with them.

Lydia, Frank Stover's mother was a small child, she remembered a terrible storm came up on the way to Iowa. They stopped along a big high fence of hedge apples. The hedge was bent way over and covered them up during the storm. She said that saved them from the storm.

They never stayed very long. Greatgranddaddy wore a big long beard. They came back to Delaware County, then built the brick house. Several years went by then sold the 200 acres and came to Madison County, Indiana. After they bought the farm in Madison Co. a short time later Greatgranddaddy died.

Frank Stover remembered his mother telling him this many years ago. He told it to us one evening he and Mom were down July 15,1958.

James VanBuskirk and Mary Jane owned the ground west of where Forrest Hills is located and that extending south to White River. The buildings were all torn down the summer of 1964.

Alex and Lydia Stover lived north of VanBuskirk back a lane. The 11-½ acres lay along this lane and that is what Lydia gave to her son Frank. Lydia Stover inherited this when the property was divided between the children around 69 acres.

The VanBuskirks came around 1910. Much of the ground was wooded in those days. James VanBuskirk had three brothers George, John and Frank.

James and Mary Jane Crim VanBuskirk had children: John, Frank, Daniel and Floyd (who died at age 12 and daughters: Flora McKinley, Lydia Stover, Sudie Branson, Ora Gray and Eva Lee. Ora and Eve were twins.

Frank Stover was born in Delaware County Indiana and was 2 years old when his grandfather died. The house on the VanBuskirk road east of the big barn part is log. The barn was just in back of the house. It is all torn down but have the picture of the house and barn. They raised horses. Tom Greddy took horses in a boxcar to West Virginia to show. Plane Bishop was out there. In the picture of the old barn and horses, Frank Branson is on the bicycle. There are horse graves east of the barn along the lane; you see the lane in the picture near the old apple orchard. Horse graves were dug in the shaped of the horse. This is all torn down and big houses are built in their place.

West of this stood Daniel and Agnes's house and barn. Daniel inherited this after a few years. Daniel died at 43. He built the big barn, which has been torn down. There was a little barn called a "Jack" barn that they kept the mule in. They raised horses beside him. I remember hearing him bray and saw him stick his head out the window many times. Remember putting hay and riding the horse to the hay rope. You could drive a team and wagon upstairs in the barn and turn around. It was a bank barn. It had a stairway in it and you could hear the horses' feet up there when you were down below. Below there were big shoots to each stall to throw hay down and also a track. It was one of the Madison County landmarks, but all was torn down in 1964. And VanBuskirk Heights is built there now.

Here is a sale bill of Daniel's after his death:

"The executor's sale of the personal property of the late Daniel VanBuskirk will be held Tuesday November 7,1911 at the VanBuskirk farm northwest of the city. The items consist of 19 racehorses and heavy draft horses, 120 head of hogs, a large number of cows and feeders and various kinds of farming implements. It will likely be the biggest farm sale ever held in this community. Many prominent race horsemen and stockmen from over the country will be among the bidders."

Notice in paper: Daniel VanBuskirk died 9/13/1911. He married Agnes Timmons. Agnes was the daughter of Lucy Timmons. Lucy died at the age of 88 years. Lucy had another daughter Mary Hosier, and one son Frank Timmons who was a former trustee of Anderson township and also a schoolteacher for many years and also principal of the Edgewood School.

Agnes L. Timmons was born April 30,1870. She was married to Daniel about 4 years before his death at age 43. I never knew what he died from. They never had any children. Agnes then married Edward Mann a native of Tennessee. The farm was left to Agnes. She and Edward lived there until his death in 1953. Agnes and her sister Mary Hosier lived there. Mary made her home with Agnes and Edward. Agnes Timmons VanBuskirk Mann died December 11,1958. She had lived on the VanBuskirk farm for 50 years.

She left the estate to her sister Mary's sons Basil R. and Charles R. Hosier. Basil e Hosier was the administrator of the estate of Agnes. Had a sale on May 16,1959 on the premises at 1702 VanBuskirk Road. Some of the household goods were sofa, overstuffed chair, lamps, rugs, misc. chairs, bedroom suites and many other items including an old fashioned dinner bell and many antiques. I remember a brass bed and the ringing of the dinner bell. Remember many big dinners there and have the picture of the house and barn. I remember asking Agnes, "Aggie will you give me a drink of water."

Agnes gave me a small blue mesh pocketbook, my first, and Mom and I went to town and I laid it on the back of the tank in the courthouse and when we saw that I had left it, we went back and it was gone. It just broke my heart, for it was so pretty. I have a storybook that she gave me for Christmas on year.

I wanted to go to the sales so bad to see if there was anything like pictures of my people. I remember Agnes always kept a picture of Daniel in the parlor, over a library table, I wonder whatever happened to it. Most of the furnishings were what Agnes and Daniel had, and also his mother's Mary Jane VanBuskirk. It was in the agreement that Agnes and Daniel were to take care of Mary Jane after her husband Lomas died. She then went to there children's homes. Lydia brought most of her things from the family home. Agnes is buried at East Maplewood cemetery. Daniel is buried at Jones cemetery in Delaware County where the rest of his family is. There is a big stone along the west part of the cemetery.

Agnes had a little house west of her house, always called it "Agnes' Little House". There was an orchard, then a field, and then the lane that went back to Alexander and Lydia Stover's place. The house and the barn my dad built were next, west of the lane and the ground lay along the lane. The house and barn is the only thing that is still there. The little house of Agnes' is torn down. Agnes had a little horse they called Agnes' horse. Her name wed Fiddie, a little red horse and a trotter. She got old and they just turned her out to pasture and let her do whatever she wanted. She lived to be 20 years old or older.

I remember when Russ Romine lived in the little house of Agnes'. They had a daughter Doris. She and I were about the same age. They had folks that would bring clothes to their house and the things they didn't want went in a little barn. Doris and I would dress up. I remember the first time we were there we found a wig and I put it on, went to the house and showed her mother Audrey. It had long curls. She never knew me. We would take our dolls and things out in the orchard and play.

My Mom and Dad started housekeeping with the dresser and marble top washstand that I have. The bed was the big bed with long round ornament at the top. It was at the farm at Markleville. I brought it home cut it down some and put a different foot on it, but kept the one that goes with it. I have it and washstand, dresser in my bedroom. My Dad gave a dime for the bed at the sale barn when they were married June 19,1911 and it was old then. We had a cupboard that was sold at the sale that I always wished I had kept for it was the one Mom and Dad started housekeeping with. Mom had a sideboard. She traded the bottom for a little bed that I always slept in to Myrle Johnson at Markleville.I remember them moving it on a mud boat. I have the top. Went to Roy Johnson and Brumfields sales. Myrle and Landy Brumfield were brother and sister. I thought maybe I could buy the bottom of the sideboard back to go with the top, but it wasn't at either sale, so don't know what happened to it.

My Mom's first baby died. Paul Canby Stover was born May 14,1912 and is buried at East Maplewood cemetery close by Grandma and Grandpa Stanley, Mom's mother and dad and Perry Litton, Grandma Stanley's brother. The baby lived 8 days and died May 22,1912. I said to Mom one day that it had been so long since the baby died that you probably don't remember much about it. She said, "it is as plain to me as if it was yesterday." My mother had typhoid fever in June 1912.

Francis Edward Stover was born on September 16,1914. Mom was at Grandma Stanley's on First Street when he was born.

I was born at home on VanBuskirk Road January 2,1917. I had a tonsil operation December 29,1925. I was seven years old. I remember it was in the Union Building in Anderson Indiana. Mom stayed all night with me. They had to give me laughing gas before they could get me under. My Mother and Dad were in the room when they took them out. Mom stayed in the room until they gave me gas and I started laughing and she said she had to go out of the room. My Mom and Dad took me in the buggy and I remember them telling me all the way that I would be all right. That night was awful cold. Mick, (my brother Edward's nickname) and my Dad walked over to see us. Mick was a little boy then and they gave me ice cream and Mick wanted to have his tonsils taken out so he could have ice cream too.

I was sick most of the time when I was small. The folks never thought I would ever live. I suffered with asthma when I was small. I remember Mom getting me up, holding me in a chair, or her and me setting up at the table with my head laid down to sleep, to be able to get my breath.

When I was born my Dad went up to Granny's. She asks what they named the baby. He told them Mary Mae and they said why did you name her that for it is such an old fashion name. He told them that " well, babies were old fashion too".

When Edward was a baby our Dad's folks Lydia and daughter Margaret, would come up to the mailbox. They lived back the lane and their mailbox was next to ours out in front of the house. It was ½ mile back the lane. They would always come in and get him and take him to the mailbox with them, even if Mom had him asleep. One day when he got older he went out and got their mail for them and they didn't like it a bit. They brought Mom in a stick and wanted Mom to use it and she wouldn't do it told them they started it in the first place.

Clarence (nicknamed Chink) Mom's brother stayed with us part of the time. Always played with Edward when he was small and he nicknamed him Mickey, which he has went by since.

Dr. Malloy told the folks to put my bed by the stove, which they did and I slept there for years. I out grew the asthma and was never troubled with it since.

Mick and I always watched the threshing machines go past our house. When we would see one coming, he would go and hide behind the house and I would stand out in the front yard and watch. He would stick his head out around the back of the house and holler for me to tell them to blow the whistle.

Mick had a watch and my Dad carried it sometimes. He and Mick went over to Bill Marshes on Madison Avenue. My Dad pastured his horses over there sometimes. Mick asked what time is it by my watch.

The high water used to come up in our yard and we would get a bucket and jump off into the water.

Grandma and Grandpa Stanley, Mom's mother and father lived up in the woodlawn across the road from Agnes' house where she lived. It is all torn down now. We would stay all night with them. One night Mick got an awful cough. Grandma gave him some coal oil and sugar and he almost woke the whole house up. Grandma would set us up on the cabinet and wash us up. She would stick her fingers in our ears until we thought they would come out on the other side. Mom was always careful with our ears. She was afraid something would happen to them.

Grandma and Grandpa Stanley lived in a big house east of 10 Street at White River Tuberculosis and Small Pox Sanitarium. You go under the bridge to Park Place. Mom was driving Grandpa Stanley's spring wagon with Fred Grandpa's horse. Mom was sitting on a spring seat across the top of the sides. Mom had Mick and I in the back setting on the floor up against the back of the wagon and under where she was sitting. Just before you get to the bridge a one seated Ford jostled in gear with a dog in it. We were hit by Ralph Lambert's Ford sedan license number 96451. The date was November 6,1921. He lived on Prospect Street. A 1917 Ford motor 2073255. I was around 4 years old and Mick was 6 or 7 years old. It ran into the back end of the wagon and pushed the wagon up over our horse Fred, knocking him down. It never hurt us but scared us. Mom was taking the horse and wagon home to Grandpa. My Dad and Grandpa were working. Then came later in the buggy and took us home.

Dad later bought Fred from Grandpa. Grandpa had raised him. We had him for a long time. He was a wonderful horse and we all loved him and will never forget him. We rode him everyplace. Mick fell off him one time. Mick went over Fred's head and Fred stopped dead in his tracks or he would have stepped on Mick.

Mick and I were riding down the lane to my Dad's folks. Mick slapped Fred on the hip and we fell off and up against the fence. It must have knocked us both out for we looked up and we were both looking at the other one. We had to lead the horse home because the only way we could get on was to get up on the wagon and slide on his back.

I was riding him one time and was going down the road to Markleville and I turned his rein to turn and he turned in the lane and I went straight down the road on my elbows. I should have turned with the horse but didn't.

Always remember Grandma and Grandpa Stanley coming to visit us in the buggy. Mick and I were so glad to see them we would climb upon the buggy before they could get there.

One time Mom's youngest brother Roy was at our house. My Mom and Dad were up at Granny's house, which had been sold to Dr. Smith. Grandma Stanley was helping wallpaper the house. Roy, Mick and I were home. We were playing in the hay mound, jumping and rolling down the hay. Mick rolled out on his head falling several feet to the ground just missing the buggy wheel. He had a concussion. I remember running up the road to tell the folks. Some neighbor lady was along the roadside picking greens. She said I was running and told her Mick was dead and that I was as white as a sheet. The folks and Grandma Stanley got in the car. Dr. Smith took them down home. Mom and Grandma wanted to walk said they could get there faster. Mick had a slight concussion and was unconscious for a while. That was about the first scare in my life. Mike was around 10 years old.

Mick went to Mt. Hope for a few years at Anderson. When it was time for me to go to school, the school was so crowded, so they sent me home. Mick rode to school in some king of an old car, like a panel truck that had a door in the back. One day the door came open and he fell out.

I was sick most of the time before the folks had my tonsils out and never got started to school until I was 8 years old.

Mom and Dad took us to the Central Christian Church when we were small. They were members there. Mick and I would walk to Sunday school. I remember going to Decker's BookStore with my dad to get me a Bible for Sunday school. It was a red letter Bible and I still have it. It cost $3.50. I took it to church with me in the box then I would leave the box in the buggy. One time I came out to come home and someone had stolen my box out of the buggy.

Our income wasn't very much. We milked cows and sold the cream. Took about a week to get a can of cream to sell for around $5.00. Dad would haul gravel in the summer month to pay our taxes. My Mom had chickens for the eggs to sell and to eat. The women at the church kept after Mom to furnish an old hen for their social suppers, but we needed our chickens for our own food supplies and we couldn't afford it, so we went very little from then on. Mick and I would walk over to Sunday school.

Mom and I would take the cream over to Indiana Ice and Dairy in the buggy. The horse hoofs would make so much noise on the brick street because Dad always kept his horses shod with shoes. I remember him shoeing his horses. I would hand him the nails and the rasp hammer and the shoe pick to clean the hoofs with. He would hold the horse's foot between his knees. Sometime the horse would get to leaning on him to hold the horse up. The horse would almost go to sleep and my Dad would have to wake him up.

Mom bought me a blue hat with fur trim around the bottom. She would get remnants and make our dresses. I remember when we would take the cream to town she would stop a Smith Grocery on Eighth Street and get us a cream puff and we would eat it on the way home. She always liked them. She later learned how to make them.

My first day of school, I went to Roosevelt School on Brown Street. They have changed it to Madison Avenue now. My teacher was Mrs. Ervin. She asked me what my Father was. I told her he was a painter. He was painting the wagon at home at the time. Mom met her on the street on day and she mentioned it to Mom about my Dad being a painter. Mom told her he was a farmer. Mom knew her. She died when I was in the first grade. She had been sick. She would come to school sometimes and sit in a chair in front of class with a robe over her lap. Her funeral was at the First E.U.B. Church. The class went to her funeral and sat up high on the southside of the church.

Mick wanted a goat one time, so our Dad got him one. We had a little chick house that Mick fixed up for him. When my Mom and Dad were up to Granny's house, after Dr. Smith had bought the house, Mick and I was up in the attic looking around. We saw some old window glass we thought would look nice in our goat house. So we worked liked everything getting it home. My Mom and Dad asked us where we got it. We told them and they told us that was stealing and never take anything like that again and they made us take it back. Mick made a hay mound in his goat house then he got up in it and it fell down with him.

Grandpa Stanley got me a little wagon. I was so proud of it. One time I was sick in bed and he pulled it in the bedroom and gave it to me. Mick wanted to hitch the goat up and he tore up my wagon.

Mom's brother Chick always came to our house the night before Christmas. Many times the roads would be bad or the weather cold. He always came, never missing a Christmas. He would always get me material for a dress and a doll one time that I gave to Mick's girls. He also gave me a red glass tray that I still have, a cake plate with a handle and cake knife, brown and ivory jewelry box that had Max Factor makeup in it. He got Mick a sled one time and when we moved to Markleville he gave it to Tommy Romine, Russ's boy.

Mom would bake a pie and put it on the stair steps for Santa Claus to have a piece. The next morning a piece was always gone. I remember Mrs. Atkinson was at our house on Christmas Eve. My Mom and Dad put our things up over the kitchen in the attic and they got them down after we had gone to bed. We woke up and came downstairs to see if Santa Claus had been there yet. There were the toys and the folks were still up. They told us Santa had just left.

The folks decided to build two more rooms on the back of our house. My Dad had sharpened the old chisels and Mick was digging a hole in the ground. I put my hand in the hole to see how deep it was just as he came down with the chisel cutting my wrist about 1 ½" long. When he saw the blood he turned white as a sheet. I still have the scar.

We used to put a wheel on a stick and stick it in the ground at a slant and get us a box to set on and play like we were driving a car. We use to put a big long board across a log and used that as a teeter-totter. Mick never liked to do this but I did.

My Dad had a cow we called the wild cow. She got to kicking and tearing around in the barn. It scared us half to death. We would run to the house and went upstairs and got under the bed.

We took our cows to Hester's woods to pasture, just west of where we lived. Mom went to get the cows and someone's bull got in with our herd and Mom was scared that we would be out in the barnyard playing. The bull was pawing and bellowing. She called and hollered all the way until we heard her and told us to go get in the house. Another time we went and got under the bed.

The folks always took us to the barn with them to milk until we were big enough to milk then we milked. My Dad always said if you only got a drop be that much. I always liked to milk. Mick and I always could milk fast and the milk would foam way up the bucket.

One evening we were all at the barn milking and up came a big storm. Mom ran to the house to shut the front door. She went around to the front door and it was shut. Someone was holding the door shut. I scared Mom so she ran back to the barn and told Dad. He went up to the house and found out it was Bill Lemon daughter's boyfriend walking out to see her. He was an insurance man. He came up in the storm and knocked but no one answered the door. So he thought he would step in out of the rain, then it started to blow in the door so he held it shut.

Mick used to run off. He never could go barefoot like I could. Mom would take his shoes off to keep him from running off.

One time when I was a very small baby Mom had me tied to the high chair. I don't remember where she told me Mick was probably back to our Grandmother's. Lat Davis came and wanted to borrow my Dad's straight razor to cut a little pimple off his tongue. Mom gave him the razor. She got to thinking about it and thought she better take him a mirror. When she went out she saw that Lat had cut his throat. Mom said "Lat what have you done?" He said, "now don't be afraid I am all right." Mom said "Lat give me that razor" and he handed it to her.

It had blood all over it and Mom got it on her hands. He went up the road and around Agnes' house. Agnes and Mom called the sheriff. Mom and Agnes had him in the corner of the house outdoors when the sheriff came.

My Dad had taken a ladder to Hickey's to pick cherries. He passed Lat Davis on the road and he said hello to him. Lat said, "you don't know me". Dad got to thinking about it and he thought he had better go back home and see if Mom and us kids were all right. He thought maybe Lat was going to our house and we were there by ourselves. Dad went and picked up Lat, Mom's brother who lived on First Street. They got to Agnes' about the same time the sheriff did. Mom still had the razor and she asked them what to do with the razor. The sheriff took it from her and threw it in the river at the bridge on the White River and Madison Avenue. The sheriff took Lat to the hospital and he died. Lat and Dad tracked him and Lat had crossed the river on his way to our house and had seen his tracks through the woods. Mom said I was still sitting in the high chair while all this was going on and she was scared to death. Lat Davis went crazy and lost his mind.

We would go over to Grandview. There was a farmhouse and farm. When they tore this house down, they found it to be a log cabin. The place is now a golf course. We would slide on the hill in the wintertime. We would take scoop shovels and ride down on them. George Ebbert lived in the farmhouse. They had barrels around the cellar with boards on them and shelves up high to put canned goods on. The cellar would get half full of water and you had to walk on the boards that were on the barrels. Lucille, his daughter and I would go across these boards to get pickles to eat.

Harley Hartzel lived here. He and Affie lived there when Mick and I were 7 or 8 years old. I have a picture of Mick and me taken there in front of a clothesline with clothes on the line. Affie died with cancer she received from leaning over a fence to feed calves from a bucket.

One time when Mick and I were 9 or 10, our Dad bought some boards from someone that had torn down and old building. They were full of nails. Mick and I had to hammer all the nails out of the boards. We put the nails in an old bucket. We tried to see which one of us could get the most nails in their buck. We were proud of our nails. Worth and Cleo Romine came out with some of their kids. They had a car with a box in the back seat along the side of the car. You lifted up the lid and you could put things in it. Mick and I hunted until we found our nails in this box so we got them out. Those kids were so mean. We always hated to see them coming. They were always taking things. One time they came and one of those kids tried to throw me in an old well. The folks came just in time.

Another time they came and those boys found my Dad's buggy lines and stole them. My Dad went to their house and found them around behind the barn. Dad had a time convincing their dad that they had taken them. But he knew they were the only ones that had been there to take them. So he told Dad to go have a look around the barn and they found them.

For many years, before we had a clock, the gold watch that my Dad had with the gold chain was always kept on a nail on the doorframe to tell the time. I cannot remember anything else to tell time by when we were small and well grown. My Dad wanted to buy it from Dick (Worth) Romine one time. Dick came to my Dad and asked him if he would buy the watch so he could buy Ralph a pair of shoes. So that is where the watch came from. Grandma Stanley gave the bigger silver watch to Dad, but he never was to sure where it came from.

The small pocket watch with Dad's name in the back, his mother bought him in 1902, if he would quit using tobacco. Our Dad always chewed tobacco until Mick went to high school and started smoking. Then my Dad smoked some but later stopped smoking and went back to chewing tobacco. Dad went back to his Mother's squirrel hunting one time. Afraid he may lose the watch he left it with his mother. His sister, Margaret got it and would never give it back. When she died we found it in the dresser with other things that was our dad's. He then gave the watch to Mick and he carried it until it broke and would not run. Mick brought it back and gave it to my Dad. Then my Dad gave it to me. I took it and had it fixed at the cost of $10.

The breast pin of Ma's that Pa got her after they were married, he thinks cost $3.50 in gold. She has it on in the picture of her. Mick has the pin along with a few other things.

Willard was born on the farm at the end of the lane and lived there all his life. The big clock I have Ma and Pa bought when they were married. It is 100 years old. My Dad and Pa would hold him up and take a case knife and hit the striker so he could here it ding.

Ma (Lydia VanBuskirk Stover) died at the home place. My Mother, Dad and Margaret cared for her. She was sick a long time. She said guess you have to get sick to die. In those days they sometimes embalmed people in their homes. I remember this and seeing her on a cot. I was a little girl. They had washed her hair and it was hanging nearly to the floor to dry. They had a sheet over her but I could see her face. I went in the room by myself. I sat down on a chair by her feet at the foot of the cot. I reached over and put my hand on her feet.

When we were going to the cemetery, some man drove a team of horses out of a field on Jackson Street Pike, in front of the family car we were riding in and we almost hit it. I sat on a little seat in the car that raised up from the floor.

Pa Stover died on the sofa at the farm. His funeral was at Sell Funeral Home. I remember going to the funeral home with my Mom and Dad.

My Dad had a picture of him taken in the casket, for he never had a picture of him. He was a big man and let his hair grow all winter and would go in the spring and have it cut. We would hardly know him. He always went to town in a spring wagon. He told the folks that when he died he would have his money close by where he was. After he died Mom went back to Margaret and Willard's and Maggie had the sofa torn up.

He would go to town and get bread in a big sack. Sometimes he would get raisin bread that had icing on the top. He would stop and give us a loaf of it.

He would go to the barn and milk in a big dipper. Ma told Mick and me to be real still and go out to the barn and watch through a crack. We would see Pa feed some polecat kittens that would come out from under the barn and drink milk.

My mother helped my dad in everything. He had a team of mules. He and Mom were making hay. Mom was driving the mules to load the hay and my Dad was in the back of wagon moving the hay back from the hay loader. He yelled to whoa and the mules stopped and Mom slid out with the load of hay right behind the mule between the track. Mom always said it scared the mule as bad as it did her. She wasn't hurt.

They put out a field of corn and would hoe it all. Mom would put Mick and me in a little box to sit at the end of the row while they were working. Then when we got big we all hoed corn. We never had much ground when we lived at Anderson and my Dad always said you couldn't raise corn and weeds together. We would have to hoe between the corn while our dad cultivated down the row. Mick and I got so tired hoeing corn, Mick would say "I am not going to hoe no more corn". But he always did. When our dad would plant corn he would have Mick at one end of the field and me on the other end to turn the marker. Mick and Dad always sawed all our firewood for the stove. Then we would cord it up and put it on the old back porch.

When I was 13 years old, Mom and Dad sold two properties at Anderson on First Street and about everything we had even the cows, calves, hogs and even the chickens for the 80 acres at Markleville, Indiana. We were all tore up ready to move. My Mom was helping me with my lessons at the table and Mick was on the other side of me. I was writing and Mom said all at once my hand stopped and I fell over. My Mom and Dad stretched me out on the floor. They thought I was dead and then I gasped and moved. They took me and put me on the bed. I hit my head on the door casing as Dad was taking me through the door. I remember being in bed and I wondered how I go there. They called the doctor. The doctor said I had just fainted. He said it was because of my age. I have never fainted since.

One day when Mick was about 10, Mom and Dad had laid down to take a nap. Mick wanted to do something, so he got the horses out and hitched them up and plowed the garden. This was when we lived in Anderson. Dad was surprised when he got up and saw what he had done. He never had any idea he could do that. He was sure proud of him. My dad always let Mick drive his horses, but never any one else because Mick was always a good hand with horses.

The day we moved to Markleville, Dad and Mick started out real early that morning with a load of corn in the wagon with a team hitched to the wagon and the mule tied along side one of the horses. Mrs. Mollie Hershberger lived in the tile house down the road a little way. She ran out of the house and hollered "where are you going" running right behind the mule. My dad hollered for her to get out from behind the mule before he kicked her. He never did tell her. My dad never worked the mule. He got him just a short time before we moved. He had bought him from a man south of Markleville and north of Shirley. We had to sell him later for his feet were and I would carry a sack. He would feel around in the mud with his hands for turtles and we would put them in our sack.

One day we all went looking for mushrooms. We found a few, but Mom went up the road to the little old house that later was the hog barn, and by the lilac bushes she found mushrooms. She came down to the house with her apron full. That was the most I have ever seen at one time.

We traded at Sanders Grocery in Markleville. They gave out tickets on Saturday night. You put your numbers in a box and the lucky one got a basket of groceries. Mom always took the tickets over and every Saturday night she almost always got the groceries. She was just lucky. People would wait until she came so they could put their tickets in the box after she did. She got a lot of fun out of it.

We were working out in the woods clearing, when we went to Markleville. The woods were so dense that we would lose the cows. Dad found some lizard eggs where they were grubbing out stumps and gave them to me. I put them on the stump to show Mom and she and I got back they had hatched. Mick found some deer horns that I have. They were broken but we patched them up with a piece of tape. He found them in the low ground in the woods, what we always called the hog lot.

Mom was always home when we came home from school. As soon as we would get off the bus, we would start running to the house, across the old front porch that would just rattle, to see who would get to the door first too find Mom. If she wasn't in the house, we always knew where to find her. She would be out in the garden or carrying in some wood to cook supper. We always had to have something to eat first thing every time we came home. Never can remember coming home when she wasn't there waiting for us and had something for us to eat.

When we lived at Anderson we went to Roosevelt School on Brown Street (now Madison Avenue). Earl Romine drove the school bus. We called it a "hack" at that time. It was a Model T Ford. I was sitting in the back of the hack, a boy was crying and a girl held her lunch bucket to catch his tears. He hit the bucket and it sailed through the hack and hit me in the head cutting my forehead open. Earl came leading me in the house with blood streaming down my face. Mom didn't know what had happened. I still have the scar.

Mick went to Mount Hope School at north Anderson. His first year he was riding in some kind of old truck and the back door came open and he fell out. I was going to go to school there when I was 6 but the school was so crowded they sent me home. When I did get to go, I was sick and didn't get to go until I was 8.

Earl, who drove the school bus, had a little seat up in front. I would have to crawl over the steering wheel to get to it. Mom made me a pillow to sit on. I think Mom had such a spell about me getting hit in the head that is why she made the pillow. I really liked to sit up there for I thought it was really something special.

One time when we were a lot older I got to sit in the back with the rest of the other kids. I was sitting in the back again next to the back door. The kids got off through the back door in those days. A girl started to get off and turned around and spread lipstick across my face. I jumped out of the bus right after her. We had it out right in the middle of the road. Earl didn't know I was out of the bus and drove on without me. The other kids started hollering and he backed up and got me.

One time Mick was riding a bicycle before we moved to Markleville and cut his knee pretty bad. It was sore for a long time. He lost some of the joint water and has had trouble ever since.

AT the park at Grandview, across from where we lived in Anderson, Alene Smith and I were taking turns pushing each other in the swings. I was pushing her. I heard someone and looked to see who it was and the swing came back and hit me on the cheek. My how it did hurt. I have the scar from that.

After we moved to Markleville, we had a wiener roast at the neighbor's house and another girl and I went to the house to get some mustard. We were running back to the fire and I took a short cut and ran into a barb wire fence, cutting my chin and putting a long gash on my shoulder. The lady of the house took me inside and put iodine on the cuts. I thought I would die it hurt so badly. But I never said a word for I looked out the back door and there stood everyone that was at the party. I still have the scars.

When we lived in Anderson and we were real small, a colored couple lived up in Granny's house and farmed for Dr. Smith who had bought the farm. This colored lady would get all the kids in the neighborhood and play the accordion for them. One time she told us to all bring a cup of sugar and she would make us some candy. She sat all of us on the davenport. Our legs just stuck straight out. I thought that looked like a lot of legs at the time. Then she sat and played the accordion for us and sang. I looked up and her husband was standing in the doorway. He was a big man and he was black. I believe that was the first time I had ever noticed black people. I never noticed his wife being black, but she was. I guess we felt like we knew her and she was so nice to us. Our folks never made a big thing about color, so we never thought anything about it as we were growing up.

Daddy told me that this man had got a load of fodder for Dr. Smith at the 80 acres that his mother and dad had at Delaware County up by the cemetery.

Grandmother VanBuskirk told them would have to build a top on their chimney to keep the cinnamon bears and the panthers from coming down the fireplace and out of the log cabin. Alexander and Lydia Stover lived in a log cabin one time at Reed Station.

Mom and Dad had a little coal oil stove on the back porch. Mom would light it to heat her wash water or to can on. They kept coal oil in a glass jug. The oilman filled the jug with gasoline instead of coal oil. Not knowing this, Mom was filling the stove with gasoline. It exploded. Seeing what was happening in time, Mom reached down and put the cap on the jug. It just charred in the jug. Mick was standing in the doorway. He reached down and grabbed the stove and threw it out the back door. It had singed Mom's eyebrows, hair and arms. Both of their fast thinking at the right time saved them from a bad accident. The stove was blown to pieces. They went and told the oilman about the mistake he had made. The insurance bought Mom another stove.

One time when I was very small, Let, my mother's brother stayed with us kids while the folks went some place. My dad had a big high grain wagon with a seat across the top. I climbed up to the top of the wagon. Let told me he looked for me to go up the side of the barn anytime.

Taff to perform Christian concert

Grammy Award-winning recording artist Russ Taff will perform in Reardon Auditorium, Monday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m.

As part of a national tour, Taff will offer popular Christian music recorded on his latest album, "Medals."

BILLBOARD MAGAZINE has described Taff as "the most powerful, most distinctive instrument in Christian music." He has been recognized by his peers in the recording industry with both Grammy and Dove Awards (including Male Vocalist of the Year). His albums — both with the Imperials and as a solo artist — have set sales records.

The son of a traveling Pentecostal preacher, Taff found himself with a big, soulful voice at a very young age. He gravitated immediately into religious music, first with a family band, and later, with a contemporary group in Arkansas called "The Sounds of Joy."

After his stint with "Sound of Joy," Taff joined a Fort Worth, Texas, evangelist, Jerry Savalle, and spent the next few years leading the music before he joined up with The Imperials.

HIS FIRST ALBUM with the Imperials, "Sail On," spawned the time the next studio album was released, "Heed the Call." That album provided Taff with his signature tune, Brown Bannister's "Praise the Lord."

The group later recorded the album "One More Song For You," which produced such staples as "High Power," "Eagle Song" and "I'm Forgiven."

Taff later contributed his own songs: "Finish What You Started" and "Be Still My Soul."

AFTER LEAVING THE Imperials, Taff began his first solo effort and eventually recorded the album, "Walls of Glass." The highlight of that album was a heavily rock-and-roll, rhythm and blues flavored LP, "We Will Stand."

In the past couple of years, he continued to tour and has recorded duets with Lulu Roman, Leslie Phillips and Joyce Landorf and has traveled abroad on behalf of World Vision.

Taff will be joined in concert by Phil Keaggy, who has recently earned the reputation of being one of the best rock instrumentalists in the Christian music business.

KEAGY HAS THREE LP's to his credit: "With Glass Harp," "Synergy" and "It Makes Me Glad."

Tickets for the concert may be purchased through the Reardon Auditorium box office or any Ticketmaster outlet.

Victoria Guild plans meeting

The Victoria Guild of St. John's Medical Center is sponsoring its Annual Open May meeting on Wednesday, May 7, at 9:30 a.m.

The brunch and program will be at the St. John's Education Center on the third floor. The Madrigals, a choir group from Anderson High School, will perform. There will also be informal modeling of gift shop items.

A CHECK WILL BE presented to the medical center for the purpose of purchasing a van to transport the elderly, for prescription assistance to Social Services and for the Children's Clinic. Also, $15,000 will be given to the center toward the Guild's existing $200,000 pediatric pledge.

New officers will be installed as follows: president, Marilyn Alexander; vice president, Mavis Rowe; recording secretary, Bobbette Snyder; corresponding secretary, Mary Kay Combes; treasurer, Harriett Wheeler; assistant treasurer, Jacqueline Hall; and parliamentarian, Marilyn Dorris.

Committee members include: co-chairmen Bobbette Snyder and Mary Kay Combes, Jacqueline Hall, Nancy Hawkins and Jane Busing.

Monthly program focuses on vision

Community Hospital's monthly Women and Health program will present "Cataracts and Your Vision" Wednesday, April 23, at the Anderson College Olt Student Center.

Guest speaker will be John D. Jones, M.D., F.A.C.S., an Anderson opthalmologist. His presentation will include the symptoms of cataracts, the diagnosis, treatment and the decision for surgery.

JONES RECEIVED his bachelor of arts degree from Indiana University in 1960 and earned his medical degree from Indiana University in 1964. He completed his internship requirements at Kern County General Hospital in Bakersfield, Calif., and his residency requirements in ophthalmology at Indiana University. He is a member of the American Medical Association and is certified by the American Board of Ophthalmology.

Jones served as chief of Community Hospital's Medical Staff in 1978 and as secretary-treasurer in 1985.

The program, which begins at noon, will feature a luncheon buffet of homemade soup, assorted salads, rolls, beverage and dessert for $4.25. Reservations are required and may be made by calling the hospital's public relations department at 646-5128.

(John E. Simon)

Asking advice — Ida Campbell examines a selection of clothing while Marilyn Alexander and Mary Brennan look on. Samples from St. John's Medical Center's gift shop will be modeled at the Victoria Guild's annual meeting on May 7.

Noticing signs could save life

NEW YORK (AP) — Each year about half a million people die of a heart attack, according to the American Heart Association.

Many never even make it to the hospital because they don't recognize the signs of an impending attack. Here are 10 common signs of an impending heart attack.

☑ Severe chest pain lasting two minutes or longer.

☑ Uncomfortable pressure, fullness or a sensation of "squeezing" in the center of the chest for two minutes or longer.

☑ Dizziness.

☑ Nausea.

☑ Fainting.

☑ Sweating.

☑ Shortness of breath.

☑ Pressure, a feeling of fullness or squeezing in the abdomen (often mistaken for indigestion).

☑ Pain that radiates to the shoulders, neck, jaw or arms.

☑ Pain in one or several of these areas simultaneously.

Censuses up to and including the 1910 enumeration are open to the public on microfilm. Many libraries have statewide indexes that help a researcher pinpoint which community's census records to check.

The Indiana Room has a dozen magazines and newsletters devoted to family history in Indiana and surrounding states. Some 85 percent of the material in the Indiana Room is related to genealogy, Eldon said. An average researcher spends three and a half hours per visit and uses two dozen books.

AFTER EXHAUSTING all local records, many area fam

Eldon also plans to bring in a volunteer once weekly to work with individual researchers on a one-to-one basis. The library has learned four foreign languages, traveled to many countries and when she passed away at 83, she didn't have her family history completed," Eldon says.

Remember these tips when writing for facts

Few family historians are lucky enough to find all their ancestors' names, dates and places listed in one spot. When traveling to the family's original homestead is not practical, many genealogists turn to the mighty pen to continue the detective work.

Howard Eldon of the Anderson Public Library's Indiana Room says following a few basic rules will help make your search more fruitful.

Researchers hunt for kin in family tree

Articles by RANDY TITUS
Herald staff writer

More people are foraging through the branches of their family trees than ever before, says Howard Eldon, county historian and Anderson Public Library archivist.

"According to Everton Press (a leading manufacturer of genealogical materials), family history research is the third largest hobby, following coin and stamp collecting," Eldon says. The company bases its assessment on the volume of genealogical forms, charts and how-to books being sold, the number of people subscribing to genealogy magazines and the popularity of family history seminars.

DURING A RECENT seminar in Indianapolis, sponsored by the Indiana Historical Society, the sessions were filled to standing-room capacity, recalls Eldon.

He's also noticed advertising by Fort Wayne motels that are offering discounts to people who are there to do family history research.

"They wouldn't be offering discounts unless there was a large enough market to attract," Elson notes.

HE SAYS THE U.S. bicentennial may account for some of the interest, but he believes there has always been "a segment of people in the community who wonder about their roots."

Long-time genealogist Catherine Dearing devotes countless hours to research because "genealogy is history, personal ized."

Through her research, the Anderson woman has found the diary of an 18-year-old woman ancestor who left New Jersey in 1826 to settle in northern Tennessee. The writings give a priceless glimpse of pioneer life, Dearing says.

"IT HAS HELPED me appreciate the hard way of life of my pioneer ancestors. I can identify with the heartbreak of leaving family and friends you would never see again."

> "There is always a line on the chart to follow and someone new to find. I don't think I'll ever get to a point where I'm satisfied and stop."

Such rare finds keep her interest alive.

"Besides, I'm getting older and this keeps my mind nimble," says Dearing.

VITRA (SHIVELY) and Ray Wood have always been interested in early Madison County and Anderson history. They had a large collection of books and documents on the subject long before they used them to trace their families.

"A customer saw our collection of county histories and couldn't imagine us having all that material and not doing genealogy research. She gave me my first blank pedigree chart," Vitra says.

Her early search was easy, she says, because she grew up on homestead farms that had been passed down through generations.

"I GREW UP knowing a lot about my early ancestors," she says.

Searches for earlier relatives have taken her and her husband to Pennsylvania and Ohio to trace their families' footsteps.

"There is always a line on the chart to follow and someone new to find. I don't think I'll ever get to a point where I'm satisfied and stop," says Vitra.

ELDON SAYS MEN are "coming out of the closet as genealogists." He says 10 years ago a man would come into the local history room if he was accompanied by his wife. Men would pretend they were not interested in the research and use books on the sly. Genealogy is no longer a "closet hobby" for men, Eldon says.

Clarence Windsor was one of the rare men who 50 years ago was not ashamed to do family research. He became swept up in the family history tide from his interest in American history.

He was working in Yorktown, Va., and was surrounded by historical sites. When he returned to Indiana, he brought back a love for local history and an interest in finding out how his family fit into major historical events.

"I'M ALWAYS LEARNING things about history from my research that I didn't know before," Windsor says.

"Family history tends to be a hobby you get into when you get older," he adds. "You have more time to put things together. Also, older people have seen the flow of events and the people's lives and are more interested."

Haroldyne Zook's son started her on her family history quest nearly 14 years ago by suggesting they go to the ancestral home of her husband. They found gravemarkers of several 19th century patriarchs, which got them started on their research.

"My son was willing to stop when he had traced his father's family. It was Mom who wanted to trace her families. I went to the Indiana Room and was hooked," says Haroldyne.

Know genealogy building blocks before starting

Climbing into the branches of a family tree or unearthing its roots should be like preparing for a cross-country trip, says local historian Howard Eldon.

"You wouldn't go on a trip without looking at a road map. I recommend reading a good how-to book; we have several in the Indiana Room of the Anderson library. The 'Researcher's Guide,' in particular, is the genealogist's Bible."

ELDON STRESSES KNOWING what branches to rustle, where to dig and what to expect before engaging in a family history search.

"There's no point in traveling to Salt Lake City (a major repository of genealogical material) just to be told to go back home. Start with all the people you know or you can find information about at home," Eldon advises.

A helpful tool in keeping material in order is a pedigree chart, which looks like a backwards basketball pairings bracket. With the researcher in the winner's bracket, the diagram groups couples in one direction for his father's family — Dad, his two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents, etc. — and Mother and her family are paired on the other side.

A PEDIGREE CHART has spaces for recording the names, dates and the location of important family events, such as births, marriages and deaths — the building blocks of family research.

A family group sheet organizes information about a single generation.

Eldon says blank spaces on a pedigree chart or family group sheet are filled in by building from known information. He suggests starting by filling in the chart with data about the researcher and his immediate family.

ANOTHER GOOD IDEA is interviewing older relatives. Even if they cannot remember exactly when an event occurred, they may have helpful clues, Eldon says.

"And, there is nothing more flattering than for a child to ask his grandparents about their lives," he adds.

Important facts sometimes can be found in an old family Bible. Clues can be gleaned from searching old trunks of memorabilia, photo albums, diaries, letters, newspaper clippings and school yearbooks.

PUBLIC RECORDS ARE the primary sources for genealogical information, Eldon says. Each state handles its records differently. Marriage records in Madison County filed after 1882 are stored in the county clerk's office. Birth and death records are maintained by the County Board of Health. No birth or death records are available before 1882. Indiana did not require birth records until 1906 or death records until 1907.

The year 1882 is a key date because it was the year the Madison County Courthouse and its records were destroyed by fire. The Indiana Room is reconstructing some of that information from newspaper articles.

Sometimes, church records can be an alternative source for birth, marriage and death records. Also, finding a relative's grave marker can answer some questions.

FOR MADISON COUNTY researchers, the federal government censuses help fill the void left by the loss of public records. The federal census has been conducted every 10 years since 1790. Until 1850, federal censuses named only the head of the household and number of dependents. In subsequent censuses, everyone in the household was listed with his age, place of birth and occupation.

Censuses up to and including the 1910 enumeration are open to the public on microfilm. Many libraries have statewide indexes that help a researcher pinpoint which community's census records to check.

The Indiana Room has a dozen magazines and newsletters devoted to family history in Indiana and surrounding states. Some 85 percent of the material in the Indiana Room is related to genealogy, Eldon said. An average researcher spends three and a half hours per visit and uses two dozen books.

AFTER EXHAUSTING all local records, many area family historians turn to the Indiana State Library and Allen County Public Library for the extensive collections of genealogical materials housed there.

Many avid researchers travel to their family homesteads in other states or overseas to use original documents or seek help from distant relatives and professional genealogists.

Eldon says not keeping accurate records is the most common fault among family historians. He advises noting the book title, volume and page numbers of all sources that can be quickly checked to verify a fact later.

SINCE ALL RECORDS are subject to error, Eldon stresses double-checking information.

"People don't take the time to prove their facts. They think if it says so in a book, it must be true; sometimes it's not," Eldon cautions.

Diehard genealogists learn to sort out false leads and keep digging, Eldon said.

The number of novice genealogists seeking help from the Indiana Room has grown so much that Eldon plans to offer family history classes on a weekly schedule.

"WE CONCLUDED THAT it takes half an hour just to orient a new user on the room," Eldon says. "Rather than do that over and over again through the week, we thought we would have a volunteer teach the basics maybe twice a week in a separate room."

Eldon also plans to bring in a volunteer once weekly to work with individual researchers on a one-to-one basis. The library has not made the final arrangements on the classes yet.

"GENEALOGISTS ARE NOT the most loved people in the world because they persist," Eldon says. "They keep asking until they get their answer.

"I knew a woman who researched her family for 53 years, learned four foreign languages, traveled to many countries and when she passed away at 83, she didn't have her family history completed," Eldon says.

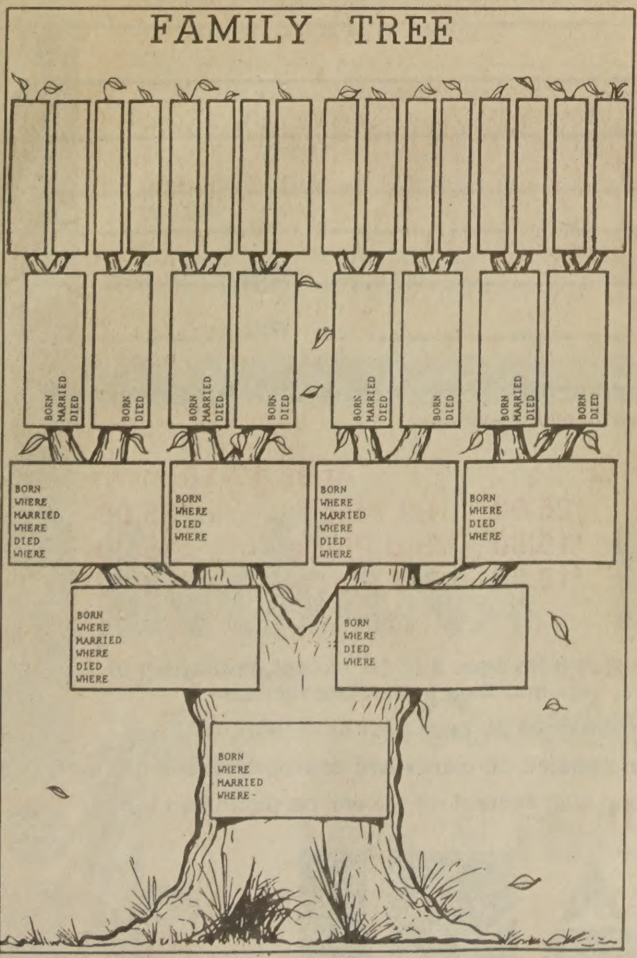

Chart to the past — A pedigree chart puts all genealogical information on a family together in one place where relationships can be seen quickly. The researcher is listed at the base with successive generations listed in the branches above.

Remember these tips when writing for facts

Few family historians are lucky enough to find all their ancestors' names, dates and places listed in one spot. When traveling to the family's original homestead is not practical, many genealogists turn to the mighty pen to continue the detective work.

Howard Eldon of the Anderson Public Library's Indiana Room says following a few basic rules will help make your search more fruitful.

☑ Know exactly what a source can do for you. Eldon said researchers mistakenly think the county clerk or a local library can answer all questions. These sources usually cannot engage in a large-scale search through their records. Sometimes the records have been destroyed at the county level but are available at a central state site. There are several guides on the market that list exactly which office houses what record. Check these guides before wasting time writing to the wrong source.

☑ Become familiar with the history of the area in which you are doing research. Records generated prior to the creation of a county or state will be kept in the parent county or state. There are guides that chart the evolution of states and counties.

☑ Limit your letter to three questions and keep the letter brief and to the point. Eldon says to be specific in what you want the recipient to answer. He advises against the natural temptation to chronicle an ancestor's entire life history.

☑ If you want to engage the service of a paid researcher, write ahead to determine whether he has time to undertake another project. A professional should announce his fee up front and he may require a deposit before beginning.

☑ List dates by day, month and year on all forms and in correspondence. This method is universally preferred by genealogists, Eldon says.

☑ Don't forget the return postage. Always include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. This is one of the most basic principles of genealogy, Eldon says, but many people ignore it and they probably don't get responses.

☑ Express thanks to those who help. The hardest words in the English language seem to be "Thank you," says Eldon.

Madison County Area Cemetery Database Help

There are over 70,000 people in the database from 98 cemeteries, however 74 people do not have legible last names, therefore you may want to search the unknown names just to be thorough. If you find a name you wish to pursue further, please e-mail the Indiana Room Staff for help.

To look up a cemetery or cemetery code use the Cemetery names database.
